Copyright by New York Times

Bern, Switzerland (Wednesday), Oct. 29.—Rain and Russian strategy are reported, by the authoritative military commentator in Moscow this morning, to have combined to turn the tide of battle on the western defenses of the capital.

Soviet troops are said to have dramatically converted what was intended to be the preliminary stage of a final German squeeze to break the Russian lines, into a near-rout at two points south of Mozhaisk, which itself is 57 miles west of Moscow, by a terrific counter-offensive launched simultaneously with the heavy German offensive shortly after dawn yesterday.

Late reports tell of Russian forces having advanced up to ten miles at some points as Soviet artillery maintained a continuous pounding over all German attempts to reform their forces for a renewed thrust to stem the Russian onslaught.

Nazi Attacks Repulsed

At no point, according to the military commentator, have they been able to do this, while the midnight communique, referring to terrific fighting in progress along a line from Volokolamsk to Maloyaroslavets, adds that all enemy attacks were repulsed with heavy losses.

Volokolamsk is a new name in the communique and apparently is the point reached by the Germans three days ago after a strategical Russian withdrawal from the headwaters of the Lov River on the Rzhev-Moscow road.

While the German main thrust was directed against the Mozraisk-Maloyaroslavets line in the dawn attack, Russian forces just south of Volokolamsk, at Spask, started pounding the German positions from 12 miles to the west with heavy artillery from the strategic heights on which Spask it situated.

Mechanized Units Halted

Taken completely by surprise, the Germans attempted a mass tank thrust, but a slow drizzle which began shortly before daybreak broke into a downpour which soon soaked the snow and mud into a condition in which the Nazi "mechanized marvel" was brought to a standstill.

Meanwhile, Soviet reinforcements on the center of the line, after artillery had broken the force of the first German onslaught, advanced to the attack in two wings, the northerly one driving due west, the southerly one in a southwesterly direction, to cut the German line of communications.

After a brief advance the southern wing fell back onto its original positions, to hold, while another drive, commenced from Malovaroslavets to close a breach in the Russian lines, through which a German spearhead had driven in fighting Monday.

The elasticity of the Russian operations at this point appeared to have halted the onward German rush as Russian infantry pushed forward over ground already twice fought over during the day.

Hitler Struts

Two Turkish Generals Visit East Front

Berlin, Oct. 28 (AP).—Adolf Hitler today received the Turkish Gens. Ali Fuad Erden and Hueseyn Erkilet at his eastern front headquarters.

An official announcement said the Turkish generals had just finished an inspection trip of the eastern front "which gave them an impressive picture of the achievements and successes of German troops and their Allies."

They also visited Field Marshal Gens. Walther von Brauchitsch, commander in chief of the army, and William Keitel, chief of the high command.

Neutral observers quickly recalled that such "impressive pictures" are nearly always intended to get the leaders of some small country to discover that it might be best after all to go along with the German plan of things.

Turkey, considered a nonbelligerent ally of Britain, is becoming more and more vital prospectively now that Hitler is beating forward along the northern coast of the Black Sea, and is likely—or so the British seem convinced if all goes well with his schemes—to want to break through that country sooner or later to try to flank the Russians in the Caucasus or set himself upon the routes to India.

Suspect Held In $52,000 Md. Holdup

Ex-Convict Trapped In Prince Georges Robbery by New Auto

By John Singerhoff
Post Staff Writer

Charged in a Federal warrant with robbing the Prince Georges County Trust Co. of $52,818.93 on September 23, Hilliard Sanders, alias George Thompson, 27, was held at the District Jail last night as a fugitive from justice.

He was lodged in jail in lieu of $50,000 bail set by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, before whom Sanders was arraigned at 2 p. m. yesterday.

The suspect was taken before Turnage on a warrant issued by James K. Cullen, United States Commissioner in Baltimore. The warrant was not served on Sanders until he was released on a habeas corpus writ at District Court.

Sanders was arrested in Charlotte, N. C., Saturday night on information developed by four Washington detectives and Chief Arthur Hepburn, of Prince Georges County police, and Capt. B. J. Nolan, of the Maryland State police. Announcement of the arrest was made yesterday by the FBI.

One man and two women who were with Sanders when he was arrested were still in custody of police last night. No charges had been placed against them, although they

Mercury Hits 36 In Winter Preview

The cold air front moving down from Minnesota yesterday reached the District, causing the temperature to drop sharply, from a high of 64 early in the day to a low of 36, only four degrees above freezing, before dawn.

The frosty weather will remain most of today, but by tomorrow the mercury once will again start upward.

The American Automobile Association issued a warning to motorists to change to winter oil and to check their anti-freeze.

Sen. Pepper Is for A. E. F. If Needed

President Admitted Tricking American People in Navy Day Speech, Taft Charges

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Senate's foremost advocate of aid-to-the-Allies yesterday told the Senate that Germany can be defeated without a declaration of war or an A. E. F., but he would favor both steps if needed to crush Hitler.

Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, in a spirited clash with Senator Clark (Democrat), of Idaho, an isolationist leader, said he "would stop at no sacrifice to defeat Hitler if all alternatives fail."

Pepper, first to sponsor three-way revision of the Neutrality Act, denied in a speech that opponents of the free shipping bill "are the friends of peace."

"Road to Bloodshed"

"On the contrary," he maintained, "time will show that those who are advocates of this measure have closest to their hearts the peace of their country."

Second day of debate on neutrality law revision earlier brought Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, to his feet with the charge that President Roosevelt's Navy Day speech corroborated "those who have sought to convince the American people for months that he was leading them down the road to bloodshed while constantly repeating pledges of peace."

Late in the day, Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, entered the debate to further point up the opposition charge that the Administration bill is a war measure.

Early Final Action Forecast

"In every speech I have made throughout the country," he said, "I have said we are not in the war, but the speech of the President last night indicated to me very clearly he felt we are in the war and that we ought to get in further."

Administration polls of the Senate meanwhile disclosed enough votes to defeat any substantial modification of the Foreign Relations Committee bill to permit armed American merchantmen to carry supplies through combat zones directly to belligerent ports.

Strongest opposition bid it was indicated, would come on a move to return to the House-approved bill restricting authority to arming of merchantmen. Official polls counted from 41 to 43 in support of this limiting change, against 53 to 55 votes to defeat it.

Bilbo Favors House Bill

Any other combination of opposition amendments, to strike out Section 2, permitting entry into belligerent ports, or Section 3, permitting passage through combat zones, polls indicated would be defeated by an even wider margin.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley said he was confident the Administration would be sustained down

Industry-Wide Walkout Feared In New Strife At N. J. Factory

The threat of an industry-wide strike in all aircraft factories in five Eastern States was made yesterday by Richard T. Frankensteen, head of C. I. O. aircraft workers, as the third strike in 15 weeks hit the Air Associates, Inc., plant at Bendix, N. J.

Frankensteen charged the company had violated a Mediation Board agreement by which strikers were to be reinstated in their former jobs upon return to work Monday.

He told a press conference, "I am going to make it plain to the Government agencies that I will not be responsible for what happens after Thursday of this week."

Telegram to President

In a telegram to President Roosevelt, Frankensteen added, "We shall be powerless to ask compliance with future requests from the Mediation Board by members of our organization if such compliance brings with it the dissipation of the strength of our local unions and the abasement of our members. . . .

"We have no course but to use the large scale economic strength of our organization to protect the interest of our union and our members at the Air Associates plant."

At the War Department, to which the case was referred last week after the company management refused to follow the board's recommendations, it was learned that the case was the subject of conferences yesterday and last night. No comment was obtainable, however, as to future action.

Hit At Double-Dealing

Certain department officials were said to be furious at what they considered double-dealing by the company, while at the Mediation Board, no attempt was made to disguise fierce anger at the company management.

It was said yesterday that F. Leroy Hill, company president, had denied to the union that the recent settlement involved acceptance of the Mediation Board recommendation for immediate rehiring and further represented that he was not obliged to take back the strikers for 30 days or more, although the understanding he reached with Undersecretary of War Patterson was for a three-day maximum. Skilled workers who were rehired, it was added, were given jobs scrubbing floors.

Power Strike Threatened

The company employs 700 workers and holds about five million dollars of defense orders for airplane parts.

Congress Ready To Act; George Demands Army Open Coal Mines

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

A Congress waxing increasingly warm on the subject of labor stoppages in defense industries last night awaited its cue from President Roosevelt before proceeding to act in the captive coal mines strike.

Senate leaders conferred with the President by telephone shortly before Mr. Roosevelt told his press conference that he was studying legislation to curb defense strikes. Later, Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, Foreign Committee chairman, declared:

"John L. Lewis must not be permitted to paralyze an important segment of the defense program. The methods of dictatorship and autocracy cannot longer be tolerated. John L. Lewis challenges the power of the Government. He flaunts the request of the President. He makes a brutal demand that his will must be observed.

Favors Legislation

"I favor legislation authorizing the Government to take over any factory or plant manufacturing defense in which production is impeded or delayed or hindered by a strike."

With Congressional sentiment rapidly crystallizing and with leaders on Capitol Hill strongly suggesting that the President wants specific authority to take over the mine fields, it was possible that the green light may be flashed from the White House today.

Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, chairman of the Finance Committee, urged that the Army be sent into the mines area to permit miners to return to the pits if they so desire. A "vast majority" of the strikers would go back to work if guaranteed protection, George declared.

"I think that the time is overripe for the President to take that positive attitude," George asserted.

Thomas Gives Opinion

Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, Labor Committee chairman and constant supporter of Administration labor policies, expressed the opinion that Mr. Roosevelt already has the authority in provisions of either the Property Seizure or Selective Service Acts.

Senator Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, the majority leader, indicated a doubt on this point, while the comment of other Senators made it appear that the President would prefer specific authority for drastic action in his struggle with John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers' chief.

Senators Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, and O'Daniel (Democrat), of Texas, moved almost simultaneously yesterday to force immediate labor-restraining action by

The Gallup Poll

Public Unfavorable to Closed Shop, Voters' Survey Shows

By Dr. George Gallup

This is the second of a series of reports by the Gallup Poll showing what public opinion is today on various aspects of the labor question.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 28.—In the realm of labor problems an issue which the country will have to meet head on in the coming months is the issue of the closed shop—requiring every worker in a company to belong to the union before he can be hired. Closed shop demands are being pressed by unions in many industries.

In the settlement of any dispute in the labor field, there are four parties concerned—management, labor, the government, and the public.

As a fact-finding organization devoted to public opinion research, the Institute has conducted a survey to determine where the public stands on the closed shop issue.

The results indicate that labor union leaders have thus far not been able to win the support of public opinion for their closed shop demands.

The voters interviewed in the poll—voters representing an accurate cross-section of the Nation—are opposed to the closed shop by a ratio of approximately 6 to 1.

A comparison with the results of earlier polls on the same issue shows that the closed shop has less public support today than it has had in recent years.

Today's survey, one of a series on labor which is being reported this week, was on the following issue:

"Are you in favor of the closed shop—that is, requiring every worker in a company to belong to a union before he can be hired?"

The trend of sentiment follows:

	Favor	Opposed	Undecided
June, 1937	28%	59%	13%
June, 1939	23	62	15
Today	13	77	10

The declining sympathy for the closed shop follows the general trend of sentiment toward labor unionism. As reported earlier

Steagall Offers Wage-Fixing Amendments

Chairman Outlines Price Control Riders To Banking Group

Proposed amendments to the Administration's price-control bill embodying a modified form of wage restrictions were outlined yesterday before an executive session of the House Banking Committee by its chairman, Representative Steagall (Democrat), of Alabama, it was learned last night.

Steagall, while not denying that the proposals were read to the committee, declined to comment on them. It was reliably learned, however, that the amendments were tentatively offered by the chairman and that the move greatly strengthened committee sentiment for writing wage limitations into any inflation-control measure that may be reported to Congress.

At the same time, Steagall told reporters that the committee is determined to complete executive consideration of price-control legislation in time to report a bill Friday.

The chairman, it was reported, suggested that wage restrictions be provided only for industries whose commodity prices have been fixed under administrative authority delegated by Congress.

A limitation on wages might be invoked, it was proposed, only after the price administrator had determined that a wage increase would not permit the producer to operate under the price ceiling imposed.

In some instances, it was explained, a manufacturer might be able to absorb a wage increase without raising his prices, while in other cases the margin between operating and other costs and prices might be too small.

Truman Raps OPM Action On Currier Bid

Senator Questions Labor Division's Right To Dictate to FWA

By Samuel W. Bell
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

The right of the labor division of the Office of Production Management to dictate, irrespective of cost, the acceptance of bids on contracts by giving "preference" to whatever union happens to have the most strength in a specific industry was questioned sharply yesterday by Senator Harry S. Truman (Democrat), of Missouri, chairman of the special committee investigating national defense.

Senator Truman's statement came after Col. Lawrence Westbrook, assistant to the Federal Works administrator, told the committee he would recommend rejection of all bids on a defense housing project in Wayne, Mich., and thus overcome the "legal" questions involved in carrying out the labor division mandate. Because P. J. Currier, of Detroit, low bidder by $400,000 on the project, employed C. I. O. labor, Sidney Hillman, associate director of OPM, had ordered the bid rejected for fear, he said, it would provoke "labor warfare" with the building trades unions of the A. F. of L., with whom OPM has a "stabilization" agreement.

At the conclusion of Col. Westbrook's testimony, Senator Thomas said:

"When low bids are offered in good faith and the low bidder can qualify, his bids should be taken in good faith. The opinion of the OPM should not be taken as the controlling factor in the situation. I think

Orders Studied For U. S. Taking Over Coal Mines If Necessary

By Alfred Friendly
Copyright By The Washington Post

The Administration has under favorable consideration legislation to submit defense labor disputes to a "cooling off" and arbitration procedure similar to that now provided by the Railway Mediation Act, it was learned authoritatively last night.

At the same time, it was disclosed, the National Defense Mediation Board is working with the Justice Department in drafting a series of executive orders to provide as a last resort for Government seizure, under existing powers, of the "captive" coal mines owned by the Nation's steel companies, struck since Monday by the United Mine Workers (C. I. O.).

Administration countenancing of drastic labor laws which it has hitherto resisted was prompted by the stony silence of the miners' president, John L. Lewis, to President Roosevelt's third appeal to him to send his 53,000 striking unionists back to work.

President Considers Move

The Chief Executive admitted yesterday that he is considering legislation to increase Federal authority in strike situations, but declined to say what form it would take.

If Lewis persists in rejecting recommendations made by the Mediation Board last week to arbitrate the dispute, in which the sole issue is the closed shop, Government occupation of the coal fields may be the only solution enabling a resumption of production, it was intimated in defense circles.

A high defense official admitted: "Of all the labor situations that have arisen in the emergency, this is the gravest."

The board's recommendations were accepted yesterday by the United States Steel Corporation directors, who are conceded to hold the dominant voice as the major captive mine owners. Mediation Board Chairman William H. Davis communicated news of the acceptance to Lewis, it was learned, and asked that he promptly communicate his reply to the recommendations.

White House Conference

Lewis two previous rejections were to pleas of Mr. Roosevelt that he send the striking miners back to work; Davis' request, on the other hand, was for a reply to the board's recommendations, which proposed alternate methods, both ultimately relying on an arbitration decision which both parties to the dispute

Shot Fired Near Argentine Chief

Buenos Aires, Oct. 28 (AP).—A shot rang out tonight outside the special train in which Acting President Ramon Castillo was leaving the capital, and police quickly asserted the shooting was the accidental result of a scuffle over the gun rather than an assassination attempt.

Their version was that the pistol was fired into the air during an altercation between two men on the platform when one sought to hit the other with the gun butt. The bullet went astray. Police seized the man who fired the shot.

The Washington traffic death toll reached 76 yesterday when a 60-year-old man was struck and fatally injured by a truck at Fourteenth Street and New York Avenue Northwest. He died at Emergency Hospital several hours after the accident.

The victim was Charles Salem, of Johnstown, Pa. He was felled by a truck driven, police said, by Rozier D. Pearson, 20, Negro, while crossing Fourteenth Street. Pearson was charged with reckless driving and released on $500 bond at the time of the accident. He was rearrested upon Salem's death and will appear at a coroner's inquest.

The accident marked the second fatality at the intersection in as many days. Phillip Loketch, 63, of 4106 Fourteenth Street Northwest, was killed there Monday when struck by a street car after stepping off another street car.

Thirteen-year-old Richard Bromley, of 1650 Avon Street Northwest, was struck by an auto in the 3200 block of M Street Northwest and was taken to Georgetown Hospital with back and hip injuries. Police listed the driver as William M. Moore, of Arlington.

Luther Thomas, 19, Negro, of 1817 Vermont Avenue Northwest, ran his bike into an auto in the 1100 block of Vermont Avenue, according to police, and suffered severe face injuries.

Red Tape Finally Untied

USO to Lease Gunton Building As Recreational Center Today

A lease will be signed this morning at Federal Works Agency, giving Washington a USO recreation building after weeks of delay, wrapped in red tape.

Hugo Wolter, executive director of recreation services in the District Defense Council, made the announcement last night. The center for service men and defense workers will be in the Gunton Building, 901 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest.

Whether it was sheer coincidence or otherwise, the disclosure that the lease would be signed today came a few hours after The Post had made inquiries of District and Federal officials regarding the delay in establishing a major USO recreation center here.

Earlier in the day, Wolter said that the deal for renting the Gunton Building has been virtually closed on September 13 but that the lease-signing was being held up for technical reasons in the Federal Works Agency. The FWA administers the Congressional funds, authorized by the Lanham Act, for building and leasing recreation centers to be operated with U. S. O. moneys.

All but the street floor of the four-story Gunton Building will be devoted to the divertisement center.

The top floor, said Wolter, will accommodate a 50-bed dormitory, showers and laundry facilities. The third floor will have lounges, game and reading rooms, also headquarters of the Women's Battalion, as the organization of camp hostess volunteers is known. Officers of the defense recreation service also will be established on the third floor.

One flight below will be the social hall for dances and parties, an information desk, lounges, card and game rooms. In all about 10,000 square feet of space will be provided.

Under Congressional appropriation, $100,000 was allocated for rental and equipment of the building, which is being leased through the Rosinski agency. Wolter said the structure already has been remodeled and redecorated for its new

No Question of Authenticity

President Views Axis as Stung By Revelation of Document

A flood tide of unparalleled invective from Germany and Italy in response to President Roosevelt's Navy Day address of Monday night yesterday brought smilingly comment from the Chief Executive.

Nazi protests that he had "faked" a German map which he said in his address revealed plans to partition Latin America were most amusing, he told his press conference.

It's a scream, he commented further.

Displaying much satisfaction in the evidence that he had hurt the Axis powers by disclosing that he has the secret map, Mr. Roosevelt told reporters that the faking charge was in the same class as that made previously by the same sources that he himself had torpedoed the American destroyer Kearny, while the neutrality revision fight was under way in Congress.

He said there is no question as to the authenticity of the map, which shows 14 Latin American countries wiped out and replaced by five Axis-dominated puppet states.

Moreover, it appeared that South Americans also had knowledge of the map. An Associated Press dispatch from Buenos Aires reported the newspaper Critica, strongly anti-totalitarian, declared that the plan for the rearrangement of South America would make Argentina and Uruguay Italian protectorates.

The paper said that Germany

Closed Shop Hit As Labor Monopoly

U. S. Chamber Chief Assails Principle At ILO Conference

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 28.—The closed shop question was injected into the 35-nation conference of the International Labor Organization today by a statement that the issue "is monopolistic in every sense of the word."

Albert W. Hawkes, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce and an adviser to the United States employers delegation, said that many labor disputes in this country revolved around the problem and expressed belief that it "transgresses the rights of our individual citizens as guaranteed by the Constitution."

"We have spent 50 or 60 years to get rid of monopoly in business," Hawkes added. "Why build up monopoly in any group among our American people or anywhere else in the world? We talk about the 'four freedoms' in the United States. I would talk about the fifth freedom—the sacred right to work on any job where any person, corporation or Government agency requires the service an individual is able and willing to render."

Hawkes contended the closed shop was not necessary to keep labor organizations alive.

Henry I. Harriman, chairman of the board of the New England Power Association and another employer delegate, commenting on a report submitted to the conference by Edward J. Phelan, acting I. L. O. director, said it failed to make "a definite affirmative statement that it is the duty of all liberty-loving people and the organizations which they represent, such as the I. L. O., to take an affirmative part in the winning of the war."

He asked the organization to "say in trumpet tones that at this time its first and paramount duty is to do all it can to crush Hitlerism."

The I. L. O., a branch of the League of Nations, will close its conference November 6. The session was called to discuss methods of strengthening democratic resistance to the Axis powers and to plan a postwar world of economic security and social justice.

41 Members Now

11 Alternates To Mediation Board Named

The National Defense Mediation Board yesterday announced the appointment of 11 new alternate members of the organization, bringing the total of members and alternates to 41.

Of the new appointees, three will represent the public, four the employers and four the labor interests.

For the public—Wayne L. Morse, dean of law, University of Oregon, Eugene, Oreg.; Dr. Ernest Hopkins, president of Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H.; Francis W. H. Adams, attorney, New York City.

For employers — Morris Evans Leeds, chairman of the board of directors, Leeds & Northrup Co., Philadelphia; Alexander B. MacBeth, director, Union Oil Co., Los Angeles; Frazier D. MacIver, vice president, Phoenix Hosiery Co., Milwaukee; Frederick S. Fales, former vice president and director, Socony-Vacuum Corporation, New York City.

For labor—S. H. Dalrymple, president, United Rubber Workers of America, C. I. O., Akron, Ohio; Herbert W. Payne, vice president, Textile Workers Union of America, C. I. O., Washington; George Googe, Southern representative, American Federation of Labor, Atlanta; William A. Calvin, vice president, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders of American, A. F. of L., Washington.

Public Opposed To Closed Shop

this week, the Institute has found that, although the great majority of voters support the right of workers to join unions, nevertheless there has been a decline in public sympathy for organized labor in the past few years.

It is not necessary to talk to many voters in order to discover what, is the most typical and the most widespread objection in the mind of the American public ti the closed shop.

Briefly it is this:

"The closed shop takes away the right of the worker to decide whether he wants to belong to a union. No one should be forced to join a union. That is not the American way of doing things."

That is the chief sentiment expressed by the overwhelming majority of those oppsed to the closed shop. Some voters add: "The closed shop takes away equality of opportunity between union men and non-union men."

The chief argument in favor of the closed shop, as set forth by those voters who approve it, is that only through a closed shop can the "little man" combat the power of the employers.

A typical statement of persons holding this view is:

"These big business bosses can't get away with so much when there is a closed shop. If the little men can stick together and fight back, they will get places."

Rev. C. P. Hall Will Meet City Presbytery Today

The Rev. Cameron P. Hall, head of the social education and action department of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education, will convene with officials of the Washington City Presbytery here today.

REV. HALL

At 2 p. m. he will meet with the Presbytery's committee on "social education and action," of which Dr. W. L. Darby, president of the Washington City Bible Society, is chairman. Sessions will be at the Federation of Churches Building, 1751 N Street Northwest.

He will address a meeting primarily for Presbyterian ministers and members of special local Presbyterian committees at 8 p. m. in the chapel of Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, 1764 N Street Northwest.

The Rev. Mr. Hall is a former pastor of Christ Presbyterian Church, New York, and University Presbyterian Church, Madison, Wis.

President Urges U. S. to Observe Armistice Day

President Roosevelt yesterday proclaimed November 11 as Armistice Day and called upon the American people to pause on that date "to show gratitude for the past, to rededicate the Nation to the fundamentals of human liberty and to defend our future."

The President himself will speak at ceremonies in Arlington National Cemetery.

In his proclamation he noted that the armistice of November 11, 1918, marked "the successful end of a war which undeniably saved democracies from imperialistic conquest," but that "forces of lawlessness and inhumanity have again been unleashed against us."

12 Dead in N. J. Building Fire

Montclair, N. J., Oct. 28 (AP).—The bodies of 12 Negroes, nine of them children, were found tonight in the charred ruins of a 2½-story building, and Coroner George W. Olcott, jr., said: "We are still looking for bodies."

Tongues of flame blocked all exits to the frame building and eight persons were seriously injured as they flung themselves from second-story windows.

Fire Chief John Graham said the blaze started after a lighted stove fell from the hands of Rudolph Durham as he carried it downstairs. Exploding as it struck, the stove sent flames spreading in every corner of the house, circling the occupants.

The President's Day

By International News Service

GOOD MORNING: The President began the day with a cheerful little earful on national reaction to his Navy Day-total defense speech. Domestically 51.9 per cent of the stay-at-home radio tuners listened. Abroad the White House hinted an even more avid interest. Wires of congratulation poured in from expected and unexpected sources; beefs were few, stormy disapproval rare.

GOOD WILL: In the name of hemispheric defense, now a White Household word, came the Peruvian Ambassador and Senor Rafael Larco Herrera, vice president of the Republic of Peru. Agreeing strongly on the defense of the Western Hemisphere, they went on to touch on the recent United States seizure of United States planes, postmarked for Peru, to rush help to Russia, came to completely amicable conclusions.

WELLESIAN: Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles asked for, received a grant of time and the busy Presidential ear, into which he poured the latest dope on the situation international.

FORFEIT FOR THE DUKE: J. M. Broughton of North Carolina forfeited his appointment in favor of the Duke of Windsor, who got through his conference with the Civil Aeronautics Board early, dropped by to see the President and to wait for the Duchess.

THE LUNCHEON: Having sampled the wit and charm of the Duke and Duchess on their last visit, the President looked forward to having them at his table, wasn't disappointed. The luncheon lasted for almost two hours. The President was delighted, at his best, and the Windsors were enchanted to the point of narrowly missing their 3 p. m. train.

JOVIAL JOVE: Still in the spirit of the gay luncheon, the President waved in the correspondents with broad grins, an animated exchange of quips with the boys in the front row, and much Roosevelt pepper and humor.

ETC., DEPT.—Senator Hattie Caraway and Congressman David Terry got first place on the morning list of appointments, talked over patronage with the President. In a proclamation the President set November 11 for national observance of "a grim armistice anniversary."

President Studies Compulsory 'Cool-off' Before Strikes

would agree beforehand to accept. Lewis was expected to discuss the situation with Davis today.

Davis and Myron C. Taylor, retired chairman of the board of directors of United States Steel Corp., met for three quarters of an hour with the President last night. Beyond acknowledging that the discussion was of the coal strike, Davis declined comment.

The proposal for Government occupation of the strike-bound mines, it was indicated, is based on the assumption that the miners, suddenly becoming Federal employes, would return to work in response to a request of the President and assurances that their interests would be protected by the Government. It was believed that other C. I. O. leaders would support a back-to-work appeal under such circumstances even if Lewis still insisted on continuation of the strike.

The Railway Labor Act pattern for defense controversies contemplates giving the Defense Mediation Board, for the first time, the sanction of Congress. Hitherto it has acted under authority conferred by executive order. The procedure, said to have White House support, provides for the compulsory "cooling-off" period now applying to railroad disputes, and would establish the present board in a conciliation and mediation status similar to that held by the permanent railway board.

Specifically, the Railway Labor Act which created the National (Railroad) Mediation Board, provides that the board may be requested to mediate, or may proffer its services, in railway labor disputes. If it fails by mediation to bring about an agreement, it seeks to obtain agreement by both sides that they will submit the dispute to arbitration and abide by the decision.

Then Notifies President

If no agreement to arbitrate is reached, the board notifies the President, who may then create a special investigating board—such as that now operating in Chicago in the Railroad Brotherhood's current wage dispute. While this "ad hoc" board is considering the matter, the law provides that neither party may change the conditions out of which the dispute arose (i.e., no strike can be called) for 60 days. The board then issues a report on the controversy. Almost without exception, this report has been accepted and considered binding by the disputants, although there is nothing in the law making the acceptance of the report compulsory.

The President's disclosure that he had legislation in mind was in reply to a press conference question on whether he was considering legislation for compulsory arbitration and suspension of strikes during the emergency.

If the question were confined simply to legislation, Mr. Roosevelt replied, the answer would be in the affirmative.

He explained that compulsory arbitration or suspension of the strike right were only two of perhaps ten possible methods to be considered.

As an indication of what could be done with present power, he noted that two defense plants had already been taken over by the Government. This does not mean, he quickly added, that the Government is going to take over the coal fields, however.

Lewis, openly anti-Administration, an opponent of the President's foreign policy, and not a public supporter of the defense program, is scheduled to discuss the captive mines dispute today with Taylor.

Where Lewis and Taylor would meet, or indeed, whether they would meet as planned, remained a mystery last night.

The scheduled meeting was considered even more questionable when the United States Steel Corporation announced yesterday afternoon, following a board of directors meeting, that it had chosen to accept the first alternative suggestion of the Mediation Board.

This provides for arbitration of the dispute, with a decision binding on both parties, by the full, 11-man board. Taylor's participation in the dispute would come only under the second alternative, which called for a bipartisan body of the industry and the union to negotiate, and, failing settlement, jointly to pick an arbitrator.

Two other steel companies, however, Wheeling Steel and Wierton Steel, wired the Mediation Board last night that they had accepted the second alternative.

With the exception of one mine in Johnstown, Pa., owned by the Bethlehem Steel Co., where miners defied the strike order for the second day, the coal strike appeared to be almost entirely effective.

Mediation Board officials said they believed that replies of the other steel companies involved would be received today. It was considered highly improbable, in view of Big Steel's decision, that that any would reject the recommendations.

George Demands Army Open Mines

Congress by proposing riders to the Neutrality Act amendments now being debated in the Senate.

Bailey proposed addition of a new section to the neutrality bill which would make any person guilty of the "crime of sabotage against the defense of the United States" who should "direct o rorder or encourage" stoppage of work "with intent" to hinder defense production. Conviction under this provision would carry a maximum sentence of $10,000 fine and ten years imprisonment.

The rider would make subject to a maximum of five years in jail any person using threats, insults, bribes or force in attempting to prevent workers from laboring on defense production. It would also define as "conspiracy to sabotage," carrying a 5-year sentence, "any agreement" among defense workers to hinder production.

O'Daniel broke into the neutrality debate to notify the Senate that he would offer as an amendment to the pending bill his resolution making it a foleny to use force or violence or the threat of either to prevent workers from going on the job.

"While our 130 million people are looking across the ocean at the very great danger that has been very ably pointed out by these Senators, it looks to me like the skunks here at home are just about to take away from us the very things that are essential to whipping Hitler," O'Daniel told the Senate.

Chairman Truman of the Senate Defense Investigating Committee, and Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, joined in the Senatorial chastisement of Lewis, while in the House Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, and Representative Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan, swelled the angry chorus.

Nazis Told To Expect Hardships

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Oct. 28.—Propaganda Minister Goebbels in a published appeal today to Berlin residents pointed to the coming of certainly not easy weeks" and asked them to "keep your heads high and never give in."

"I know you have it hard today," he wrote. "You must all work as never before.

"Your wives sometimes stand for hours before stores in order to buy some vegetables. Your children frequently are sent into the country and separated from you for months.

"Sometimes you have to go without a glass of beer, sometimes without cigarettes.

"Then because necessary hands are not available, you have to shovel coal; then at nights go into air raid protection cellars and after two hours sleep back to hard work.

"That is the way it is in many cities of the Reich and in some even worse."

Syrian Autonomy

London, Oct. 28 (AP).—Great Britain formally recognized today the independence of Syria.

An authoritative source said a telegram "of congratulation and good wishes" sent by King George VI to the president of the independent Syrian republic, Shiek Tajeddine El Hassani, constituted formal recognition.

The Free French authorities in Syria proclaimed the independence of the country on September 16. They thus observed their pledge made when the invasion of the country was begun June 8. In this pledge the Free French were joined by the British.

Authoritative British sources indicated Britain would welcome similar recognition from other interested states, including the United States, and added that appointment of a British minister and advisers to the new Syrian government was being considered.

Hoarders Face Death

Rome, Oct. 28 (AP).—Premier Mussolini today ordered the death penalty for those who hoard or destroy large quantities of raw materials, food and agricultural or industrial products in territories annexed by Italy.

Knox Compares Defense Workers With Men in Navy

Detroit, Oct. 28 (AP).—The workers in the Navy's ordnance plants are as vital to national defense as the men on its battleships, Secretary Knox asserted here today.

"If you were below deck in a battleship, you wouldn't think of shirking your duties under fire; you are in the same position now in this plant," he said in formally dedicating the new Hudson Motor Car Co. Naval Arsenal. He addressed approximately 1000 workers and a large group of naval officers and guests.

Knox called upon the workers to "give the lie in the teeth" to anyone who attempts to convince them they have a dispute over pay or any other grievance.

Dedication of the Naval Arsenal climaxed a defense project inspection tour that took Secretary Knox through the Pontiac Motor Division of General Motors Corporation, at Pontiac, and the Chrysler Army tank plant in nearby Macomb County.

New York, Oct. 28 (INS).—Vincent Astor, 49, sportsman, financier and commander in the United States Naval Reserve, was reported in a satisfactory condition tonight at the hospital where he underwent a major intestinal operation a week ago.

Nazis' Motorized Units, Troops Bogged in Mud

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, Oct. 28.—For the first time in the war the weather—hitherto one of Hitler's most faithful allies—has turned against him with a vengeance and has saved Moscow from certain Nazi conquest, according to reliable information arriving here from the Eastern Front.

Until weather conditions, which these sources described as "miserable beyond all conception," set in the occupation of Moscow, it is said, was held by high German authorities to be an early certainty. These sources claim to have information that inside Moscow two weeks ago panic reigned and mong the troops being mustered to defend the city the situation was considered hopeless. It is even asserted that Joseph Stalin himself had virtually given up the city for lost.

At this point, it is said, a heavy layer of snow around the capital was melted by a spell of rain which still continues and the earth was transformed into a deep gummy mud.

Roads west of Moscow by today had "simply disappeared." They are said to have blended into the fields, and "on the whole front from Kalinin to Kaluga the picture before the German troops is that of one great quagmire." The use of motor vehicles and tanks, this information goes on, is out of the question.

Soviet Counterattacks

The Soviet, recovered from the psychological shock of the first Nazi drive over Bryansk and Vyazma, initiated counterattacks of its own. These quarters, therefore, say flatly that the weather has "saved Moscow."

These assertions are confirmed in part by the fact that neither the daily high command communique nor the official news agency, D. N. B., today tell of advance on the central front. The latter, indeed, relates rather of "bold resistance" the Germans against assaults of Soviet initiation.

One Russian attack is said to have occurred in the area defended by an elite German company. The combat lasted 10 hours and the D. N. B. messages claims the Germans succeeded in destroying 40 Soviet tanks, the report continues:

"The company allowed the Soviet tanks to approach within 200 yards of it and then covered the Soviets with a furious hail of shells. The colossal Soviet tanks attacked in waves and they had to be destroyed mainly in close range fighting with grenades and other explosives."

Rain Sweeps South

Rain continued, too, on the southern front, but German soldiers say that conditions there cannot be compared with those outside Moscow. The outstanding German success reported in the south today is in the occupation of Kramatorsk, 100 miles southeast of Kharkov, where one of the Soviet Union's largest tank factories is situated.

It is categorically denied here that street fighting is still going on in Kharkov but as yet, it is said, only German engineers have entered the city and are risking their lives clearing innumerable mines and explosive charges planted by the Russians.

Other messages say the Germans in the deep south are just outside Rostov, but are facing bitter resistance.

At Leningrad Monday German sources say heavy artillery and Luftwaffe units bombed the city and the island fortress of Kronstadt. On Kronstadt, this report claims, the guns of one fort were silenced.

Here in Berlin the high command of the Luftwaffe issued an appeal for new applicants for pilots and engineers in the German air force.

Nazis Hurled Back 10 Miles; Rostov Is Lost, British Fear

Gains in Moscow Area Are Offset By Losses in South

By the Associated Press

London, Oct. 28.—Supported by hardened reserves from Siberia, the Red armies before Moscow were declared tonight by informd neutral quarters to have measurably improved their position by general counterattacks which in some sectors threw the Germans back 10 miles.

Defenders of the far south, however, were seeking to beat back imminent disaster before Rostov, where mighty German forces were reported still advancing—although at slackened pace—after having reached to within 10 to 15 miles of that vital city.

The supreme southern Soviet commander, Marshal Semeon Timoshenko, hurried up reinforcements for one of the most decisive battles of the war.

His chances of holding the offensive short of Rostov, which commands the lower stretches of the Don Valley and is the most important surviving outpost of the Donets Basin industrial reservoir, were described frankly here as slim.

The Don itself offered no obstacle to the invaders, for Rostov stands upon its northern banks, and the thrust of the German Marshal Gerth von Rundstedt—a thrust of obviously terrible power—appeared to be operating from almost due west.

Regardless of the immediate outcome of the great showdown for Rostov, some observers here counted the Donets Basin as already substantially lost to Russia, although not wholly occupied by the invaders, as no longer able to give substantial industrial support to the Red armies.

But in the Moscow theater, the picture as seen here was vastly brighter for the defenders. The weather, it was said, was turning increasingly nasty, from the German viewpoint; for the terrain, far from being frozen, was slippery mud under rain and light snowfalls.

Germans Digging In for Defense, Red Dispatches Assert

By the Associated Press

Kuibyshev, Russia, Oct. 28.—The Germans were reported in military dispatches tonight to be building defense fortifications in some sectors of the Moscow front in an attempt to consolidate earlier advances which had been long blocked.

This turn to essentially defensive tactics was reported in front line accounts to Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, which stated the Nazis were digging not only trench lines, but antitank obstacles as well against Russian counteraction.

The invaders, it was added, still were attempting flank attacks, but had made only negligible advances even there, while Russian counterthrusts elsewhere had recaptured a number of settlements.

Meanwhile, German losses now were estimated by Soviet sources to have reached four million men.

Dispatches from the southern front said the Germans have been halted for several days on the approaches to Rostov, the big Don River port and gateway to the Caucasus. Heavy fighting continues there, it was added.

Kharkov, another industrial center some 200 miles north of Rostov, was declared in danger as a result of continuous pounding by German reinforcements brought up to the city's approaches.

Earlier, Russian counterattacks were reported to have gained slightly near Mozhaisk, 57 miles west of the capital, where the eastern and southeastern outskirts of a village was retaken from the Germans.

Red army units including one led by a woman named Krilova continued to fight their way out of areas where they were caught by the original German smash toward Moscow, these reports said. They were reformed quicky and sent back into battle.

Lessons learned in the fighting thus far are being used by Russian leaders to train a big reserve army far to the rear in eastern Siberia.

Nazi Agency Must Pay Court Fees

Transocean News Agency, which was convicted in the District Court last July of being a part of the Nazi propaganda machine in America, was beaten yesterday in its fight to avoid paying the $15,000 its prosecution cost the Government.

Justice James W. Morris refused to disturb the judgment by which Federal Judge T. Whitfield Davidson ordered the Nazi agency to pay the costs as well as a fine of $1000 for evasion of the Foreign Agents Registration Act.

The propaganda squad of Department of Justice special prosecutors called scores of witnesses, at the trial, to describe the methods by which Transocean got German language newspapers to publish a Nazi-flavored version of world news.

Besides circulating propaganda items in this country and Canada, the Government witnesses said Transocean dispatched Hitlerized accounts of what happened in the United States to an elaborate network of German-controlled newspapers and radio stations in South America.

Dr. Manfred Zapp, director of Transocean, was shown to have worked closely with the German Embassy on the one hand and with prominent Americans on the other. At least one Congressman is said to have visited his office frequently.

An objection from Defense Attorneys Daniel Cohalen, jr., and Emil Morosini, of New York, prevented disclosure of the Congressman's name in open court.

Zapp and his South American editor, Guenther Tonn, also were indicted, but were permitted to flee before the trial began, in exchange for German release of two American reporters whose lives were feared for after their arrest in retaliation for the Transocean prosecution.

Ozark Flogging

Teacher Gets Jail and Fine, Is Paroled

By the Associated Press

Hartsville, Mo., Oct. 28.—Miss Hilda Rhoads, 23-year-old school teacher, pleaded guilty today to felonious assault for the cat-o'-nine-tails flogging of a 23-year-old Ozarks Mountain guide whom she once accused of raping her.

MISS RHOADS

Circuit Judge C. H. Jackson sentenced her to six months in jail, fined her $100 and then placed her on parole.

Miss Rhoads was charged with flogging Max Caldwell while her fiance, Dr. Robert Murrell, Eldon (Mo.) osteopath, and her roommate, Miss Aldythea Keeth, watched. At the osteopath's trial, Caldwell testified Dr. Murrell forced him to submit to the whipping at gun's point.

Dr. Murrell was convicted of felonious assault and sentenced to two years in prison. His application for a new trial is pending. Miss Keeth, convicted of common assault, was fined $100.

Miss Rhoads testified at the osteopath's trial that the flogging occurred after she had told Dr. Murrell that Caldwell had attacked her in a cabin the year before. She filed a rape charge, but later withdrew it.

Juliana and Children To Visit Roosevelts

Ottawa, Oct. 28 (AP).—Princess Juliana of the Netherlands and her children, Princess Beatrix and Irene, who have been living in Ottawa, will be guests of President and Mrs. Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N. Y., during the coming weekend, it was announced today.

French Given 'Last Chance' To Catch Assassins of Nazis

By the Associated Press

Paris, Oct. 28.—A "last chance" offer to spare the lives of 100 French hostages and release war prisoners whose families turn informer on the assassins of two Germans was announced tonight by Gen. Otto von Stuelpnagel, commander of the German occupation forces.

Suspension of the "hundred-for-one" reprisal system for an indefinite period was ordered by Adolf Hitler personally, the general said, to give the French more time to deliver information on the six assassins.

One hundred French hostages already have been put to death, 50 at Nantes and 50 at Bordeaux.

Two men were said to have been involved in the actual slaying of Lieut. Col. Paul Friedrich Holtz, Nazi commandant at Nantes, and four in the killing of Dr. Hans Gottfried Reimers, German military lawyer at Bordeaux.

Meade Private Acquitted In Upper Marlboro

A circuit court jury at Upper Marlboro, Md., yesterday acquitted Linwood Ritter, 23, a Fort Meade private, of a manslaughter charge growing out of a fatal automobile crash March 20 on the Baltimore Boulevard at Ammendale.

Ritter was driver of a car which collided with a truck, causing the death of Sergt. Henry W. Stickles, also of Fort Meade.

U. S. Destiny Is to Crush Forever Threat of Nazi Aggression, Lippmann Says

Practice Freedom To Keep It Strong, Columnist Urges

Special Dispatch to The Post

Richmond, Va., Oct. 28.—America's high destiny in this century is to crush forever the threat of Nazi aggression and to become "the invulnerable center of freedom under law" for the civilized world, Walter Lippmann, prominent author and columnist, declared here today.

Lippmann, whose column appears regularly in The Washington Post, spoke at the opening of the eighteenth annual campaign of the Richmond Community Fund. He warned its leaders to keep control of the city's community services "in your own hands," and to guard against letting them become dependent on Washington, lest they be "run by Washington."

Practice of charity, Lippmann said, is one of the freedoms which must be exercised to be kept alive.

"One of the ways to keep freedom strong and fresh is to practice it everywhere continually, actively, not in words but in self-reliant deeds," he said.

Second Great Storm

"I should like to say to you that in the tremendous trials through which this Nation is destined to pass, you will face the future with greater confidence . . . if you know that at home things are in order and your duties are being done, and there is a place of calm, and of order, and of security in neighborliness, however violent the storms which rage across the world."

"For many of us," Lippmann declared, this is the second great storm. It is one more violent than the first.

"This is the second time we have had to turn from the enjoyment of our rights to the defense of our rights—from the actual pursuit of happiness to the grim business of making sure that there is a future in America, whether or not we ourselves are there to see to it, in which Americans can once again carry on the pursuit of happiness in the good life.

"The long debate—it has lasted 20 years—has come to its historic climax, and in our hearts we now know that this time there is no turning back, and that now there is no turning away from the duty which the American destiny has imposed upon us.

Position Is Critical

"For 20 years we have tried to renounce our destiny, we have tried to deny that this country—that this great continental island placed amidst the oceans of the world—that this Nation of free men—had no rights it dared insist upon, and no duties it must perform, in the maintenance of a world fit for civilized men to live in. Twenty years ago, thanks to the decisive military victory we helped to win, the United States of America were the leading power in the world. Our defenses were inviolable. Our security was unchallenged.

"Today we are confronted by an alliance of conquerors in Europe and Asia an alliance which is held in check only by the desperate courage of the British, the Chinese and the Russians. So critical is our position that we are compelled to build the greatest navy ever launched upon the seas. We are compelled to produce the mightiest air force that was ever raised into the skies. We are compelled to train great armies. We are compelled to dedicate to the purposes of war more and more of our labor and our accumulated wealth until before long we too shall be a nation totally mobilized for total war.

"That is what these 20 years have brought us to—these 20 years in which we withdrew from the peace we had won, these 20 years in which we withdrew from the reconstruction of the postwar world, these 20 years in which by laws of our own making—by so-called neutrality laws—we declared to mankind that if ever new aggressors arose, whenever new conquerors set forth, they could count on us. We declared that if the law and order of the world were again challenged, we would not resist; that we would clear the path for the aggressors; that we would in fact help them; that we would deny to their victims the right to buy from us weapons for their own defense, the right even to pledge their assets as security for loans with which to buy food to sustain themselves. We declared to all prospective conquerors that they could be as lawless as they chose, and we would not object; that when the time came for them to strike by strangling their victims, we would be their partners—supplementing their lawless blockade by our embargoes on goods, and money, and ships.

Policy of Isolation

"This policy which played so decisive a part in wrecking the peace of the world and of destroying the perfect security we had won 20 years ago is the policy of isolation. This country's affairs in all great matters of defense and foreign policy have been determined by the isolationists. They have ruled this country for 20 years. They have ruled it, never permitting any President from Harding to Roosevelt, or any Secretary of State from Hughes to Hull, to depart, except indirectly and partially and hesitantly, from their vetoes, their prohibitions, their negations, and their refusals.

"Theirs is the responsibility for the consequences. The policy we have followed for these 20 disastrous years has not been Woodrow Wilson's policy. It has not been Henry Stimson's policy. It has not been Cordell Hull's policy. It has not been the policy of any of those who are now called interventionists and warmongers. We have had 20 years of the policy which is still advocated by the America First Committee, of the policy of the irreconcilable isolationist Senators, and we are where we are because for 20 years we have let them lead us to the brink of disaster.

"Yet even today, when as the direct consequence of their policy we are conscripting our men and our wealth, and are facing war in both our oceans, and subversive conspiracy in this hemisphere, there are still some—though fewer every day—who still do not understand that this country can never hope to return to a normal way of life unless the aggressors are decisively defeated.

"Yet it is obvious that we can never return to a normal life if the Nazis conquer the world—if we have to live in a world on such terms as we are able to make with the conquerors. But it is equally true that we can never return to a normal way of life if this war ends without the defeat and collapse of the Nazis. For if they emerge from this war holding their conquests and with their military power intact, then we shall have to go on year after year arming to the teeth, conscripting our young men, devoting to the business of war all our available resources and our whole energy. We shall never be able to demobilize. We shall never cease to stand on guard. We shall never be able to relax our vigilance. For since Hitler will never disarm or even demobilize, since no promise he makes can be believed, we shall live in a permanent state of emergency, compelled to be ready always for sudden, unannounced, undeclared total war.

"Living that way year after year, always anxious, always on our guard, always threatened, always armed, what would become of our personal and private lives? What could any young man look forward to except war or everlasting preparation for war? Who could make a home? Who could plan a career? Who could have an ambition? Who could build a house? Who could go into business? Who could think, study, invent or create except in the service of war? Who could hope to make the lives of our people easier, more spacious, more secure?

"Living in a world where there was no peace, in a world where a terrific power to strike suddenly and violently was in the hands of absolutely lawless and ruthless men, we should be condemned—merely in order to survive—to let all the good things of life be devoured in order that we might at least have the strength to resist.

That prospect is not good enough for Americans, and if I am any judge of the rising temper of our people, they are saying to themselves that there is no good reason why the future of the world and the future of this country shall be determined by Adolf Hitler and his accomplices. They are saying that this country is something, and that it has a history, and that it has a destiny, that it has power and that it has self-respect, and that it now means to be listened to, and listened to respectfully, as to what kind of world this is to be.

"I think we have decided that unless we make a future that suits us, we have no future. I think we have decided that as we are capable of being the strongest of the civilized powers of the world, so we intend to be the strongest and to use our strength to make sure that our descendants do not have to live in terror, or live always armed and on the defensive, and that they do not have to do what we have had to do—twice in a lifetime—to put aside all the things we care about in order to crush an intolerable threat to all the things we hold most precious.

"For 20 years we have been guided by our fears and our weaknesses and our doubts. I think that now we shall be moved by our strength and our pride and our faith. I think we shall be seeing that it is the American destiny in this century to bring law and order and peace to the civilized world—to become the invulnerable center of freedom under law, the strong friend of all nations which live under law, the implacable foe of tyrants, the partner of all who resist them.

"It is a great destiny. It is ours, not in the least because we have superior virtue, but because by the facts of our geography and the position of our continent and the great movement of the tides of history, we have come to occupy in the modern world the place which Rome, in the center of her seas, occupied in the ancient world. It is a hard destiny. It is a high destiny. And though once in our generation we have sought to deny it and refuse it, it is the American destiny, and in the Book of Fate it is written that this destiny must now be fulfilled."

Safe in England After Fleeing Nazis

The girl, whose name was withheld because her family is still in the occupied zone, fled when German secret police sought her for defacing Nazi posters with "V" for victory slogans

Bioff Denies Extortion Attempt, Calls Film Heads Friends

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 28.—William Bioff, West Coast labor leader, today described himself as a close personal friend of film executives as he denied in direct examination that any money he collected from producers was to prevent strikes in the industry or that he sought to obtain two million dollars, or any lesser amount, annually from four major companies under strike threats.

Bioff, on trial with George E. Browne, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes (AFL), on charges of extorting $550,000 from the four companies, said that for several years before his indictment he was closely associated with Joseph Schenck, former chairman of Twentieth-Century-Fox Film Corp., and Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers.

His meetings with Schenck occurred at both the studio and Schenck's Hollywood home, with frequent dinners together, Bioff said.

The defense placed in evidence an autographed photo of Schenck, inscribed: "To my friend, Willie Affectionately, Joe Schenck."

To show his friendship with Warner, Bioff testified he was a frequent visitor at the executive's Santa Monica home and San Fernando Ranch. He recalled meeting Actress Claudette Colbert, and quoted Warner as saying:

"Claudette, this is Willie Bioff. He's a leader of I. A. T. S. E. He's a nice fellow and you ought to join his union."

Bioff added that Warner told him at a private luncheon that the movie industry had formed an organization of employes who attended Communist meetings, and that Federal authorities were investigating Communist activities in the film colony.

Bioff testified earlier that he received 1000 shares of stock at a cut-rate price as a bonus after acting as a $1,000,000 messenger boy for Schenck. He also said Schenck once gave him $8000 from "poker winnings" and that his expenses were paid on vacation trips to South America and Europe.

The defendant told the jury yesterday that he collected $1,000,000 from film officials in various cities. He said Nicholas Schenck, president of Lowe's, Inc., asked him to make collections and transfers with the explanation that "the industry was being sandbagged in all parts of the country by Legislatures."

JANE PICKENS' One-Dish Pork Chop Meal

6 pork chops
1 tablespoon shortening
2 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons grated onion
1 tablespoon Lea & Perrins Sauce
1 can tomato soup (condensed)
½ cup water
4 cups cooked noodles

Brown chops in shortening until golden brown, season with half the salt. Combine remaining salt, onion, Lea & Perrins Sauce, tomato soup and water. Place noodles in casserole, add tomato soup mixture. Arrange chops overlapping around inner edge of casserole; cover and bake in moderate oven (350°F.) for 1½ hours. This makes 4 to 6 servings.

Here's a delightful dinner duet...plump pork chops singing harmony with tender noodles, with Lea & Perrins Sauce lending the professional, blue-ribbon chef's touch to the glamorous combination.

Raid Wardens Meet Tomorrow

Group Selected At Mass Meeting To Get Instructions

Deputy air raid wardens and chairmen of permanent community defense committees, selected Saturday at a series of city-wide mass meetings will meet tomorrow at 7 p. m. in the District Building for special instructions, it was announced last night.

The conference call was issued by Commissioner John Russell Young, District defense coordinator. A suggested program for air raid protection of the Capital will be discussed, he announced.

Meanwhile plans for the coordination of air raid protection efforts in the metropolitan area of Washington were discussed yesterday at a meeting of Federal, Maryland, Virginia and District defense chiefs.

Bolles Called Session

The meeting was called by Col. Lemuel Bolles, executive director of the District Defense Council, to "iron out" jurisdictional problems in event of an emergency. It was held in the District Building.

Although no specific program was formulated pending further conferences, it was agreed that air raid wardens operating on the borders of State and District territories would cooperate in aiding each other.

It was tentatively decided to establish a working area with a radius of 20 miles in which wardens in one jurisdiction could call for help on wardens in an adjacent section.

Col. Bolles said that State and District wardens assigned to border areas have been instructed to know the names and assignment posts of fellow wardens in "next door" communities.

Others Listed

In addition to Col. Bolles, those attending yesterday's session were Lieut. Col. Henry S. Barrett, chief air raid warden for Maryland; Edward L. Kusterer, senior executive, Virginia Defense Council; Charles Harrison Mann, chairman, steering division, Northern Virginia Regional Defense Council.

Conrad H. Reid, assistant chief warden, metropolitan area for Virginia; J. H. Wyse, assistant coordinator, Virginia Defense Council; Mrs. Ralph A. Wells, executive secretary, Maryland Council for Defense, Silver Spring; Harry H. McFarlin, assistant chief warden, Prince Georges County, Md.; Herbert Friede, superintendent of the District fire alarm system, and Maj. William A. Brewer, of the Federal Office of Civilian Defense.

U. S. Official's Son Off On Year's Odyssey

Laredo, Tex., Oct. 28 (AP).—Robert F. O'Connell, of Washington, departed by bus today for Mexico City to begin a horseback ride through Central and South America in quest of adventure and fun. The 22-year-old son of Ambrose O'Connell, First Assistant Postmaster General, expects to be on the trail a year.

O'Connell, who weighs only 130 pounds, carried letters from his father and other Government officials. He also had a release from a Selective Service Board at Galveston.

Money Talks and Thus Settles Argument

Tulsa, Okla. (AP).—C. J. Allen overheard a couple of soda fountain girls talking about currency.

"I don't believe the Government puts out those $100 and $500 bills you hear about because I never saw one," said one.

Allen went to the bank and got a $1,000 bill. Returning to the fountain he ordered a 5 cent drink and casually threw the bill on the counter. Then he turned his back.

There was no sound for a few seconds.

"Then I turned around and the poor salesgirl had picked up the bill and practically swooned," says Allen.

High Marine Corps Officers Are Promoted

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday nominated two Marine Corps brigadier generals for temporary promotion to major general and approved the recommendations of a selection board for the advancement of 31 other Marine officers to high rank.

Elevated to major general were Brig. Gen. Charles F. B. Price, commander of the Pacific Department, and Brig. Gen. Philip H. Torrey, commander of the First Division, at New River, N. C.

Five colonels were selected for promotion to brigadier generals, including Col. William H. Rupertus, a native of Washington and commander of the Marine Barracks here until a year go. The other colonels chosen for advancement as vacancies occur were Col. Joseph C. Fegan, Col. Harry Schmidt, Col. Henry L. Larsen nad Col. Harry K. Pickett.

Among the 27 lieutenant colonels selected for promotion was Lieut. Col. John W. Thomason, jr., well known writer and illustrator. The others were:

First Division Avenges Last Year's Mauling by the 29th

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Correspondent

Monroe, N. C., Oct. 28.—The First Division took revenge today on the Twenty-ninth for the mauling it received at Ogdensburg last year and tonight its Twenty-sixth and Sixteenth Infantry Regiments had ripped the 176th Infantry to shreds.

There were several reasons for this state of affairs. Lack of blank ammunition permitted units to pass each other in the tangled swamps unnoticed, though their patrols were fighting hot and heavy. For the same lack of ammunition, the attention of umpires was not called to the scene of combats which had a decisive effect on the outcome of large scale tactics.

Squads nad platoons, crawling through the clinging underbrush, failed to obey umpire's signals because they could not see them. Radio fell down repeatedly, delaying messages which would have changed the course of battle.

Finally, Maj. Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall, commanding the Blue Second Corps, placed only four regiments in his front line to receive the assault of two divisions. Though this disposition placed at least two of his regiments in precarious positions, it absorbed the shock of the Red Sixth Corps' attack.

At nightfall the Sixteenth and Twenty-Sixth Infantry Regiments of the First Division and elements of the Twenty-Sixth Division were south of the Rocky River, the prize for which the Second Corps was fighting. But they were so entangled with units of the Blue Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth Divisions that umpires will work late into the night unscrambling them.

With the bulk of his force still north of the Rocky and his mission to prevent the Blues from crossing, it is unlikely that Maj. Gen. Carl Truesdell, commanding the Sixth Corps, will leave his scattered regiments across overnight if he can collect and recall them. They have pressed a strong reconnaissance in force against the Blues and have served to delay them 24 hours, a reasonable day's work.

Shortly after noon today, the Twenty-sixth Infantry pushed parties over the river to string a line from north bank to south. Riflemen and machine-gunners of Company K, clinging to this line, forded the swift current, landing on the south bank to fall into the hands of a platoon of Company C, 176th Infantry.

The remainder of the Third Battalion then marched across by a highway bridge on which the 111th Field Artillery, backing up the 176th Infantry, had been concentrating fire since 9:30 a. m. The bridge still stood at 1 p. m. because no official artillery fire radio marker could be found to mark the bridge destroyed.

Even the capture of the platoon which forded the river came to nothing. Umpires ruled that it wasn't captured because the company which gathered it in had been under machine-gun fire during the entire time it filed into position. The 176th claimed the Twenty-sixth had been likewise under machine-gun fire. So the prisoners were sent back to their battalion, the casualties in C Company were restored to life and the river fording was declared not to have occurred, a decision difficult for the men whose wet shoes squashed along the road to understand.

This battalion, once across the river, very nearly cut the 176th in two and established itself at New Salem, an important crossroads on an elevation which dominated the battlefield. Coming down from the river toward the little town, its files equipped for war in any corner of the globe with all modern weapons of this country's Army, had nothing in its front but one anti-tank gun.

Wilson to Hear Laundry Case

Charles S. Wilson, attorney, yesterday was named a master to hold hearings for the United States Court of Appeals on contempt of court charges against the Arcade-Sunshine laundry company and a group of officers and employes.

The National Labor Relations Board charged that the laundry and some of its officers and employes discriminated against union members and committed other acts forbidden by a decree.

Lend-Lease Powers Given New Agency

Copyright by New York Times

President Roosevelt yesterday established an entirely new and more independent organization for administering the lend-lease program as he signed the new $5,985,000,000 appropriation measure and gave Edward R. Stettinius, jr., blanket powers to disperse the new fund for aiding the enemies of Hitler.

The President issued an executive order creating an office of Lend-Lease Administration in the Office of Emergency Management and giving Stettinius the authority to name the entire administrative staff, including deputy and assistant administrators. Hitherto, the lend-lease program has been administered under a division of defense aid reports in the OEM, which is now abolished.

The whole effect of this executive order, and of a letter to Stettinius, putting it into effect, is to make the lend-lease program more independent of Presidential controls.

In addition, the executive order gives Stettinius, who at first could only allocate 300 million dollars in lend-lease funds without approval by the President and later only 800 million dollars worth, the right to deal with the entire new appropriation with a minimum of executive interference.

The President explained in his order that he was acting under his general powers and under the Defense Act of March 11, 1941, and the Defense-Aid Act of May 27, 1941, in decreeing that there "shall be in the Office of Emergency Management and Office of Lend-Lease Administration with an administrator to be appointed by the President.

"Subject to such policies as the President may from time to time prescribe, the administrator is authorized and directed to exercise any power or authority conferred upon the President by that Act (March 11, 1941) and by the Defense-Aid Supplemental Act . . . with respect to any nation whose defense the President shall have found to be vital to the defense of the United States.

General agreements with such countries regarding the terms under which lend-lease aid is to be obtained are to be arranged by the State Department and the Economic Defense Board headed by Secretary Wallace, and the new OLLA, the order revealed.

Kearny Hunting Submarine When Hit, President Discloses

By Charles Hurd

Copyright by New York Times

The unprecedented survival of the destroyer Kearny after a torpedo attack which almost cut the ship in two, killing 11 men, was due to factors in the new-type design that became known only yesterday through an analysis prepared by the Navy Department's Bureau of Ships.

This report became available concurrently with a statement by President Roosevelt at a press conference that the Kearny was attacked while engaged on a hunt for submarines which had attacked a convoy in waters southwest of Iceland. The Kearny, Mr. Roosevelt said, was among several other ships.

The President was reticent about details of the attack, but these were made clear in a memorandum prepared by naval authorities and approved by Rear Admiral S. M. Robinson. It was this report to which James V. Forrestal, Undersecretary of the Navy, referred Monday night in Philadelphia when he revealed that the Kearny steamed 400 miles under its own power to an American port.

"Top-Heavy" Class

The survival of the Kearny, which was among the highly criticized class of "top-heavy" destroyers, appeared to be due to the fact that it had two entirely independent engine rooms and boiler rooms, one set ranged behind the other, as well as extraordinary stability.

According to the official analysis, the ship's power was generated by two separate plants in four rooms. From stem to stern these rooms were ranged as boiler room, engine room, boiler room and engine room.

The torpedo hit the forward boiler room.

An authoritative summary of the result of the attack and the manner in which the Kearny survived follows:

The force of the explosion not only opened up the starboard side of the ship but blew out the deck overhead and caused damage to deckhouse and bridge above. The forward bulkhead of the boiler room was broken through, flooding the next compartment forward, but the after bulkhead, although deflected, held firmly, leaving the aft engine room intact.

Deck Plating Cut

The ship was cut completely around from the turn of the bilge on the starboard side, two-thirds of the way across the main deck plating except for the heavy deck edge and side plating on the starboard side. This plating which supplies the main longitudinal strength of the ship, held intact.

All personnel in the forward boiler room were lost, as were men on deck in the vicinity of the explosion, while others on the starboard side of the bridge were seriously injured.

While the performance of the ship itself is a source of the utmost gratification, the summary said, the handling of the situation by the commanding officer of the vessel was of an equally high standard.

Socialists Scored As Revolutionaries

Minneapolis, Oct. 28 (AP).—United States District Attorney Victor E. Anderson, outlining the Government's case against 28 persons charged with seditious conspiracy in Federal Court here today, assailed the Socialist Workers Party as bent on revolution, not only in this country but throughout the world.

The Government charges that all 28 defendants, arrested after a raid on the party headquarters in the Twin Cities last June, were associated with the party.

The Socialist Workers Party, Anderson declared in his opening statement, was an instrument of Leon Trotsky, Communist leader.

were being held for investigation.

Two other men who participated in the robbery of the two bank messengers were sought last night by police and FBI agents in New York and Philadelphia.

Traced Through Auto

A flashy new automobile, bought with $1500 cash in Charlotte, led to the arrest of the suspect. He was seized there by Detective Sergts. Michael Mahaney, Harry Britton, Robert J. Maghan, Thomas McVearry, Chief Hepburn and two Department of Justice agents.

Maghan and Britton obtained information that an underworld character known as "Four Roses," suddenly had gone on a spending spree and purchased a new sedan.

The license numbers of the automobile were obtained by Maghan and Britton and an FBI agent, and the car was traced to a Charlotte car dealer. Through the latter, Sanders' identity was established and arrest followed. He and his three companions were returned here Monday. Police described the three as "just friends helping him spend the money."

Announcement of the arrest was made by S. K. McKee, special agent in charge of the Washington Field Office, FBI and Maj. Edward J. Kelly, chief of police, at the former's office.

Had $2280 on Person

It was said that Sanders, a native of Georgia, had in his possession $2280 and an automatic shotgun.

His record disclosed previous arrests, dating back to 1932, for burglary, bootlegging, automobile theft and jail escape, police said. He served 18 months in the Atlanta Penitentiary for escaping from Federal authorities at Jacksonville, Fla., it was said, and a term with a Georgia road gang in 1940.

Sander's attorney, James J. Laughlin, petitioned Justice David A. Pine in District Court yesterday morning for his client's release on a habeas corpus writ. Assistant District Attorney David Margolius told the court the Government had no objection to the man's release and Justice Pine so ruled.

But before Sanders could leave the courtroom, Commissioner Cullen's warrant was served and he was taken into custody by Chief Deputy Marshal Michael Kearny and arraigned before Commissioner Turnage.

Officials Cooperated

Sanders, investigators said, had been in and out of Washington many times during the past few years and "at least twice" since the bank robbery. He will be prosecuted under the Federal Bank Robbery Act, officials said.

Close cooperation between the FBI, Washington, Prince Georges County and Maryland State policemen, brought about the suspect's arrest, McKee said yesterday.

The robbery of the Maryland bank resulted in the biggest "haul" ever obtained in this area, according to police records.

Two messengers, Jack Dempsey, 17, and Van Stauber, 18, were held up by three men at 8:45 a. m. September 15, while they were driving toward the Washington Sanitary Commission with a pay roll. The loot of the three bandits also included $75,000 worth of nonnegotiable checks.

Actors to Make Flying Tour of Defense Bases

The "Flying Showboat," carrying a troupe of top-ranking Hollywood and Broadway stars, will leave New York Friday on a whirlwind aerial tour of Atlantic and Caribbean bases to launch a new Army-Navy entertainment program.

Aboard the Army transport, according to the War Department announcement, will be John Garfield, the actor; Oliver Hardy, Stan Laurel and Chico Marx, the comedians; Mitzi Mayfair, the dancer; Jane Pickens and Benay Venuta, the singers. First stop of the "Flying Showboat's" two-week tour will be Puerto Rico.

The flying trip is being sponsored by the Camp Shows, Inc., a nonprofit agency created at the direction of the Citizens Committee for the Army and Navy and the United Service Organizations. Heading Camp Shows, Inc., is Actor-Producer Eddie Dowling.

Top entertainers of Broadway and Hollywood are being enrolled in this new program, intended to reach all the camps and bases, and to give the soldiers and sailors "live" shows.

The shows will be routed from New York on a grand circuit which will provide 186 Army camps and Navy stations with a variety of theatrical performance once every two weeks.

Because cold weather will force the shows indoors, where the smaller audiences will cause an increase in production costs, a fee of 35 cents will be charged to insure an adequate program.

XSB2C-1 —It's the Navy's new dive-bombing sensation—Test Pilot Bill Ward at the stick

HOW DOES IT FEEL to dive straight down from several miles up? Bill Ward knows. He's the test pilot who put this amazing new Curtiss dive bomber through her paces for the Navy. That's Bill {in the picture at the left, above} smoking his {and the Navy man's} favorite cigarette. He'll tell you—

"YOUR EARS CRACKLE and pop. You think," says Bill Ward, "the whole world's trying to squeeze the daylights out of you. You think maybe it has, if things go a little foggy or dark when you're pulling out of your dive." After a ride like that, a cool, flavorful Camel tastes mighty welcome.

NOTHING COMES EVEN CLOSE TO CAMELS WITH ME. THEY'RE MILDER BY FAR. AND, MAN, WHAT A SWELL FLAVOR than the average of the 4 other largest-selling cigarettes tested—less than any of them—according to independent scientific tests of the smoke itself!

The smoke of slower-burning Camels contains

• BY BURNING 25% SLOWER than the average of the 4 other largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them—Camels also give you a smoking plus equal, on the average, to 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Test Pilot Bill Ward shares the Navy man's preference for the cigarette of costlier tobaccos... Camel

SPEAKING of tests, Bill Ward adds: "Those recent laboratory tests showing less nicotine in the smoke of Camels only go to prove what I've always found in my smoking—Camels are milder in lots of ways. That's what counts with me."

Light up a Camel yourself. You'll know in the first few flavorful puffs why, with men in the service*... with the millions behind them... it's Camels.

INSTALMENT XVII

Reasons Behind French Collapse

(June 26-July 18, 1940)

BERLIN, June 26, 1940—Returned from Paris. Approaching the German border towards sundown, we avoided the Maastricht-Aachen Road because the German Embassy in Brussels had told our Germans that the Reich customs people there would be very strict with us; and our two cars were loaded down with booty purchased with marks forced on the French at the thievish rate of 20 francs to one mark. The German officers and officials had raided Paris.

SHIRER

We drove around for hours trying to find a lonely customs post. An officer of the high command—one of the most decent Germans I know—kept pointing out to me how embarrassing it would be for him, in uniform, to be caught red-handed bringing in so much booty. He said his fellow officers had been abusing their opportunities so scandalously that Hitler himself a few days before had issued a blunt order to the customs guards to seize everything found on returning officers or men.

Finally we arrived at the German border. Our chauffeur, a private, who had certainly bought his share of the booty in Paris, became so nervous he almost ran down and killed the customs officer. But our high command officer spoke convincingly and fast, and we got through with our plunder.

BERLIN, June 27—To sum up. From what I've seen in Belgium and France and from talks I've had with Germans and French in both countries and with French, Belgian and British prisoners along the roads, it seems fairly clear to me that:

France did not fight.

If she did, there is little evidence of it. Not only I, but several of my friends have driven from the German border to Paris and back, along all the main roads. None of us saw any evidence of serious fighting.

The fields of France are undisturbed. There was no fighting on any sustained line. Even on the roads there is little sign that the French did any more than harry their enemy. Roads make ideal targets for artillery. And yet I have not seen one yard of road in northern France which shows the effects of artillery fire.

The French blew up many bridges. But they also left many strategic ones standing, especially over the Meuse.

At no point in France and at only two or three in Belgium did I see a road properly mined, or, for that matter, mined at all.

D. B. in Paris, having seen the war from the other side, concludes that there was treachery in the French army from top to bottom—the Fascists at the top, the Communists at the bottom. And from German and French sources alike I heard many stories of how the Communists had received their orders from their party not to fight, and didn't . . .

Many French prisoners say they never saw a battle. When one seemed imminent, orders came to retreat. It was this constant order to retreat before a battle had been joined, or at least before it had been fought out, that broke the Belgian resistance.

The Germans themselves say that in one tank battle they were attacked by a large fleet of French tanks after they had themselves run out of ammunition. The German commander ordered a retreat. After the German tanks had retired some distance to the rear, with the French following them only very cautiously, the Germans received orders to turn about and simulate an attack, firing automatic pistols or anything they had out of their tanks, and executing complicated maneuvers. This they did, and the French, seeing an armada of tanks descend upon them, though these were without ammunition, turned and fled.

Another mystery: After the Germans broke through the Franco-Belgian border from Maubeuge to Sedan, they tell that they continued right on across northern France to the sea hardly firing a shot. When they got to the sea, Boulogne and Calais were defended mostly by the British. The whole French army seemed paralyzed, unable to provide the least action, the slightest counter-thrust.

True, the Germans had air superiority. True, the British didn't provide the air power they could and should have provided. Yet even that does not explain the French debacle.

In the first place the French, as though drugged, had no will to fight, even when their soil was invaded by their most hated enemy. There was a complete collapse of French society and of the French soul. Secondly, there was either treachery or criminal negligence in the high command and among the high officers in the field.

Two other considerations:

First, the quality of the Allied and German commanding officers. The commanding officers of the German army are, for the most part, mere youngsters compared to the French generals we have seen. The latter strike you as ailing old men who stopped thinking new thoughts 20 years ago. The German generals are a complete contrast. They have the characteristics of youth—dash, daring, imagination, initiative and physical prowess.

All the big German tank attacks were led in person by commanding generals. They did not sit in the safety of a dug-out ten miles behind the lines and direct by radio. They sat in their tanks in the thick of the fray and directed by radio and signalling from where they could see how the battle was going. And as was to be expected from youth, these young generals did not hesitate at times to do the unorthodox thing, to take chances.

The great trouble with the Allied command—especially the French—was that it was dominated by old men who made the fatal mistake of thinking that this war would be fought on the same general lines as the last war. It wasn't that these tired old men had to adapt themselves to a revolutionary kind of warfare overnight. One of the mysteries of the campaign in the west is that the Allied command seems never to have bothered to learn the lesson of the Polish campaign. For in Poland the German army revealed the tactics it would use in the lowlands and France.

The second consideration is the fantastically good morale of the German army. I remember my surprise at Kiel last Christmas to find an entirely new esprit in the Germany navy. This esprit was based on a camaraderie between officers and men. The same is true of the German army.

I felt it from the first day I came in contact with the army at the front. The German officer no longer represents—or at least is conscious of representing—a class or caste. And the men in the ranks feel this. They feel like members of one great family.

One reason for the excellent morale of the troops is their realization that they and not the civilians back home are receiving the best treatment the nation can afford. They get the pick of the food and clothing available. In the winter the homes of Germany may not be heated, but the barracks are.

Hitler once said that as a private of the last war he would see to it that the men in the new army benefited by the lessons he had learned. And in this one case, at least, he seems to have kept his promise.

BERLIN, July 15—The German press today informed its readers that German troops of all arms "now stand ready for the attack on Britain. The date of the attack will be decided by the Fuehrer alone." One hears the high command is not keen about it, but that Hitler insists.

BERLIN, July 18—For the first time since 1871, German troops staged a victory parade through the Brandenburg Gate today. Stores and factories closed, by order, and the whole town turned out to cheer.

I mingled among the crowds in the Pariserplatz. A holiday spirit ruled completely. Nothing martial about the mass of the people here. They were just out for a good time. Looking at them, I wondered if any of them understood what was going on in Europe, if they had an inkling that their joy, that this victorious parade of the goose-steppers, was based on a great tragedy for millions of others whom these troops and the leaders of these people had enslaved. Not one in a thousand, I wager, gave the matter a thought.

Hitler will speak in the Reichstag tomorrow, we hear. There is some speculation whether it will be an occasion to announce a new blitzkrieg—this time against Britain—or an offer of peace.

Odessa's Defenders Fought to Last in Streets, Writer Finds

By Hugo Speck

International News Service Staff Writer

Odessa, Oct. 28.—Most of the Russians who defended Odessa street by street before it fell two weeks ago escaped to new fronts in naval convoys, I learned on a visit to the charred and battered city today.

Once beautiful Odessa, queen of Russia's Black Sea ports, now is a shattered mass of pitiful ruins, with ingeniously hidden mines and bombs, left behind by the Russians when they fled, threatening to destroy much of what is left.

Every building bears marks from the siege—scars from shell splinters, machine gun bullets, or bombs.

That the Russians fought street by street until the last was shown by the still-standing barricades of sand bags, cobblestones and earth dug out of the streets.

Large portions of Odessa were flooded by geysers from bomb-blasted water mains.

One tremendous explosion in the center of Odessa, followed by several smaller detonations, set afire one of the town's largest buildings. The flames, whipped by a smart wind, leaped into the sky and threateneded to spread through the immediate area.

One Rumanian officer told me:

"The entire city is underlaced with catacombs which have been mined. I wouldn't be surprised if an entire section of the city blew up at any minute."

Even the Rumanian commander of the city and his staff had moved onto the sidewalk alongside a park, afraid that the building they occupied had been mined.

They moved just as the edifice next door was blown up.

The port of Odessa, once bustling with grain-laden ships, was filled with all kinds of destroyed craft, from canoes to freighters.

In the gutted buildings people were scratching around to see what they could find—and most of them evidently were looking for bodies of members of their own families buried in the wreckage.

Streetcars stood motionless in their tracks. Telephone and trolley wires hung listlessly from their useless posts in barricaded and water-clogged streets.

How fierce and determined Soviet resistance proved in defending Odessa became evident long before I reached the city.

A Rumanian officer informed me that, before yielding the city, most of the Russians—even civilians—escaped in convoys, and that a house-to-house search was necessary to ferret out the remainder.

Military Police Stop Josephus Daniels

Pinehurst, N. C., Oct. 28 (AP).—Josephus Daniels, United States Ambassador to Mexico, was told he was under arrest by military traffic policemen near here today when he was hastening to keep a speaking engagement.

Military policemen said the chauffeur was driving more than the 35 miles an hour permitted within the first Army's maneuver area. After the Ambassador had identified himself and pleaded ignorance of the speed regulation, his car was permitted to pass through the lines.

Sentry Is Wounded At Embassy in Peiping

Peiping, Oct. 28 (AP).—A United States Marine sentry on duty at the main gate of the American Embassy suffered a flesh wound early today when an unidentified Oriental dressed in civilan clothes alighted from a jinrikkisha and fired four pistol shots at him from behind.

Lieut. Col. W. E. Ashurst, commander of the Marine guard, said a complete investigation was being made. The sentry returned the fire, but the assailant escaped into the darkness.

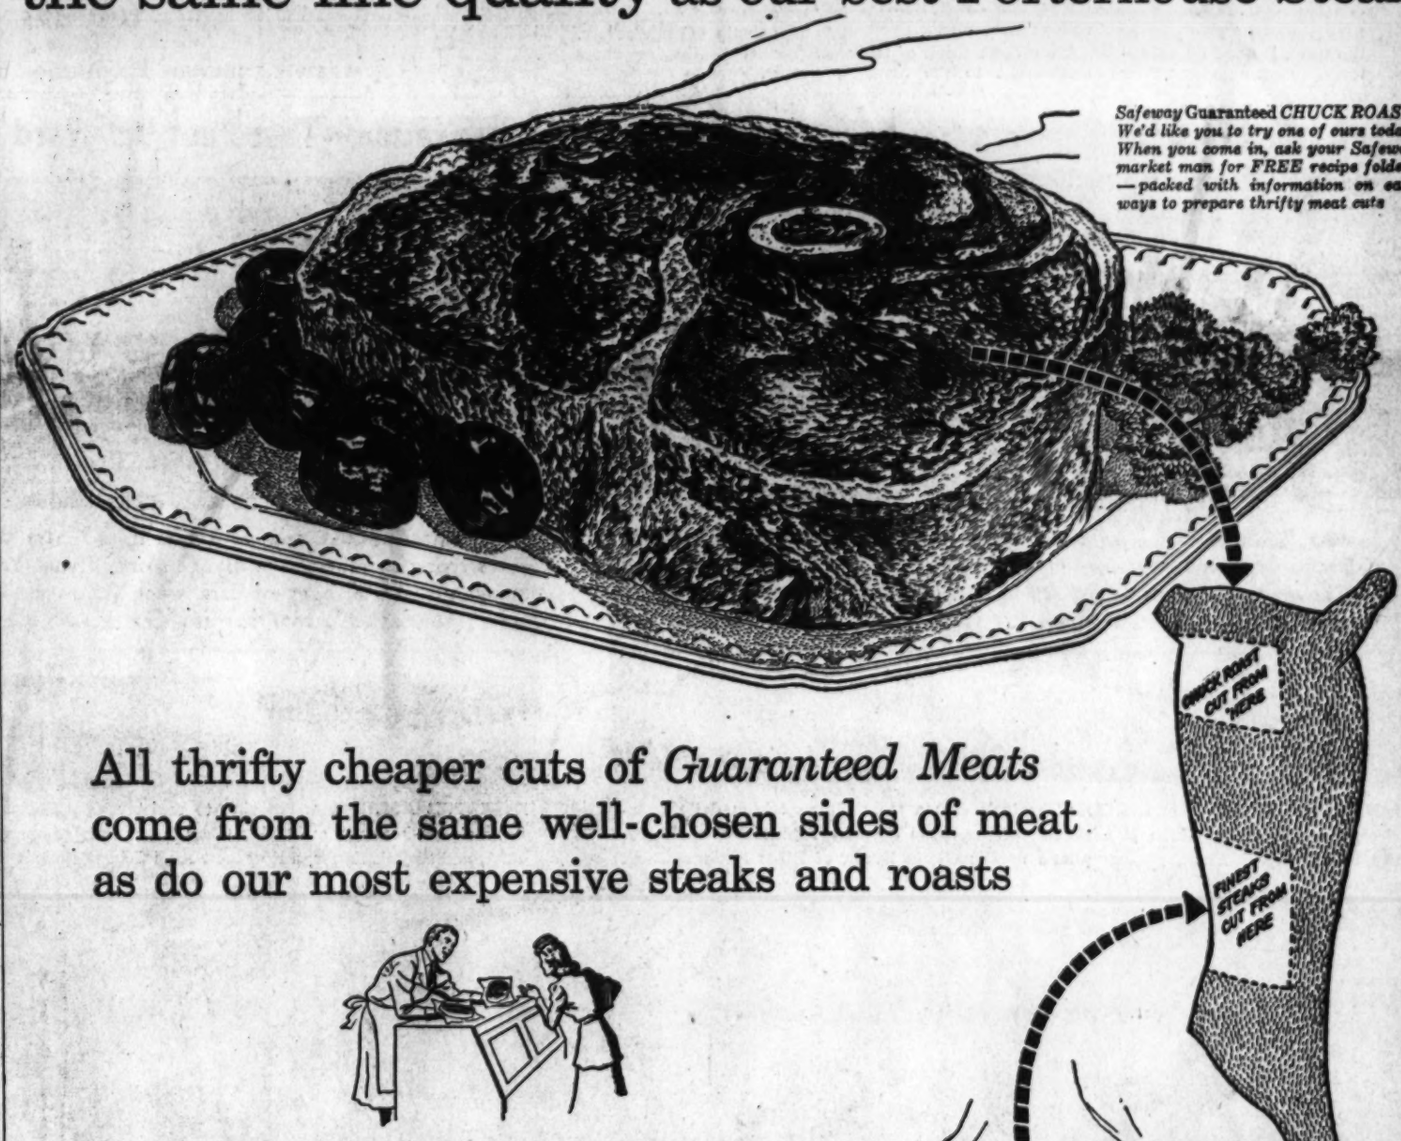
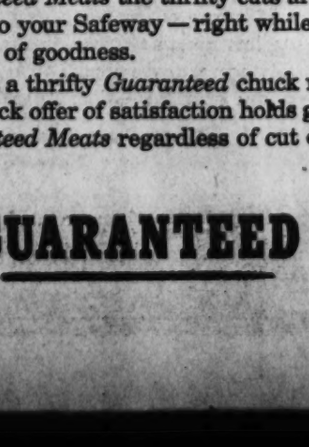
At Safeway, Guaranteed CHUCK ROAST is the same fine quality as our best Porterhouse Steak



Safeway Guaranteed CHUCK ROAST. We'd like you to try one of ours today. When you come in, ask your Safeway market man for FREE recipe folders—packed with information on easy ways to prepare thrifty meat cuts

All thrifty cheaper cuts of Guaranteed Meats come from the same well-chosen sides of meat as do our most expensive steaks and roasts



Under this plan you get tender meat, juicy and fine in flavor, regardless of the Safeway cut you buy or its cost. If any cut at any price fails to please you—your money back

Here is how it works. Under our Guaranteed Meats plan, all the meats we buy are of better grades only. The better grades of steer beef, of lamb, pork and veal.

So ALL our beef cuts, for example, are carved from these better grades only. This means a thrifty cut like chuck roast is carved from the identical quality of steer beef as our best steaks.

Every low-cost cut has been correctly aged before delivery to your Safeway store.

Likewise, thrifty cuts are protected by constant temperature control just as are our most costly cuts. And like all Guaranteed Meats the thrifty cuts are delivered promptly to your Safeway—right while they are at their top of goodness.

Come and test out a thrifty Guaranteed chuck roast today. Our money-back offer of satisfaction holds good on all Safeway Guaranteed Meats regardless of cut or cost.

Here is our standing offer to you

Cook any cut of our Guaranteed Meat the way you prefer it. Test it for marvelous juiciness, tenderness, flavor. If you don't like it for any reason—all your money back, without fuss or quibble.

To secure refund, simply write your name and address on a piece of paper and take it to the Safeway market where you bought the meat.

Cinderella Thespians . . .

By Robert Harvey
Post Staff Writer

The hands of the office clock pointing to closing time are these days pointing to the backstage glamour of the theater and the excitement of an approaching curtain time to hundreds of Washington office workers.

From behind their filing cases and typewriters, and occasionally from behind their high school desks, they are stepping into the two repertoire companies of the Washington Civic Theater. They are acting, painting scenery, throwing light switches, sewing costumes, attending dramatics classes and sometimes doubling at several of these. After office hours, they're in the show business.

Though actually 5 years old, the Civic Theater is equipped with a full-scale organization and a complete season for the first time this year. With the opening of its current show, Kaufman and Hart's "The American Way," a few weeks ago, they launched a 30-week season, with one company in production and one company in rehearsal for alternate 3-week runs.

The theater is operated with a paid staff of only three—Director Leon Askin, Technical Director Henry C. Pearson and General Manager Ann Starr, all of whom have professional backgrounds. The rest of the work is done by volunteers, who supplement their labor with a $5 subscription fee to help foot the bills.

There are 300 of these stage aspirants — not all amateurs, for many have dabbled in professional work previously. They make up the entire production staff from leading ladies down to usherettes, and are divided into the two companies.

Typical of the 300 are two of the principal characters in the current show, Dorothy

DOROTHY VAN LIEW FLYNN
Leading Lady Makes Up

Van Liew Flynn and Edward Stevlingson. During the day, both of them are statistical clerks; Dorothy in the Treasury and Edward in the CAA. Both made their first appearance under the Kleig lights in college dramatics.

They don't think of their attachment to the theater particularly as a stepping stone to fame and fortune or the fulfillment of a lifetime ambition.

"I guess you'd just call it an avocation," Dorothy explained yesterday at the theater's operating headquarters, 2020 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest. "It's something different, something that we love to do and are very much interested in. No, I'm not very anxious for a professional stage career—but I guess I wouldn't turn a paying part down if somebody offered it."

Nor does Edward plan on leaving the office for the stage. However, he does think of the possibility of using his stage experience in radio work. Once he threw up his job to go after radio work in New York.

"But you can see how it came out—I'm back in the Government," he points out ruefully.

Right now, half of the personnel is busy with "The American Way," which will finish its run at the Wardman Park Theater on Saturday. The other half is preparing for the November 5 opening night of "Thunder Rock," Robert Ardrey's fantasy-drama of a newspaperman who retires to a lighthouse to escape the ills of the world.

That is, after the Cinderella hour of 5 o'clock they are. Before that, they're just a gang of Government and private office workers. After that, they're show people.

Roosevelt Personally Conducts Windsors on White House Tour

First Lady Meets Duchess at Office Of Civilian Defense

What happened when the Duke and Duchess of Windsor went to the White House for luncheon yesterday came out last night, and it helped to explain why the famous couple had to dash for Union Station and caught their train for New York with only four minutes to spare.

After the luncheon, President Roosevelt took the duke and duchess on a personally conducted tour of the White House. He showed them his room and Mrs. Roosevelt's room on the second floor. He showed them the Lincoln Room, and other places of interest in the mansion.

The duke and duchess told about it in glowing terms in a statement issued in New York last night. The duke said:

"We have spent an interesting and pleasant day in Washington. The duchess was glad to accept Mrs. Roosevelt's invitation to meet her at her office, where they made a tour together to meet the various officers connected with civilian defense.

Amazed at First Lady's Energy

"I also had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House, when she returned there with the duchess and the three of us were able to have a short conversation before Mrs. Roosevelt left for Chicago to fulfill a long-standing engagement. We were both charmed by Mrs. Roosevelt's personality and amazed at her energy and grasp of current affairs. Apart from her official position, it is easy to understand her importance in American public life today.

"During the early forenoon I had a meeting with Mr. Harllee Branch and some of his officials at the offices of the Civil Aeronautics Board, where I discussed the airplane service between America and the Bahamas emphasizing the importance of good air communications to the welfare of the colony.

"The President was, as usual, an inspiring and genial host and although there was little time for private conversation, he took us on a personally conducted tour around the White House which included his and Mrs. Roosevelt's rooms on the second floor. I was especially interested in the 'Lincoln Room,' where I was received by President Wilson during his illness in November, 1919.

"At the duchess' request the President asked Harry Hopkins to come back from a luncheon engagement in order that she might meet him.

"Lord and Lady Halifax offered us the hospitality of the British Embassy where we had an opportunity for a talk with Capt. Harold Balfour, British undersecretary for air, who has recently flown from Russia with Mr. W. Averell Harriman."

Duke Is Hatless

The White House luncheon yesterday was the one that was postponed a month ago because of the death of G. Hall Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt's brother.

The First Lady left on a Chicago-bound plane at 11:40 a.m. yesterday to keep a lecture engagement, and so did not attend the luncheon which started at 1 p. m.

A crowd of about 100 men and women gathered outside the White House iron fence as the duke and duchess arrived for the luncheon. The duchess wore a black wool jacket with a full black velvet skirt, a Wallis blue blouse, and a calot of blue coque feathers—the same hat which she had worn on her arrival at Union Station earlier in the day.

The former King Edward VIII, who seems to have developed a prejudice against hats, was again hatless, notwithstanding the chill in the air and the anguish of the hat manufacturers who have been urging him to cover up his blond head. He wore a plain gray suit, a white shirt and a light gray necktie.

Go to Embassy First

The duke and duchess came into Union Station from New York at 8 a. m. and went directly to the British Embassy. Two hours later the duchess took leave of the duke and rode in a White House limousine to the Dupont Circle Apartments, where Mrs. Roosevelt, in her role as assistant director of OCD, was waiting in a ninth-floor office to greet her.

The First Lady greeted the American-born duchess warmly and continued to shake her hand for the benefit of photographers. This was their first meeting.

Mrs. Roosevelt and the duchess rode together to the White House, where the duke had arranged to meet the duchess. The First Lady chatted with the ducal couple and then hurried to catch her plane for Chicago, while the visitors went back to the British Embassy to await the luncheon hour.

While the duchess was visiting with Mrs. Roosevelt at Dupont Circle, the duke journeyed to the Commerce Department Building to confer with officials of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Officials of the Civil Aeronautics Board who met the duke included Chairman Branch, Vice Chairman Edward P. Warner and Board Members Oswald Ryan and G. Grant Mason, Jr.

Sin Is Devil All Painted Up, Gipsy Smith Tells Listeners

Evangelist Gipsy Smith last night warned 1500 persons that "you can't camouflage sin."

"If you saw the devil face to face," he declared at First Congregational Church, Tenth and G Streets Northwest, "you'd see a remnant of the angel."

Pleading with his hearers to beware of sin that is the devil "all painted up," the Gipsy said it was regretful that so many people today had lost their virtue and innocence and had become "damaged goods."

Earlier in the service, Mr. Smith told his audience that "if the devil comes to me, I'll sing him a verse of a hymn, and see how he likes it."

"You'd have to sing if you lived with me," he said. "If you didn't, I'd sing you out."

Then, after the congregation had broken out with the revival hymn, "O, How I Love Jesus," Dr. Howard Stone Anderson, host church pastor, arose to say that it was the first time he had ever heard that hymn.

The Gipsy leaped up from his chair and shouted:

"Let's sing it for him!" And they did — selling old-time evangelistic fervor.

Expected to share tonight's revival program is a woman the Gipsy calls "Little Susie"—who he said was "brought to Jesus" 37 years ago during one of his campaigns in the Middle West. She was then 7 years old. Now she is a grandmother, and is coming East to visit her daughter and granddaughter.

The Gipsy will speak tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. on "My Three and a Half Years in the Mud and Blood of France."

Plants Slow to Convert Facilities for Arms Manufacture, Experts Say

A panel of engineers and defense officials including Donald M. Nelson, executive director of the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board, yesterday expressed to a Congressional committee their dissatisfaction at the rate of converting civilian factories to armament work. One of the experts also accused the auto industry of resisting "interference of their normal business."

Alex Taub, former engineer of the British Vauxhall Ltd., a General Motors subsidiary, and now technical consultant to the OPM labor division, told the House Committee Investigating National Defense Migiation:

"Ten months ago, when I first returned to America, the state of mind of industries such as the motor car industry was still against any interference of their normal business. Defense work was acceptable only to those who foresaw a possible cut in their output and these were very few. At that time the announced percentage of facilities available for defense work was in the neighborhood of 15 per cent. Today, with curtailment on the premises, it is freely admitted that 30 per cent of the facilities can be used for defense with a possibility in certain areas of extending this to 70 per cent. We have one instance of actual practice where nearer 90 per cent is used."

Nelson, who declared he did not think the present rate of converting factories to military purposes was satisfactory, said that there had been too much of a tendency by manufacturers to ask for new tools for defense work instead of adopting tools already on hand.

Speaking directly to the problem of labor migration in the emergency, S. T. Henry, assistant to the president of McGraw-Hill Co., told the committee that labor dislocation on an extensive scale is unavoidable.

"Lack of planning during the last year now makes it impossible to prevent the temporary loss of jobs of hundreds of thousands of men and women," Henry explained.

He estimated that America's metal working capacity was still operating at "about half its easily sustained output."

Negro Church Group To Present Pageant

The congregation of Asbury (Negro) Methodist Church will present a pageant, "Ethiopia's Glory," tonight and tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the parish hall at Eleventh and K Streets Northwest.

Based upon Negro life in Africa and America, the pageant was written and is being directed by Dr. W. L. Turner, who spent ten years as president of the College of West Africa. There are 250 in the cast.

Welcome Merger

There is no hint of curtailing the work of the National Youth Administration and the Civilian Conservation Corps in the President's proposal to consolidate the two agencies under the Federal Security Agency. The President has merely indicated that from the administrative standpoint consolidation would be a worth-while economy measure. So it would. It would also relieve the War Department of its present job of supervising CCC activities. Surely there is no valid reason why the department should continue to divert its energies from all-out preparation for defense. But the President ought to have gone much further in his letter to Federal Security Administrator McNutt, and recommended cutting down all NYA and CCC activities which do not contribute directly to the preparedness effort.

Both agencies were originally created for social purposes: to provide jobs and training for the Nation's unemployed youth. The situation today is vastly different. Many industries engaged in defense work have an acute shortage of skilled labor, and in some regions unskilled labor is at a premium. Moreover, with the stepping up of war production, it is perfectly clear that the labor demand will increase. To the extent that they train their enrollees for service in defense industries or perform useful work in and around defense areas, the NYA and CCC are a distinct asset. Yet there has been sufficient evidence that the agencies have become competitive with our economy. Moreover, they have become competitive with the Army and Navy for the services of young men. Such abortive competition, though lessened by the intercession of Mr. McNutt, is bound to continue so long as both agencies pursue nonessential civilian work.

It may be, of course, that when the emergency is over it will be necessary for the agencies to reassume peacetime proportions. But this can be taken into account in planning curtailment now. Also, to those who would oppose NYA-CCC slashes on the ground that employment opportunities have not expanded in some areas, it should be pointed out that there is nothing to prevent youths from seeking work where work exists—in adjacent defense areas. Clearly, then, the main thing now is to recognize the inadvisability of trying to carry on a full-scale peacetime rehabilitation program, and to pare it down in a hurry to emergency essentials.

Hardy Kearny

In recent months we have had two outstanding examples of the increased protection afforded warships by improved naval construction and design. When the British ran down the battleship Bismarck and rendered her helpless, it took torpedo after torpedo and protracted heavy gunfire to sink her. Presumably the nearest to a "nonsinkable" ship afloat, she had superior compartmentation and unusually heavy armor. But if her ability to stay afloat seemed remarkable, the recent performance of the destroyer Kearny seems little short of miraculous. Torpedoed amidship—a direct hit in the boiler room—she made port under her own power, though the resultant explosion opened up the side of the ship and blew out the deck and superstructure. Why she did not sink, as have the destroyers of the belligerent nations when similarly hit, must remain a mystery for the time being. For the Navy Department quite rightly declines to reveal the details of her design.

Inevitably, however, there will be conjectures in this country—and, of course, in the Axis countries—as to what makes the Kearny so seaworthy. At the time of the attack it was explained that she was better compartmented than earlier models. This was true, of course, of the Bismarck. But the armor of the destroyer, unlike that of the battleship, is hardly designed to withstand heavy projectiles. Perhaps the Kearny's reported double bottoms helped lessen the force of the blow to the vital inner "skin." Perhaps the destroyer was abnormally lucky, for in naval engagements in the past there have been instances of hits which by all rights ought to have been crippling, yet by some freak of fate they have been less effective than might be supposed.

Such conjecture, however, does not detract one whit from the credit due to the Kearny's designers. At one time critics claimed she was top-heavy. But her performance in the North Atlantic amply proved, as Undersecretary Forrestal has pointed out, that she was designed "to meet the tests of action." Her survival is fresh evidence of the defensive strength which naval architects are now able to build into warships.

Rocking The Boat

To John L. Lewis is due the reawakening of Congress to the gravity of the labor problem. But the problem existed long before Mr. Lewis defied the President of the United States. It has slumbered and slept in the White House in the vain hope that tolerance and patience would bring a solution. Even the efforts initiated in Congress to contribute a solution have left the Administration noncooperative. Senator Byrd's resolution, for instance, got no Administration backing. Yet his resolution simply declared that strikes in defense industries were contrary to public policy and deserved the condemnation of Congress. Evidently even an admonishing finger was felt to be less effective than forbearance and steps taken ad hoc.

The lack of action, however, has only made our difficulties worse. No fewer than 48 defense strikes are now raging throughout the country. In some cases employers are at fault; in others, employes. But the denominator that unites them all is the lack of a labor policy for application throughout all defense industry. The absence of it encourages unrest on the part of labor and resentment on the part of employers. It is impossible, for instance, to expect our labor union (or, for that matter, our farm) leaders to act responsibly when the union members see the benefits that can come to them out of continued agitation.

Obviously a general labor policy must be based upon the maintenance of work in our defense industries. A policy which falls short of that aim is not worthy of the name of policy. For we are living in a state of unlimited emergency which has been duly proclaimed by our President. How real is the actual emergency which prompted the proclamation was shown by the President in his Navy Day speech. Mr. Roosevelt had to recognize that Hitler has thrust this Nation into a shooting war. In a war a participant, as Cromwell said, must "look to the end," and the end in our present strife with Hitlerism can be only surrender or victory. The forces of evil arrayed against this Nation, moreover, are so widespread and so bristling that this war can be won only if every man is at his post on every assembly line. Surely, then, the war policy which Nazi Germany has laid upon this Nation compels the Administration to evolve a policy destined to keep the men behind the lines on the job. Anything less would be a betrayal of the men to whom has been entrusted the carrying out of the policy of clearing the seas of Hitler's pirates.

Senator Bailey has made the first move to give expression to the rising indignation of Congress. He has proposed a rider to neutrality law repeal which would make anyone who directs or encourages stoppages of work in defense industry guilty of the crime of sabotage. The resolution no more than expresses the logic of our existing situation. Clearly it is directed at Mr. Lewis. But, as we have said, Mr. Lewis' conduct merely brings to a head a challenge to Government which Government can ignore only at the expense of our endangered security. There is no more need to belabor this point. Time lost from strikes in defense industries is, obviously enough, time gained by Adolf Hitler. The dissension in our midst arising from the labor disputes gives his cause a boost in all those countries to which this Nation is the remaining reason for resistance against acquiescence in the Hitler-run world.

The Bailey resolution, or something having the same effect emanating from the Administration itself, would not and should not block the submission of industrial disputes to existing tribunals. On the contrary, it should bring order out of chaos, promote responsibility out or irresponsibility, and bring back to Government the vigor which the parlous exigencies of the times demand. Government as well as defense must be made positive lest the continuance of the present state of things negates Government as well as defense.

Blithe Spirit

Perhaps the British may rail at Noel Coward for offering a play in America which has no propaganda in it. They needn't. There are plenty of propaganda plays and to spare on the boards this season. The two plays that preceded Coward's in this town were all compact of propaganda, and atrocious propaganda at that. Mr. Coward would have thought of them as savoring of vulgarity, and there is no more deadly sin to the supremely artistic Coward. "Blithe Spirit" is sheer entertainment. There may be a message in the piece against womenkind, on the hocus pocus of occultism, or even about modern marriage. Mr. Coward is not above that sort of thing. In fact, he once wrote, with a refreshing singularity, that without a message love is a bestiality. But whatever message materializes out of "Blithe Spirit" is written so delicately as to be almost invisible amid the riotous improbabilities of the farce. And what farce! Nobody writes for the theater with such skill as does Mr. Coward. The wit of his lines, to be sure, is slightly decadent; suited more to the salon than to the earth. But long ago we had given up the expectation that Coward's genius could appraise life in either its intensity or its depth. He seems to belong to a day of debauched values which gave more attention to its clothes than to its lives. The nemesis came with the war. Yet in times which are Miltonic one can still laugh over the frolics of a Restoration playwright who has ceased to influence but who remains to amuse. And a rest from propaganda may be even more useful than propaganda itself.

Model New York

It is surprising to hear that Mayor LaGuardia is having quite a battle to keep the mayoralty of New York. His achievements are written boldly across the face of New York. Take the magnificent East River Drive in New York City which has just been constructed. For the most part it was built on the sites of some of the hideous and notorious East Side tenement blocks or on reclaimed ground filled in with rubble from the ruined city of Bristol, England. This will undoubtedly be one of the major monuments of Mr. LaGuardia's administration. It is, as the mayor said, an example of "perfect engineering and clean financing." He went on to point out that any such accomplishment would have been quite impossible in the old days of the Tammany ascendancy. The best that could have been expected of a Tammany regime would have been "a sloppy, incomplete, unattractive job."

The mayor is, of course, quite right. And the same thing would be true in any city dominated by machine politics. The decline of the more unsavory forms of political graft made the letting and subletting of contracts the principal means employed by political machines for perpetuating their power. It is a practice whereby the taxpayer pays through the nose for improvements. But this is not the only cost of such a practice. The complex of entrenched or influential interests that machine-dominated politicans must consider in the selection of sites and the award of contracts makes it virtually impossible for municipal improvements to be executed as they were originally conceived or in exact accordance with any well-prepared city plan.

This state of affairs has had lamentable consequences. It has played a great part—though of course not the only part—in making eyesores of vast sections of many great cities of the Eastern seaboard as they have attempted to adjust themselves to new populations and new forms of communication. You have only to look around for proof. More than one ill-considered and worse-executed "improvement" has been responsible for the creation of vast new blighted areas unfit for either residence or for any retail business besides filling stations. At last there has been a general awakening to the necessity of careful planning and proper execution. But nowhere has the awakening produced so many and such impressive results as in New York State and City under the leadership of Park Commissioner Moses, Mayor LaGuardia and President Isaacs of the Borough of Manhattan.

Gambetta's Statue

The famous statue of Leon Gambetta has been pulled from its base in Paris and will be melted down for the services of the Nazi war machine. There are good reasons why out of all the statues in Occupied France the Nazis chose to begin with Gambetta's. More than any other Frenchman, he was the symbol of the Third Republic. It was Gambetta, indeed, who, after the catastrophe to the French imperial armies at Sedan in 1870, proclaimed the republic. It was he who organized the continued resistance to the Germans in the name of the republic and who was the prime mover in the preparation of the defenses of Paris for the siege. When at last Paris capitulated, Gambetta escaped in a balloon. After the Treaty of Frankfurt, to which he never subscribed, it was also Gambetta, who, more than any other until Clemenceau, embodied the spirit of revenge for the memory of 1870. And yet he was one of those men whose historical fate is to be identified with a single phrase. In Gambetta's case the phrase was, "Le clericalisme—voila l'ennemi." For, though otherwise a moderate, Gambetta nevertheless embodied a spirit of extreme and intransigent anticlericalism. This was a Radical Socialist tradition and was one of the several factors which prepared the Third Republic for the doom which overtook it in the summer of 1940.

SUMMER

Summer is the final word, golden and round,
The last enchantment found when memory's pool is stirred.
All that has gone before the mind will keep Behind some silken veil that hides the world of sleep.
This is the answer now. From this enchanted ground
Rises the golden sound. The leaves along the bough
Must always be the same. Winter is but a name
Whispered along the wind . . . and dying in the mind.

Employment Center

Hungering yesterday for some reporting, I, dressed in a frayed shirt and worn suit and applied at the District Employment Center, of the Bureau of Employment Security, 808 E Street, for "work."

As I entered I observed that only thousands of hands could have so worn the lettering from the entrance doors. And there was confidence, rather than despair, in the bearing of the scores of men and women of all ages who were pouring in and out of the center.

At the reception desk a refined woman, with enough gray in her hair to be motherly, gave me intelligent assistance in locating the proper interviewing room.

Although the center has an active file of 28,000 applications and averages 3700 placements a month, I was kept waiting but a few minutes before I was ushered into the presence of Mrs. Pearl Marcuse, a charming personality.

Then I learned why so many employers and job hunters avail themselves of the center's facilities. My work history was studied carefully by Mrs. Marcuse and her superiors. Even Public Relations Director Franklin J. Porter (I had always supposed press agents were not supposed to work) made several calls to employers in my behalf.

Not only did Director Edwin W. Jones' splendid organization find me a job but they mapped out a whole Washington career for me.

I am glad to see publications like yours supporting this really useful public service agency.

Declare War Now

The trial balloons are going up again. The drive is on for a negotiated peace. The experts are parading again and the press and the radio are echoing the cry of a negotiated peace. Some time ago Fight for Freedom predicted that there would be a concerted drive for a negotiated peace and they listed various possible approaches to this vital question.

Now once again, the isolationist minority is cackling for a peace. They say that Hitler has no designs in the Western Hemisphere. That Hitler would be satisfied to "consolidate" his position and keep the peace. They feel that his word can be taken. They want America to take the lead in the drive for peace now.

Let us reject this skillfully contrived trap for the nations fighting Fascism. A peace now would leave this nation without an ally in the world. England would be rendered impotent and Germany would dominate the continent of Europe. If Russia goes down and England is helpless, we in America are in a position of real isolation. Munich was a negotiated peace and we know the result of that farce.

We must not be a partner to this argument. If we had the courage to look at the facts, we know that we have but one course to take. We must go in this war fighting with all we have. A declaration of war is the answer to the peace seekers. Let us stop hedging and get down to business. We have the greatest Naval force in the world today. Let us use it—shooting NOW. We have a Naval Air force. Let us use it NOW. A declaration for war would do more good than all the prattlings of "all out" aid to this one and that one. Let us aid ourselves by declaring war NOW and get into this battle which is our battle. We must get into it if we are to have the right to sit at the peace table.

Un-American Opposition

It is becoming more and more apparent that any opposition at all against Roosevelt is un-American, and against the fundamentals of democracy. Any and every excuse for a lining-up against him has been formed, from the Lease-Lend Bill to the Selective Service enactment. We have then a picture of a great man promoting American principles of right and justice being pilloried by Fifth Columnists, Isolationists, open and avowed enemies of all that is American, as well as sneaking, underhand agents of the Axis powers, all united in the task of making the burden more formidable for the man who is already bearing on his back an almost incredible load of responsibility.

Nazi spite and hatred has been allowed too much latitude in the United States, together with other pernicious thoughts from those friendly towards Italy and Japan, and it is high time that strong measures be taken against all these defeatists, isolationists and all forms of subversive activity against the Government of the United States and her allies.

For instance, take Russia: help ought to have been afforded her months ago. But the "bogeyman" of Communism was raised in Great Britain, Canada and America by the very people that are of the Axis line of thought. In consequence help was slow to come, and Russia was left to bear the brunt of a "blitzkrieg" at what bitter results. Now, my friends, we should not be thinking of Communism or any other "ism," but just of the soul of any nation—Russia or any other overrun country—which is fighting for its very existence against aggression, at God knows what cost!

The time for action is now. Suppose Russia has to capitulate? Then comes the invasion of Britain. Suppose she, too, falls? Then comes the invasion of the Americas and do not let any Lindberghs or anyone else fool you. Further, help should have been, and still should be, sent to China, for if Japan were at all sure of the defeat of Russia, she would lose no time, in cooperation with Germany, of course, in proceeding to bring her plan of Eastern domination to fruition. Please do not forget the German infiltration of the South American republics. There would not only be the pressure from Japan from the East, but an active and very real threat from the South, as well as a German thrust from the Atlantic.

Never lose sight of the fact that the countries now occupied by the Axis powers are in thralldom. Food is at a premium. Patriots who have the courage to do and dare for their convictions are taken out and shot. But also remember this, the peoples of these countries are ready and willing to strike back at the aggressors if only a lead is given. Is that hope going to come from America? We dare hope so.

Strikes And Treason

I have just come from Camp Lee, where one of my sons is enrolled. After seeing the young manhood of our land being prepared for our defense it makes one's blood boil to read about these damnable strikes. It is high time that some labor leaders be put in their place, because when they flout the Government's preparedness activities, it is getting very close to treason and should be treated as such. We would then cease to become a laughing stock for the dictatorial powers in Europe.

Agricultural Prices

Relative to ceilings over prices, it should be observed that, due to certain inherent differences between the industrial market and the agricultural market, agricultural prices should receive different treatment by the Congress than industrial prices.

For several reasons, agricultural prices require a floor under rather than a ceiling over them.

1. Futures trading in agricultural price changes tends to push prices down to or toward low, un-American levels. Futures traders do well for themselves only on the lower price levels.

2. Organized processors and manufacturers, as buyers of raw agricultural materials of food and fiber, are in a stronger bargaining position than are the farmers.

3. As though these continuing downward pressures were not enough to keep agricultural prices at a low level, the executive branch of the Government, by virtue of the recent Presidential veto of an amendment of the 85 per cent loan value law, has the power, at any time, to break the market and undersell the farmers, simply by releasing Government-owned stocks of farm commodities.

4. The new policy of the Administration, instead of "plowing under" and limiting production, is to encourage the farmers, as a patriotic duty, to speed up and expand production, and thus to accumulate enormous surpluses and ever-growing abnormal granaries. It is thought that this new policy will anticipate any miraculous phenomenon, such as agricultural prices out of line on the upper side.

If farmers were like industrialists, and could at will boost their prices to unwarranted heights, such depressive measures might be justified. But the farmers are in no bargaining position at all. They take what is offered to them by the buyers. The patriotic impulses of the people should prompt the putting of a floor under the prices of the producers of the Nation's food and fiber; not at 85 per cent, but at 100 per cent of parity price.

Strikers Are Traitors

Any man responsible for the strikes which are crippling vital war industries in this country is the worst kind of a traitor and "saboteur." What would the Government do to any man who destroyed the firing mechanism of our guns on the warships? These strikes have prevented the Government from filling many war orders, I have been told by one who does some of the ordering.

I have recently read of the diligence of the Russian munition workers, who labor under the most dangerous circumstances, but are not failing their country by any strikes!

Those who strike and also prevent others from working are unworthy of the privileges of the land in which they live.

I should think every American would strive to do his part in this great effort to rid the world of Hitlerism! The German army had no more right to invade Russia and destroy her towns and cities, along with her population, than she would have had to invade Canada or the United States. The Russian army is the only army ever able to hold up Hitler's invading hosts, so far, and it would appear a very wise move to aid it in every way possible—but strikes will never do it!

What would the American patriot who said, "I regret that I have only one life to give for my country," think of a man who strikes?

The Post Impressionist

Street Names

This question of street names always did fascinate me. The Street of Increasing Righteousness, I read, is in Seoul, Korea, and the Way of the Snake is in Old Algiers. There's Garlic Street in Strasbourg, and somewhere else I read of a place with the succulent name of Square of the Milk-fed Pig.

Such names stir the imagination. They are like hands beckoning to adventure and far places. First Street, or Forty-first for that matter, or F or U would hardly beckon to a Seoulian or an Old Algerian I'm afraid. But Washington streets, with their alphabets, numbers, State and celebrity names do still retain here and there a nomenclature that is rich with association and color.

They may boast no Climb with Regret as does Beauvais, France, or Alle of Vain Effort as in the Vosges, but Easy Place is as descriptive and certainly more restful.

Usually the names of places, parkways, and roads have eluded the carefully planned naming system for the streets of Washington. The old winding roads cling to their descriptive names, as Broad Branch and Piney Branch, Quarry, Adam's Mill and Rock Creek Church Roads have done. Queen's Chapel Road is another, which has held for at least 150 years the name it acquired when the Richard Queen family built Queen's Chapel during the Revolution. The old chapel was located next to land that now forms the grounds of Langdon School.

The more recent Park Road owes its name to the fact that it begins in a park and ends in one—Rock Creek to Soldiers' Home. And when Glover Park was developed a country lane winding through a grove of walnut trees took for itself the name of the tree in reverse and became Tunlaw Road—a name which for novelty no Toulousian or Algerian need scorn.

Some of the lovers of picturesque names saw with regret the passing of Four-and-a-Half Street and Little B, but Half Street in Southwest Washington and Six-and-a-half Place remain as local color. And surely our Loud Street connotes as much as does the Street of Bad Boys in Paris, and Just Street is comparable to Jealousy Street in Toulouse.

As the city has changed some of our street names have lost their significance. Harvard, Girard and Kenyon were named for Universities at the time when University Place nearby was the site of George Washington University, which was long ago removed to another part of town.

Persons honored by having Washington streets named for them may range from Presidents (Buchanan or Jefferson), poets (Longefellow or Lanier), or generals, to obscure friends of Senators, or relatives of real estate operators. Until 1888 a realtor could name the streets in his subdivision as he chose.

In Chevy Chase the names of streets from Grafton to Bradley are to be found in Burke's Heraldic Dictionary of the Peerage and Baronetage, of England, Scotland and Ireland. They were probably named by the late Senator Newlands, of Nevada, who was one of the founders of Chevy Chase and whose wife's sister was married to a baronet.

There is one Washington street named for a Napoleonic battlefield, Ulm Place in Burleith, and two women have been honored by the streets of Maud and Caroline.

However interesting it may be to find odd or picturesque street names in Washington, I'll admit that it is perhaps just as well that we can't change our simple alphabet and number streets according to someone's whim. It takes an act of Congress to change a name except in case of duplication. Memphis, Tenn., has a November Sixth Street, so named because on November 8, 1934, the citizens of that city indorsed the bond issue for the municipal T. V. A. electric system. If Washington marked each important date in such a way, one might wake one morning to find oneself living at the corner of January Twentieth and November Eighth!

In some far country there is a street called Watch Your Step. For the sake of pedestrians every street in downtown Washington might well be called that.

Indomitable Greeks

One year has elapsed since Italy unjustly attacked diminutive Greece. In the early morning of October 28, 1940, Fascist legions marched forth to overrun and conquer a neighbor who refused to acquiesce to enslavement by consent. Instead of proving an easy push-over, the military campaign against Greece exposed for the first time the vulnerability of the Fascist "Invincibles." For six consecutive months the invaders suffered defeat after defeat. Fascist military arrogance was deflated.

Against numerical superiority and the unmatched implements of modern warfare, improverished Greece marshaled her indomitable will. In defending their honor and freedom, the Greek people had learned through their long history that victories are not won solely by matching gun against gun. They brought into play an unseen barrel which was firing ceaselessly. This was their unconquerable human spirit and their unshakable will to die in the defense of human freedom. They demonstrated how the human spirit could multiply firepower, and how it could make itself immune to the hardships of war.

Now that Greece is enslaved, famished and prostrate under the Axis jackboot, the same unconquerable spirit manifests itself in the unceasing resistance of her people against their conquerors. Greeks at home and abroad have vowed that they shall never be cajoled to submission no matter how harsh the coercive measures might be. They shall carry on unflinchingly till the overthrow of the Nazi yoke, impervious as ever to any seductive promises that might emanate from the ranks of the architects of the "New Order."

New German Church

Mein Kampf To Be Bible

THE DETAILS of a Nazi church program, apparently the same program mentioned by President Roosevelt in his Navy Day speech, was printed in the October 22 issue of the Christian Science Monitor. Under this program, as Mr. Roosevelt related, the Nazis would set up a national church; the Bible would give way to Hitler's "Mein Kampf" and the crucifix to the sword. President Roosevelt said yesterday that he hadn't read the Christian Science Monitor account, and couldn't say whether its source was the same as his own.

The Monitor, in an editorial note, said that the Nazi plan, in the form of a preliminary party memorandum, had become available to neutral sources in Europe.

Although there is no evidence of official adoption of the plan, the newspaper said, the following cabled summary provides an interesting insight into the more extremist Nazi views toward religion:

A Nazi new National Church supplanting by force all other churches within the German Reich, has been projected by Alfred Rosenberg, one of the chief theory-makers of the Nazi Party.

DESIGNED more along military than religious lines, the new church would become the new chief symbol of an intensified drive to abolish the remaining vestiges of Christianity from Germany. The Bible would be superseded by Mein Kampf; other symbols of the church by a sword.

Although announcement of the plan—like that of similar plans advanced by Dr. Rosenberg—by no means portends its definite fulfillment, it nevertheless marks the course of Nazi thinking. It shows the determination of nazlism to use all means to subjugate its constituents, or as the new program proposes, "to gain possession of the last German soul."

The all-inclusive church, referred to as N. R. (Nationale Reichskirche) in the Rosenberg memorandum, is provided for in a 30-point program outlining its functions and tenets. The platform, in free translation, is as follows:

1. THE NATIONAL Reich Church (Nationale Reichskirche) claims with all decisiveness the sole right and sole power over all churches within the German Reich's boundaries; declares them as National Reich Churches of Germany.

2. The German people must not serve N. R., but N. R. serves exclusively solely one doctrine: race and folk.

3. The activities of N. R. are limited to territorial boundaries of the Reich and its "colonies."

4. "N. R. forces no German to belong," but "N. R. is ready to do all in its power to gain possession of the last German soul." Furthermore N. R. will not tolerate other churches or church-like organizations and clubs, especially those with international connections or government.

5. N. R. is determined unswervingly and by all means to annihilate Christian faith, which "though foreign to our being and character was imported to Germany in the tragic year 1000."

6. NO FUNDAMENTAL changes in the construction of the present churches will be undertaken for "they represent German folk property, German kultur and are part of the historical process and development of our people. They must be evaluated and preserved as German folk property."

7. There will be no scribes (Schriftgelehrter), pastors, chaplains or clergy in N. R. and only National Reich orators are to have the right to speak.

8. N. R. ceremonies will take place on Saturday evenings only with festive illuminations.

9. In N. R. German men, women and boys and girls will unitedly pledge themselves to the Nazi conception of God.

10. N. R. will unswervingly work toward inevitable unification with the state. N. R. must subordinate itself to the state as a serving member. On this basis N. R. demands the immediate transference of all property of all churches and confessions to the state. It also forbids future churches to obtain possession of the smallest dot of German land or that such be given them. For "it is not the church which conquers and cultivates land and soil but exclusively the German state and the German people."

11. N. R. ORATORS may never be "those who today with cunning and treachery emphasize the absolute necessity of the maintenance of Christian teachings in Germany, for they may lie not only to themselves but to the German people, merely for the sake of a job and their bread."

12. N. R. orators are to be state officials under the law for state officials.

13. N. R. demands that printing and delivery of the Bible immediately be stopped in Germany as well as the further appearance of Sunday papers, writings, lectures and books with churchly consent.

14. N. R. will guard with the utmost strictness against importation of Bibles and Christian religious literature into Germany.

15. N. R. declares that henceforth "our people's greatest document and book will be our Fuehrer's 'Mein Kampf.' N. R. is conscious that this book contains not only the greatest but, much more, the purest and truest ethics for the present and future life of our people."

16. N. R. "unswervingly dedicates itself with all its strength to make the book 'Mein Kampf' popular and cause every German to guide his life according to this book."

17. N. R. DEMANDS that the number of pages and the contents of the book in the future, in whatever form it may appear, correspond to the present popular edition.

18. N. R. removes from all altars the crucifix, the Bible, and all holy pictures.

19. On the altars of N. R. "will be our all-holy book 'Mein Kampf' and on its left a sword consecrating our German people to the same token of God."

20. N. R. orators must explain the book during N. R. ceremonies according to their conscience and abilities.

21. N. R. recognizes no forgiveness of sins. N. R. represents the viewpoint, and will repeatedly profess it, that sin is inexorably avenged by the iron and unsubvertable laws of nature.

22. N. R. REJECTS the baptism of German children both with water and the ritual of the Holy Ghost.

23. Parents of a new-born German child must go before the altar only to repeat a German vow in the following words:

For the man, "I swear by God this holy oath that I, the father of this child, and my wife are probably of Aryan descent. As a father I swear to rear the child in the German spirit for the German people." Only on the basis of this German vow is a diploma to be delivered for a new citizen.

24. N. R. abolishes confirmation, confirmation instruction, communion and communion instruction.

Places of education are the family, the school, the German "Jungvolk," and the Hitler Youth Bund for German girls.

25. IN ORDER to make graduation exercises especially ceremonious, N. R. is placed at the disposal of the various youth organizations on State Youth Day, the Friday before Easter. On this day only the leaders of these organizations will speak.

26. The marriage of German men and women is to take place with a repetition of the oath of loyalty with the right hand on the sword. In N. R. no act may take place in an undignified kneeling position.

27. N. R. declares the tenth day before Pentecost to be the day of the German family.

28. N. R. rejects the customary penitence on Prayer Day and demands that it be transferred to the anniversary of the founding of N. R.

29. N. R. will not tolerate the existence of religious symbols.

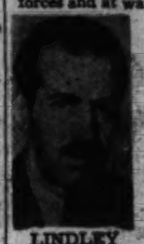
30. On the day of the foundation all of the new N. R. churches, cathedrals and chapels within the Reich and its colonial boundaries will remove the cross of Christ which will be replaced by the hakenkreuz as the "only unconquerable symbol of Germany."

Navy Day Speech

By Ernest Lindley.

Extraneous Issues

THE PRESIDENT'S Navy Day speech left us just where we were: a provisioner for the anti-Axis forces and at war on the high seas.



LINDLEY

It was not a major address. Its purpose plainly fell within the domain of current politics: to soften opposition to aid for Russia and to amendment of the Neutrality Act.

Despite a natural reluctance to challenge the President's sagacity as a politician, his emphasis on the religious factor is being criticized by some of his most intelligent advisers. They grant that he is correct in putting his finger on this as one of the obstacles to the conduct of our foreign policy on the sound basis of national interest. This has been especially true since the Nazis attacked Russia.

The President felt called upon to quote the Soviet Constitution—in such a way, unfortunately, as to convey the impression he took it at face value. He then endeavored, through W. Averell Harriman, to persuade Stalin to grant greater freedom to religious groups. Monday night he revealed a Nazi plan to abolish all existing religions.

THE PRESIDENT'S objective has been clear. When his utterances on the religious question are hooked up with his representations to the Pope through Myron Taylor, they take on the outline of grand strategy. If organized religion can be aligned definitely against the Nazis and brought to accept the Russians as de facto partners it will greatly simplify the President's political problems at home, solidify the lines of the world struggle, especially in South America, and possibly expedite the elimination of Italy from the war.

Criticism of this tactic among members of his own Administration is based chiefly on the ground that the President is falling into the same error as those who contemplate the struggle chiefly from the viewpoint of organized religion. The heart of our interest, his friendly critics emphasize, is security of the United States and of our way of life. This includes, of course, religious freedom. But, they point out, it would make no difference whether Hitler and his regime paid homage to one of the recognized religions or not if their purpose was still the subjugation of the world.

LIKEWISE, the attitude of the Soviet Union toward religion is irrelevant to any person who is American enough to think in terms of the national welfare. The British and ourselves are not helping the Russians because we think them more or less moral than the Nazis. We are helping them for the reasons set forth here immediately after the Nazi attack: because the Russians are weaker than the Nazis. If they were of approximately equal strength, the rest of the world could have afforded to watch them wear each other out. But they were not. And despite the immediate cost, the conquest of Russia would carry the Nazis a long way toward domination of a large part of the world and so make them an even greater menace to us.

The Russians know that the help proffered by the British and ourselves does not spring from approval of their economic or social institutions. Stalin, of course, is realistic enough to know that organized religion has influence in parts of the world. But, the President's critical aides point out, the Soviet treatment of religious groups is an internal policy. If the President asks for freedom of education, agitation, and organization by religious groups in Russia, what ground has he for objecting to Soviet-directed Communist propaganda in the United States?

OUR REAL AIM is to keep the Russians fighting. In our own self-interest we should be asking nothing more, some of the President's aides feel. Others think that we could, with little difficulty, get Stalin to disown Communist activity in the United States. This, they assert, would be a far more tangible gain than religious concessions in Russia. It would recognize, also, that no sovereign nation has a right to interfere with the internal affairs of another—which, in turn, is in accord with the Atlantic Charter proclaimed by Roosevelt and Churchill.

The President, it is generally acknowledged by his aides, is confronted with a perplexing choice. He is handicapped by the narrowness of those who think in terms of partisan politics or of religious affiliation, instead of the national welfare. But apart from these are many doubtful and troubled Americans—and they perhaps are in the majority of those who do not have full confidence in the President's policies. Their confidence is not increased, his critics within the Administration are asserting, when he emphasizes issues which are extraneous to a hard-headed evaluation of our national interest.

Hitler Of The Tropics

By Joseph Driscoll.

Arias Showed His Hand Too Soon

Following is the first of several articles by a member of the New York Herald Tribune staff who has just returned from Panama.

ARNULFO ARIAS, a pro-Nazi President of the Republic of Panama, exiled to Nicaragua the other day after being deposed in a sensational coup d'etat, much to the relief of United States authorities, was scheming to become gauleiter of all Central America in the event of Nazi world conquest, which Arias considered inevitable.

To know this is to understand the background of the bloodless revolution which saw the high office involuntarily vacated by Arias filled by Ricardo Adolfo de la Guardia, who is friendly toward the United States and is proving his good neighborliness by jailing and exiling the pro-Nazi clique of advisers and propagandists that surrounded Arias, the little Hitler of the tropics.

Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, has declared emphatically that the United States had no role in Panama's coup, and that it was strictly an internal affair in Panama. Similar assurance was given by the Ambassador to Panama, Edwin C. Wilson, when I interviewed him at the embassy in Panama City, a few blocks from the Presidencia, where the new chief executive lives and works.

This is not to deny, however, that the United States had a great interest in the overthrow of Arias. No one who has just returned from an investigation at the scene in Panama and the Canal Zone can doubt that the palace revolution would never have been attempted and accomplished had its authors not felt certain the ousting of Arias would be pleasing in the eyes of Uncle Sam.

TODAY more than ever before the Isthmus of Panama is a vital link in the program of hemispheric defense evolved by President Roosevelt against the threat of Axis military invasion or economic penetration of the Americas. Just as the lifeline of the British Empire runs through the Suez Canal so does the two-ocean strategy of the United States depend upon keeping the Panama Canal open.

And just as the Germans and Italians have been trying to bomb the Suez Canal out of business with only partial success, so have the Axis diplomats in Central America been trying to use Arias and other, ambitious local politicians to throw a monkey wrench into President Roosevelt's plan for a united defense by the 21 American republics against the Axis forces—a defense that must be implemented by an American Navy able to cross swiftly from the Pacific to the Atlantic or vice versa, by means of the Panama Canal.

In a geographical and political sense, Panama bears the same relation to the United States Canal Zone that Egypt does to the British-controlled Suez Canal. Italian and German under-cover agents have been active in Egypt, endeavoring to seduce Egypt from her treaty obligations and military alliance with Britain. The British are combating Axis agitation in Egypt, precisely as the United States frowns upon Axis interlopers in the Isthmus of Panama.

Simply as a country standing alone, Panama, with its limited area and its small population, is not of world-shaking importance. Its importance derives from the fact that the Canal Zone, a ten-mile breadth of land and water, runs through the middle of Panama, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. For this reason, the United States could not long endure a hostile Panamanian government any more than the British, with the fate of the Suez Canal at stake, could permit unfriendly governments in Egypt or Asia Minor.

REASSURING on this point is the attitude of President de la Guardia. In an interview with this correspondent at the Presidencia he declared his republic never would allow itself to be used as a basis for propaganda or action by any totalitarian governments and he specifically named Germany and Italy. Moreover, he expressed distaste for what he termed the "exotic ideas" of the dictatorships.

Well known is Adolf Hitler's aim to wheedle Japan into positive cooperation, meaning war against the United States in the Pacific. Then, if the Panama Canal could be destroyed or temporarily blocked, the bulk of the United States Navy would have to detour all the way around Cape Horn to join in the Battle of the Atlantic. In any total war of the dictatorships vs. the democracies, the Panama Canal looms larger on the horizon than the Suez canal.

To some extent, the sinister role of former President Arias of Panama corresponds to the anti-American position of President Venustiano Carranza of Mexico during the World War. It will be remembered that Germany, in the famous Zimmerman note, intercepted by the British Secret Service and passed on to Washington, had promised Mexico the restoration of Texas and Arizona if Mexico would fight for Germany against the United States. That note helped President Wilson to decide to ask Congress for a declaration of war against Germany.

United States agents who have been following Arias closely have collected some pertinent documents, but nothing like a Zimmerman note to date, at least not for publication. But they have established that President Arias had been in communication with Otto Reinsbeck, the German Minister for Central America, with headquarters in Guatemala; that Arias had visited the neighboring countries of Costa Rica and Colombia ostensibly on good-will missions but actually in pursuit of his pro-Nazi plottings, and that he had confided to intimates that he was cut out for bigger things than the Presidency of Panama, and that as soon as Hitler consolidated his conquest of Europe, swept through Soviet Russia, and dictated a peace to Great Britain and the United States, he, Arias, would be appointed Hitler's gauleiter for all of Central America, possibly with certain North and South American privileges as well.

If this Arias dream sounds like a crazy man's nightmare, it may be pointed out that Arias, with all his faults, political and personal, is rated by his foes as sane and intelligent. Certainly, on his record up to his downfall, no one would say that Arias was half as crazy as Hitler.

Arias perpetrated one grave error—he showed his hand too soon. An impatient, impulsive fellow, he assumed that because Hitler had swept east to the gates of Moscow, total victory was in the bag. London and Washington would have to capitulate, and the time had arrived for Arnulfo Arias to cash in at the expense of the hated "Colossus of the North." Only a few days before his surprising downfall Arias had defied the United States by forbidding the arming of American-owned ships flying the Panamanian flag—a defiance that has been retracted by the new de la Guardia government.

To say the least, Arias's timing was off, and hence he languishes in exile, with the Axis unable to restore him to power. But as long as Arias lives he will be a menace to the United States. If he were stupid, he could be ignored, but Arias admittedly has one of the sharpest political minds in Latin America, however, perverted by adulation of dictatorships, hatred of the North American democracy, and greed for power and money. Already Arias is believed to be organizing a comeback, either as president or as the Warwick and king maker behind the next president.

IT IS TRUE that Arias cannot bring any native military force against the United States forces in the Canal Zone. Panama has no army, no navy and no real mercantile marine except the 125 vessels which were temporarily transferred from United States to Panamanian registry as a legal dodge so that they could trade directly with British ports.

The people of Panama are not the fighting kind. They are gentle, amiable and soft-spoken, slow to anger or to shoulder arms. The United States, with its heavy concentrations of troops, planes and warships in the Zone, could put down any local disturbance with a minimum of bloodshed.

Where Arias could be of value to the Axis, as he well knew, would be as a tool and stooge, a home-grown, Spanish-speaking gauleiter with a Huey Long-like gift of demagoguery. Thousands of Axis operatives, Germans, Italians and Japanese, are busy today in Central and South America. These agents include propagandists, drillmasters, spies and saboteurs. They can live and operate in these Latin-American countries only through the tolerance of the local governments. Arias was most tolerant.

Once the United States definitely is at war against the Axis nations, we can expect that every effort will be made to blow up the Panama Canal in the same fashion that German agents dynamited the Welland during the last war. I can attest that the United States is on guard and wide awake in the Panama area, but the Axis agents are clever, too—and accidents may happen.

Under the new and friendly regime of President de la Guardia, Panama is beginning to expel its hosts of Axis agents, some masquerading as diplomats, others as tourists and traveling salesmen. When and if the United States breaks off relations with the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo combine and declares war, Panama, in common with the majority of Latin America, is expected to follow suit, as was done in 1917. But if Arias should somehow come back to power, no doubt he would try to play Germany off against the United States, extorting dollars from Washington while seeking favor and a gauleitership from Berlin.

No wonder that Arnulfo Arias, though in exile, is still listed as a dangerous man in the books of Uncle Sam, and every effort will be made to see that he continues to enjoy the vacation which he has so richly earned.

Fair Enough

Roosevelt's Personal Problem

LET US ignore for today the merits of John L. Lewis' case in the so-called captive coal mines whose product is used exclusively by companies which produce 80 per cent of the steel for national defense, and consider the nature of the United Mine Workers and its government.

That Lewis is a dictator and that he rules the districts or subdistricts of his empire through satraps responsible and beholden to him alone is well understood and never denied in the union movement. His power is absolute, and when it suits his purpose and his dictatorial character to appoint subdictators over the districts, he does so in contemptuous violation of the democratic process which he and other professional unioneers of the sinister subgovernment invoke when democracy seems more appetizing than absolutism.

The miners have no voice in the decisions made in their name, except occasionally when it is obvious to Lewis that they will sustain him. In other issues the decisions are made for them, and they are informed of the course that they are to follow and required to obey.

Not even the scrubwomen and window washers who toiled for George Scalise had less influence in the affairs of their union than the miners have in the U. M. W. under John L. Lewis. The scrubwomen and window washers had no more to say about the rates of their dues and fees and the expenditure of their money out of the central treasury, and thus it was that Lewis, with the great treasury of the miners under his own hand, was able to contribute or lend $500,000 toward the election of President Roosevelt at a time when the money was welcome.

THUS, also, the dues and fees of the miners to the extent of about two million dollars were lent or given like Federal grants to the States, counties and cities, for the organizatizon of C. I. O. unions in other industries, including the editorial department of the American press. And thus, in these other fields of labor, Lewis gained a political power which is not yet broken, although it may seem to be broken, just as the political power of the President was extended and intrenched by the distribution of money out of the national Treasury in the form of loans and grants to the subdivisions of Government and by the appointment of deserving New Dealers to positions of minor power.

Lewis, the politician and opportunist, once needled his old enemy, Will Green, the president of the A. F. of L., with a taunt about crooks in the leadership of A. F. of L. unions, but that was no true expression of his own attitude toward crooks and racketeers. He was content to reside in the house of labor with them for years and never raised his voice or hand against a crook or racketeer, as such, until a moment when he thought he could embarrass Green by mentioning these vermin.

ALTHOUGH his mine workers have taken a formal stand against Communists, Lewis cordially cooperated with them in the organization of the C. I. O., and the explanation that he merely used them but reserved the power to destroy them when they had served their purpose for him is neither true in fact nor an indication of his attitude toward Communism. He has not been able to destroy them but, by his encouragement, has placed them in positions of great power in some of the most dangerous areas of union organization, where they still rule in the name of Josef Stalin.

And the evidence all shows that Lewis, as a man who desires and acquires power for its own sake to the total neglect or destruction of the rights of the rank and file, would be as comfortable running a Communist dictatorship in the role of an American Stalin as in a Hitleresque rulership of the American Nation.

His political ethics were revealed when he sullenly condemned President Roosevelt for his refusal to pay off the political obligation which he thought he had bought with the $500,000 of the miners' money.

JOHN LEWIS is President Roosevelt's personal problem, for it was the early New Deal which raised him to power, knowing the sort of man he was, but underestimating the extent and ruthlessness of his personal ambition. All the New Dealers then had reason to know how little Lewis cared for the democratic process, but then, and in fact, until two weeks ago, the advocates of the new order in the United States were content to let the unions run wild and get their growth by rough-and-tumble mischief at the expense of the whole country.

But a change of heart was indicated by the recent speech of Mrs. Frances Perkins to the A. F. of L. in Seattle, delivered, unquestionably, under instructions from the President, calling for strict self-regulation by the unions and, also, in a negative way, for the open shop, with a threat of legislative compulsion if the reform did not come from within.

Now Lewis, the dictator, has openly challenged the President on an issue in which the safety and the defense of the Nation are at stake.

Our Defense Effort

By Mark Sullivan.

War Used To Promote Revolution

ABOUT the coal strike and Mr. John L. Lewis' resistance to President Roosevelt, the most pregnant statement is that of Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia. Senator Byrd has been a thoroughgoing supporter of the President's foreign policies. But now he says:

SULLIVAN

"As a supporter, up to this date, of the President's foreign policies, I serve notice now that I do not intend to consider voting one step closer to war, except in our own defense, so long as sound and constructive measures are not adopted stopping at once all defense industry strikes. . . . If we cannot meet at home the challenges to our defense effort, this, in itself, demonstrates our incapacity to solve the problems of foreign nations. We have menaces at home today as great or greater than those abroad, and these home menaces must be dealt with before we can hope to cope with the others."

In that, Senator Byrd does more than merely join in angry imprecations against Mr. Lewis, which is what most of the comment consists of. Senator Byrd drags into the light the reason why many have been unwilling to follow the President's course about the war; and why others, who have supported the President so far, are now hesitant.

THE REASON is broader than Senator Byrd expresses it. He names two conditions which must be remedied before he will support neutrality repeal or other steps toward war. One is, strikes in defense industry; the other is, inefficiency in the conduct of the defense program. But the broader reason is one which Mr. Wendell Willkie put in words the other day. Mr. Willkie, like Senator Byrd, has supported the President's actions in foreign affairs. Mr. Willkie implies he will continue to do so, in spite of what deeply disturbs him. Mr. Willkie says that the Administration uses the emergency in foreign affairs "as cover for a special New Deal brand of economic revolution."

To put it in yet plainer words: Many persons in Congress and elsewhere feel that some New Dealers are intent upon a domestic purpose—a social and economic revolution; that they use the war, and our defense program, as a means of promoting their domestic purpose; that Congress is asked to confer powers upon the Executive for the sake of defense, and that these powers are then used for the promotion of the domestic revolution.

This feeling accounts for much of the opposition at every step in Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policy. But for this feeling, Mr. Roosevelt would have got more votes for the lease-lend bill, more votes for the extension of the Draft Act. But for this feeling we could have had national unity—which we do not now have, and are not likely to have so long as this feeling exists. The emotion and intention which Senator Byrd blurted out in spontaneous indignation is shared, consciously or instinctively, concretely or vaguely, by perhaps half our people.

THE FEELING will not be wholly allayed by whatever step Mr. Roosevelt takes about Mr. Lewis; for the economic revolution, of which the New Deal is suspected, covers much more than labor. It extends, as any economic revolution does, into practically every aspect of public affairs. Besides, Mr. Lewis' recalcitrance against Mr. Roosevelt is partly an incident of the personal relations between two men, partly an incident of labor politics on the eve of the approaching annual convention of C. I. O.

Adequate remedy of defense strikes can come only by act of Congress. Congress is willing to act, eager to act, and confident of public support. For a year and a half Congress has been restrained from acting about labor relations, partly by the wish of the President, partly by strategy of New Dealers. Fourteen months ago the House passed, by a vote of 2 to 1, amendments to the National Labor Relations Act which could have obviated the present strikes and otherwise rectified our national labor policies and practices. That was in June, 1940, when the whole of the House was before the voters for renomination and reelection. The amendments were prevented from coming to a vote in the Senate. More lately, measures about labor relations, introduced in Congress, have been kept in abeyance by deference to the President's wish. As it is commonly put, Congress is ready to act whenever the President gives the "go" sign.

This deference arises from a reluctance of Congress to go contrary to the President, even on a domestic matter, during an emergency in foreign relations. If Congress would act about defense strikes on its own initiative and prerogative, it would reassure those who feel that the foreign emergency is being made responsible for domestic policies. This is what Senator Byrd seeks.

Dr. Pope's Talk on Iran Opens Near East Series

The railroad in Iran, over which the British are sending supplies to Russia, is an "extraordinary achievement" in building, and its lack in sidings and rolling stock is being repaired to such extent that within six months it should be adequate to carry a great volume of traffic, Dr. Arthur Upham Pope, of New York City, said yesterday in the opening address of the Near East lecture series at the Shoreham Hotel.

Eight hundred women, members of numerous organizations, gathered in the ballroom for the lecture on "The Near East, the Cradle of Historic Conflicts," by Dr. Pope, who is director of the American Institute of Art and Archeology.

The so-called "pure races of which the Nazi theoreticians speak so glibly are as naught"—such as those occupying a few islands in the Pacific—whereas great races are those which gather to themselves a variety of influences, he said.

Land Where Aryans Developed

Iran, he pointed out, was the land where Aryans developed. They appeared there as a people orderly and humane, loving justice. When the Nazi regime says "we are the exponents of the Aryans," they are uttering "a monstrous historical blasphemy," Dr. Pope said.

Pointing out that the Near East is "a theater of historic conflicts," he said "on that stage we may see the last battle in the triumph over barbarism."

The first "really organized empire in the Near East was Assyria, which rested on military violence."

"Frightfulness was their discovery," he said.

"There suddenly emerged out of the highlands of Iran a new power, the idea of righteousness, justice and humanity. Nineveh returned to dust. The empire so terrifying was brittle; its ruin was swift and complete. A moral fallacy lay at the bottom of the empire," Dr. Pope said.

Wallace Murray, chief of Near Eastern Affairs, Department of State, introduced the speaker after a brief talk by Mrs. Raymond Clapper, chairman of the series.

Discusses Religion Of Near East

"It means a great deal," she said, "to have such a group of women come together to study the problems of this shrinking world."

Dr. Pope, who has made many trips to Iran and served as adviser on art to the Persian government, discussed religions, art and archeology, development of agricultural life and conquests which go into the history of the Near East.

After the luncheon Dr. Pope was honor guest at a luncheon at the Shoreham, at which other guests included Mrs. Clapper, Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Mrs. Carter Glass, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Mrs. Walter Wyatt, Mrs. Edward Shields, Mrs. Charles J. Brand, Mrs. Curtis Shears, Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, Mrs. J. Marcellus Woodard, Mrs. Tilman Parks, Mrs. Frank Buck, Miss Achsah Dorsey, Mrs. W. C. Burke and Mrs. Alexander Dye.

Radio Will Honor Woman Skipper

Capt. D'Arcy Grant, who in private life is Mrs. John William Parrott, jr., will be the guest of honor this afternoon at 3:30 on the "Women Who Achieve" radio hour on Station WWDC.

J. Jeune Carter and Mrs. Edward R. Seal, who present this program, invited Capt. Grant to come up to Washington from her home at Pines-on-Severn, Arnold, near Annapolis, Md., to relate some of her experiences.

Capt. Grant is the young woman who, several years ago, purchased the sailing vessel Fanny Insley, and thereby became the only woman skipper of a sailing vessel on Chesapeake Bay. Shortly thereafter the Fanny Insley sank in a storm. Some time later, Capt. Grant had an opportunity to purchase the schooner Henry Disston, which is also a sailing vessel, and she and her husband organized Vagabond Cruises, Inc., a company which will conduct windjammer cruises on the bay next summer. In purchasing the ship, Capt. Grant also acquired Capt. Cox, skipper of the craft, who has sailed 40 years before the mast, and who is inseparable from his ship.

Church Women Open Three-Day Session of Council

Churchwomen's Missionary Group Opens Parley in D. C.

With the theme, "Christian Frontiers for Democracy at Home and Abroad," the Missionary Institute of the Washington Council of Church Women opened a three-day session yesterday with a registration of 700 women.

At Calvary Baptist Church the institute is bringing an intensive course in home and foreign missions, with Mrs. W. H. Ballengee, Edinburg, Va.; Mrs. H. C. Michael, Johnstown, Pa.; Mrs. Alexander Maitland, Richmond, Va.; Mrs. E. H. Silverthorn, Montclair, N. J., and Mrs. Josephine M. Stearns as leaders.

The responsibilities, as well as the privileges of democracy, were stressed by Mrs. Silverthorn in the opening session of the class in home missions yesterday. The course is based on the book, "Christian Roots of Democracy in America," by Arthur E. Holt.

There must be adequate self-discipline, or discipline must be enforced, she pointed out.

Mrs. Michael is leading the class in foreign study, which is discussing contributions that the Christian church can make in bringing order to a chaotic world "which finds itself unable to save itself from disaster." This class is studying "A Christian Imperative," by Roswell Barnes.

Mrs. George Ross, president of the council, made the welcoming address, and Mrs. Fannie Foster, who is in charge of the council's missionary department, presided.

Mrs. Ballengee, who is the inspirational speaker for the institute, is a member of the General Board of Missions and Church Extension of the Methodist Church. Mrs. Michael has served on the general executive board of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Lutheran Church for 12 years. Mrs. Maitland is chairman of the Committee on Woman's Work of the Presbyterian Church, United States. Mrs. Silverthorn is chairman of the National Council of Church Women.

In connection with the institute, Miss Etta Mai Russell, executive secretary of the council, set up an exhibit on "An Adventure in Neighborhood Friendliness," representing service of various social welfare agencies to communities in Washington.

Your Money's Worth Means Good Nutrition

By Ida Jean Kain

FOOD is expensive and you don't need anyone to tell you that. But, high as the grocery bills are mounting, some of you are not particularly concerned about getting your money's worth.

In spite of the fact that you count on spending a good share of your hard-earned cash for the family's three meals a day you leave out—through carelessness or lack of knowledge—the very factors which will insure a plus condition of mind and body. Without these there is no possibility of success or joy of living.

Let's look into this matter of eating three times a day. From numerous surveys it has been established that the average person gets enough calories and quite a few to spare. Otherwise, there would be no such preponderance of pounds.

Because of our almost national appreciation of meat, fish, and fowl, we get enough of the essential protein and that is all to the good. Protein is a good essential. But Vitamins A, B and C are conspecuously absent in our diet. We do not exercise half enough care about getting our daily quota of the protective foods.

Poor Breakfast

And, by the way, what did you have for breakfast? A sweet roll or toast, and coffee? That is practically the stock, substandard breakfast in America. And it is a very poor start for the day. To make sure of getting your share of Vitamin C you should have either fruit juice, half a grapefruit or tomato juice, and you should have one of these EVERY MORNING.

Since you also need an egg each day for its protein and mineral content, you can be surest of getting it at breakfast. Toast will either be whole wheat or the equivalent in enriched bread, or it won't mean a thing in Vitamin B. Basically, that is the breakfast you need. You need the same foods whether you register under or overweight on the scales.

If you are overweight, you can cut the calories by cutting down on butter and cream. You can do this by measuring the butter for your toast and the cream for your coffee. If you are trying to reduce, you can do without sugar and coffee cream.

Your breakfast calorie score can amount to quite a lot. Most Americans go on the theory that a light lunch means an agile mind, and eat lightly. A hot sandwich made with whole wheat or enriched bread, a green salad, and a glass of milk and fresh fruit make a balanced but light meal.

Hearty Lunch

If you like a hearty lunch, you can have meat, a green vegetable, bread and butter, fruit and milk. If you are overweight and want to reduce, skip the hot breads and the rich desserts — they're the weightmakers. And those who are trying to add curves can make a practice of having creamed soups, and either ice cream or a pudding with custard base for dessert.

A good basic dinner consists of: Lean meat (and the cheaper cuts supply protein of as good quality as the expensive steaks). Once a week, you should choose either liver or the other meat organs for the main course. Beef liver is just as nutritious as calf liver.

Balancing the menu to provide the protective essentials is the only way you can get full value for your money.

Color Under Furs

That ice creamy colored dresses worn under furs will be fashionable this fall is demonstrated in the outfit (above) shown yesterday by a local store at the luncheon fashion show at the Washington National Airport. The rare tawny toned ocelot coat is of the boxy type adaptable for sport or "don't dress for dinner" wear.

Cranberry Makes Delightful Meringue Pudding

KITCHEN topics these days turn to talk of hearty food. And with the cool weather that delightful berry, the cranberry, comes to the front. If you want to make a dessert that is economical and highlighted with flavor try the following recipe for Cranberry Meringue Pudding. A puffy-red-flecked combination of chopped nuts, dates and cranberries topped with an airy meringue this pudding is one that will carry off honors.

Cranberry Meringue Pudding

Sift flour to ½ cup. Resift with 2 teaspoons baking powder, 2 teaspoons sugar and ¼ teaspoon salt. Beat 2 egg yolks, reserving whites for making meringue. Add the egg yolks, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 3 cups chopped cranberries, ½ cup chopped dates and ½ cup chopped nuts to flour mixture. Mix well. Spread in a greased cake pan, 8 by 8 by 2 inches. Bake about 30 minutes in a moderate oven, 350 degrees. Beat 2 egg whites until frothy and add ¼ teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon lemon extract. Beat until stiff but not dry. Add 6 tablespoons sugar gradually and beat until stiff. Spread meringue over pudding. Continue baking 12 to 15 minutes or until meringue is delicately browned. Cut in squares to serve, either hot or cold. Yield, about 9 servings.

Midriff Illusion

Hollywood, Calif. — Constance Bennett's most sophisticated evening gown merely "indicates" a bare midriff, because Constance believes this is one style that belongs only at the beach. Like her bustle dresses for a new picture, this new gown has a skirt that is upped in back and is in black satinized taffeta with fitted bodice. All of which is very quaint. Then for a dash of spice there's a midriff panel of flesh chiffon and net edged with appliques of black satin in a scrolled design.

Wife Asks How to Revive Premarital Gallantry Of Manner in Husband Who Never Tells Her He Loves or Admires Her; Otherwise, He's Ideal

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been married three years this fall to a man who, in all respects but one, is an ideal husband. We have a child a year old whom both of us worship. I am nearly 25 years old and my husband is 15 years older, although even our closest friends don't realize it.

He had been married before and has another child, a son 14 years old, whom he supports and has placed in an excellence boys' military school. He never mentions the boy, nor speaks of his own past—because both he and his parents were involved in a very disagreeable situation at the time of his divorce, when his former wife made things very unpleasant for all of them.

He never sees his son, because his former wife evidently has made him out to be a terrible person to the boy. He has written the boy and never had an answer. His divorce became final a year before we were married; and I had met him three years prior to that. He probably would still be living with her if he had not met and wanted to marry me. I mention these facts because they may have some bearing on the present situation.

I was reared in a family where there was never any show of affection between the parents or children; and where my father never had a good word to say for marriage. However, I had the usual boy friends that a young girl has, but never really fell in love until I met my husband, who showed me every attention. In fact, my friends said they never had seen a man so crazy about anyone.

For some years, he was employed by the Government and now he has a responsible position that he is very proud of. He makes a good salary and we are building a home. And yet, I am not completely happy. I wonder whether I am going through a phase of adjustment that all brides experience? Or did I enter marriage with too many illusions? We had agreed, before marriage, never to behave as my parents had. And yet, today I feel I am taken for granted. Our baby gets all the love and attention that I used to get. I merely get kissed "good bye," in the morning; "hello," when he comes home from work; and "good night," at bed time. He never says that he loves me or admires me; nor does he comment on anything I do.

I get every detail of his office day when he comes home and am told how tired he is, continually. But he never sees fit to go to bed early, at 9:30 or 10 p. m., as I do when I am tired, after being up since 6:30 a. m., caring for the baby and the apartment, cooking, washing and ironing.

I know he loves me; but I wish he would show it more. When I mention my views to him, as I have several times, he only grows colder and will not discuss the matter with me. If I am wrong in expecting attention, there must be some way I can learn to take things for granted, too, as he does. I must say it is hard to give attention and affection when so little is returned; and as a consequence, I find myself giving less and less. Could it be that he lived so long in a loveless marriage with the other woman, staying only because of the son he adored, that a new marriage and another child seem to him a replica of the former pattern, so that he is falling back into his former behavior, forgetting that I am the wife he loves?

Please tell me what to do, if you can. All I want is the old affection, admiration and companionship we enjoyed until we were married. Can it be that all husbands react this way—taking their wife for granted? Or am I expecting too much from my husband and from marriage? He takes the attitude that I should be happy because I have everything. And I have, of course, except the one thing I want. I am hoping you can straighten me out. Sincerely, DISILLUSIONED.

Marriage Is Passing Through Perilous Straits

DEAR DISILLUSIONED: One cannot honestly condone your husband's behavior, on the theory that it is typically complacent conjugal conduct. Granted that, owing to your loveless childhod, you may have brought to the marriage a somewhat excessive craving for tender affection, which might tend, in turn, to put your husband on the defensive in your affectional dealings — still, you have shown the grace of mind and spirit to want to mend your ways, if they are contributing to the growing estrangement, whereas your husband coldly refuses to concede that the matter concerns him in any way.

His manner implies that he disavows any responsibility for your mounting (and, I may say, legitimate) unhappiness; and that, indeed, he construes it as a personal affront when you beseech his cognizant cooperation in healing the breach. This attitude suggests that he is, more or less consciously, emotionally resistant to the possibility of having certain intrinsic shortcomings of his disclosed and discussed.

One may guess that reproaches occasioned by his failure to show a tender and imaginative gallantry to his wife are an old story to him. And one may justifiably wonder whether this obstinately phlegmatic aspect of his personality—now directed at you, and gradually taking the joy out of your life—may have precipitated the decline of his first marriage to a "loveless relationship," which finally ended in diworce and the loss of his son's affections to boot. Lacking other explanations for the failure of that marriage, and confronted by his inexplicable indifference to your heart-hunger, it seems a valid speculation, to say the least.

Although you have flatly stated your belief that he loves you (even while unwilling to be consistently tender in word and action), it is my thought that love in the mature and spiritually aware sense is an experience as yet unknown to him. Someone has defined love as the desire to give fulness of life. Another has said that love consists in recognizing the security and happiness of the beloved as being co-equal in importance to one's own. Apparently your husband's idea of mate love stops short at the point where his own needs of comfort and companionship seem adequately met.

His love of his children might be construed as less magnanimous than egoistic in essence; as being a powerful projection of self-love. He may dote on them (when they are in his good graces), because, as he sees them, they represent himself in refreshingly flattering form. His reaction toward his son—in never seeing him or speaking of him, since the boy gives evidence of having formed a bad opinion of him—seems peculiarly unfeeling.

It could be, of course, that his stoic attitude toward the boy (and the whole chapter of experience which he represents), is designed to repress and conceal a locust-plague of regrets at having abandoned the lad, more or less, along with the mother. And his perfunctory kindness to you may be an expedient camouflage of a deeper feeling of hostility, based on the assumption that you are responsible (though involuntarily), for breaking his life in two. In lavishing upon his baby daughter all the love and attention he once gave you, he may be unconsciously signifying. "Here, at least, is some compensation for the son I lost in process of making this marriage."

In any event, his behavior tends toward the morbidly introspective side. His chronic tiredness bespeaks a man worn with internal conflict; and so does his preference for sitting up late alone, even when most weary. His detailed discussion of office matters may amount, unconsciously, to talking around subjects that lie nearest his heart—either to divert his own thoughts or to throw you off their trail. I think one must admit that your marriage is passing through perilous straits—primarily because your husband insists on keeping his real feelings a guilty secret from you.

In courtship, you shared an affection, admiration and companionship based largely on an illusory concept of each other's qualities. In marriage, if this relationship is to be retained, it must be translated into the more substantial form of mutually avowed and honorably maintained interdependence. Which means the problems of each must be freely discussed and fully accepted as the problems of both—or of the twain.

When this is the individual and collective attitude toward a given marriage, the emotional climate thereof is conducive to the everlasting growth of love in its finest, most durable aspects. And when the relationship is deprived of the support of that attitude—on one or both sides—neither psychic nor social solidarity can be long maintained. Thus, it seems to me your marriage can be preserved as a worthwhile relationship only if your husband can be persuaded to give you his confidence as freely as you would give him yours.

The Gentler Sex — By Malvina Lindsay

Defense Leader

AT LAST women are to be told just what to do in defense! Mrs. Henrietta De Goofey, president of the Do Something About It League, has been appointed chairman of public relations for the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Red Tape Division of National Defense.

Mrs. DeGoofey

The noted crusader announced her appointment yesterday at her press conference.

"Just what will be your duties, Mrs. DeGoofey?" asked a special assistant to a city editor.

"I am not prepared to make a statement on that yet," was the reply. "You see my department is just now in the process of organization—"

"Well what are you doing at present?" broke in an undercover man for an expert on international affairs.

"We'll, it's a little too early to give out anything on that either," replied Mrs. DeGoofey, "but as a matter of fact—and mind you this is off the record—I am holding a series of conferences."

Conferring and Concurring

"With whom are you conferring?" asked a copy desk special investigator.

"Any information on that will have to come from my head office," was the answer. "However, I think I would be safe in saying this much—we are working on a far-reaching, comprehensive program for the mobilization of our nation-wide resources—"

"Mrs. DeGoofey, just a minute!" interrupted an associate sob sister. "Can you give us just one concrete idea of what women may do in defense?"

"Oh, it is much too early to make any specific statements along that line," was the reply. "Now as soon as our program gets into shape—"

"But don't you think women do have a place in defense?" asked an undersecretary to a hobby editor.

"Oh unquestionably—no, wait, don't quote me on that! I have no authority to give out any statement along that line—as yet. Now after we get our organization under way—"

"Isn't there anything at all you can say right now to give us a story?" asked an assistant pet columnist.

"We-ll, I believe I would be safe in saying this much—the Nation at this hour looks to its motherhood—no wait! I am afraid that statement might cause trouble. It might be construed as a reflection on the fatherhood of the Nation."

"Oh I have it!" exclaimed the social secretary of a society editor. "Why not say, 'The Nation looks to its motherhood AND its fatherhood.'"

'Don't Quote Me On Anything'

"We'll maybe—no, I think that might be dangerous too. After all, everyone in the Nation isn't a mother or a father. You see I am new in this work and I don't want to say anything that would embarrass my organization. Now maybe a little later—"

"Mrs. DeGoofey," broke in a special aide to a political reporter, "what do you think the women of this country should do if bombs began falling in their back yards?"

"Oh I think—well that is . . . I . . . I wouldn't like to make a definite statement on such a matter until our organization is more fully perfected. I do feel, however, that this Nation has a glorious future and that the indomitable courage of our pioneer mothers—AND fathers will cause us to carry on the torch of truth, courage, justice, democracy—"

"Mrs. DeGoofey," shouted an assistant to an assistant office boy, "just WHEN will your organization be organized?"

"Well, probably along about 1945, I imagine—but wait! Wait! You understand that also is entirely off the record."

Nostalgic Hat and Muff

Hollywood, Calif.—Betty Field says her pill box and muff of curly gray lamb look exactly like a fur set she wore when she was 5. The stance of the hat and the girth of the muff stamp them as meant for the grown-up Betty, however. Worn sometimes with a blueberry woolen suit, the hat touches her right eyebrow and is draped with blue veiling.

Aunt Bessie Out of Town, Unable to See Windsors

Dozen Guests Gather to Meet Ducal Couple at White House Luncheon

By Hope Ridings Miller

"Where's Aunt Bessie?" That was the question rippling through the throng that gathered at the White House gates yesterday to see who was to have luncheon with the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. One o'clock had passed, and a number of guests had shown their cards to the guards, been admitted, and then rolled on up to the White House door.

DUCHESS OF WINDSOR

But Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, who started out being "Aunt Bessie" only to the Duchess of Windsor and is now more widely known by that name than any other, was not among them.

"I thought she'd be the first one here," observed on spectator, who declared she had been at the gate as early at 11:30 and she was positive "Aunt Bessie" hadn't arrived.

No, she wasn't there. But she had been invited. In fact, when the invitation went out to her on Monday and an answer wasn't forthcoming, there was a follow-up call from the White House. Then it was learned that Mrs. Merryman was visiting friends in New York and wouldn't be back in Washington in time for the party.

So-o-o, although you'll probably hear on all sides that Aunt Bessie snubbed the White House—in retaliation for Mrs. Roosevelt's announcement that a lecture engagement would prevent her from being on hand as hostess at the luncheon—the real story is the one I've just told you.

Dozen There for Ducal Pair

Meanwhile, promptly at 1 o'clock, a dozen guests gathered in the Red Room to await a signal to go on to meet the President and the ducal pair in the state dining room. In the company assembled in honor of the duke and duchess were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Edwin M. Watson, George T. Summerlin, chief of protocol; James Clement Dunn, adviser on political relations at the State Department; the Chief of the Division of European Affairs and Mrs. Ray Atherton, Capt. and Mrs. John R. Beardall, Mrs. George Barnett, cousin of the Duchess of Windsor; and Capt. and Mrs. James Roosevelt. Also in the party was Maj. E. G. M. Phillips, aide to the duke.

Mrs. Roosevelt made it clear at her press conference on Monday that she did not make out the guest list, that she had "no idea" who would attend the luncheon, and that the company was selected entirely by the State Department.

Late yesterday afternoon after reports of who was there began circulating freely, the whole town seemed to be talking about it . . . and wondering why no member of the British Embassy staff was asked.

"It's the first time in my memory," said a very old-time Washingtonian, "that an official of any country was feted at the White House without having some of his own countrymen present. And after all the Duke of Windsor is the Governor of the Bahamas . . . as well as a former king."

More About the Duchess' 'Beanies'

They say the third time's a charm: and for the third time, the Capital has waved goodby to the Windsors. They have been feted by the White House, the Brtish Embassy, several residential Washingtonians and the horsey set in Virginia. Maybe this might be a good time to bow out of the picture. Unless, of course, they want to have as many farewells at Patti . . .

* * * *

ADDENDA: One more word about the duchess, and then I'm really through—unless, of course, she has a return engagement. My special spy in New York called by telephone yesterday to say that despite any formal denials that the duchess had bought 15 hats, the story is true. "She hasn't actually bought them yet," said my informer, 'because they aren't paid for. But she has selected 17 new hats, and is considering two others."

"All beanies?" I asked breathlessly.

Seems most of them are, despite the fact that Mainbocher, her dressmaker, doesn't approve that type of lid for his best-known customer.

Peru's Envoy Will Be Host At Luncheon

The Peruvian Ambassador, Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander, will be host at a luncheon today at the embassy in honor of the Vice President of Peru, Rafael Larco Herrera, who arrived in Washington yesterday on an unofficial visit. Yesterday he was feted at a luncheon given by Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles at the Mayflower.

Vice President Larco will be whisked around the Capital for the next two days during his informal visit here. He will leave Friday for Miami. He has been touring this country by plane and arrived in California from Mexico. On his way East he visited Chicago, Montreal and other places of interest. Yesterday he was feted at a tea party given by the Newspaper Women's Club at 5 o'clock. He formerly published a paper in Peru.

Among the guests at the luncheon given by Mr. Welles were the Peruvian Ambassador, the Attorney General, Francis Biddle; the Postmaster General, Frank C. Walker; Senator Arthur Capper, Senator James E. Murray, Senator Guy M. Gillette, Senator Josh Lee, Representative Sol Bloom, Representative W. R. Poage, Representative Foster Stearns, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Ralph A. Bard; the Undersecretary of Commerce Wayne Chatfield Taylor; the Counselor of the Peruvian Embassy, Dr. Don Juan I. Elguera; William S. Knudsen, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union; Paul C. Daniels, acting chief of the Division of the American Republics, Department of State; Stanley Woodward, acting chief of protocol, Department of State; Capt. Albert P. Elbright, U. S. A., aide to Vice President Larco, and John F. Melby, Division of the American Republics, Department of State.

Miss Beverley Engaged to Wed Capt. G. C. Cowan

Mrs. Robert Beverley has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Mary-Welby Beverley, to Capt. Gerard Charles Cowan, of Borinquen Field, Puerto Rico. Miss Beverley attended George Washington University. Capt. Cowan is the son of Mrs. Ella May Watson, of Kansas City, Kans., and is a graduate of the United States Military Academy.

The wedding will take place November 5 in the Cadet Chapel at West Point.

Gallery Shows Mrs. Stone's Art Works

Washington society would seem to be having a field day at the Corcoran Gallery of Art this week, for yesterday "Water Colors by Agnes Stone" took their place beside "Sculptures by Maria Martins."

Agnes Stone, who in official life is Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, wife of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, was on hand in the central hall of the second story of the gallery, where her works are displayed, to greet the artseers who came in during the afternoon. Largely landscapes and seascapes with a few still lives interspersed for good measure, Mrs. Stone's works with their richness of color, delicacy of touch and forcefulness of interpretation are completely in keeping with the personality of their creator. In the pictures such as "Taos Pueblo," "Timberline," Glacier Park," "The Desert," "Santa Fe Inn," and "California Hills," can be seen the result of Chief Justice and Mrs. Stone's summer visit to the West. "Evening on the Bay," "Our Village" and "Isle au Haut Light" depict the surroundings of the Stones' summer home on Isle au Haut, Me.

Mrs. Stone's works will be on display until November 16. The exhibit of Senhora de Martin's sculpture will end Sunday.

'Maiden Name' Party Given

A memory book, treasured volume dear to all girlish hearts, took the limelight at an unusual luncheon yesterday when Mrs. Melville Church entertained at Pierre's—but under her maiden name, Miss Esther Denny. The more to bring back girlish memories, invitations had been extended in maiden names to the guests who for the most part had been presented in Washington early in this century and were largely representative of the service circles.

Mrs. Church's memory book—or should we say, Miss Denny's?—had been kept during the year of her own debut and the two following years. The luncheon guests saw themselves in pictures of days past, such as that of a group on the observation platform of a train which took them to the Army-Navy game at Franklin Field in Philadelphia. They were guests of Mrs. Robert O. Lord's parents, then Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Truman J. Newberry, and Mrs. Lord, formerly Miss Carol Barnes Newberry, was at the luncheon to verify it! They had shared the private car with the then Secretary of War and Mrs. William Howard Taft.

The party was in honor of Mrs. Robert Gifford, who was formerly Miss Evelyn Chew, and among the guests was her sister, Mrs. Upshur Moorhead, formerly Miss Lillian Chew. Others at the luncheon included Mrs. McCeney Werlich, formerly Miss Gladys Hinckley; Mrs. Harrison Stanton, formerly Miss Laura Wells; Mrs. Gilbert Rowcliff, formerly Miss Marion Leutze; Mrs. Conger Pratt, formerly Miss Sadie Murray, and Miss Carolyn Nash.

Frances Burke and L. M. Alden Wed at St. Matthew's Cathedral

Rev. Wilbur F. Wheeler Officiates at Ceremony Held in Sacristy

In the Sacristry of St. Matthews Cathedral yesterday, Miss Frances Janet Burke became the bride of Leland M. Alden. The Rev. Wilbur F. Wheeler officited at 11 o'clock.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin H. Burke, of Bar Harbor, Me. Mr. Alden's father is Dr. William C. Alden, of Washington.

The bride wore a street-length frock of gray wool and velveteen, with brown accessories. Her corsage was of yellow orchids. Miss Leslie Brough, her only attendant, was attired in fold wool, with black accessories, and she wore a corsage of green orchids.

John H. Alden, of Pittsburgh, was best man for his brother. A reception for members of the immediate families and close friends took place later at 2111 Massachusetts Avenue, where the former Miss Burke has made her home for a number of years.

After November 25, Mr. and Mrs. Alden will be at home at 5313 Broad Branch Road.

Miss Spilman Is Entertained At Dinner Party

Mrs. William Streett entertained last night at a dinner at the Shoreham in honor of Miss Phoebe Spilman, debutante daughter of Mrs. Harry Pool, of Warrenton, Va. Miss Spilman, who is now studying voice and piano in Baltimore, will make her bow to society at the Bachelor's Cotillion in Baltimore, December 3.

The dinner guests whom Mrs. Streett took on later to the Bundles for Britain Circus were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pool, Miss Elaine Darlington, Miss Sita Finkenstaedt, Miss Barbara Mallory, John Amory, Harry Rhett, Clifford Mallory, Britton Brown and Ralph Jester.

Mrs. R. T. McIntire Bidding Farewell To Her House Guest

Mrs. Ross T. McIntire, wife of Rear Admiral McIntire, personal physician to the President, is in New York City where she went yesterday to bid bon voyage to Mrs. Jan Noorduyn, who has been her house guest for some time.

Mrs. Noorduyn, wife of a Shell Oil official, makes her home in Curacao, Netherlands West Indies. She will sail for there on Friday. There have been any number of farewell parties in her honor and last week Dr. Paul Dickens was host at a dinner party and Mrs. Carlton Andrus was hostess at a luncheon.

Arriving here early last summer Mrs. Noorduyn visited Mrs. McIntire for several weeks. Mrs. McIntire then went to Hawaii and Mrs. Noorduyn went to Glacier National Park to spend several weeks. The visitor then rejoined Admiral and Mrs. McIntire here in September. Mrs. McIntire is expected back to Washington on Sunday.

Vinton Chapins Have Been Sent To Port-au-Prince

Friends here who were hoping that foreign service changes might send Mr. and Mrs. Vinton Chapin back to Washington soon will have to relinquish that hope for a couple of years at least.

Mr. Chapin, who has been serving as Second Secretary of the American Legation in Dublin, has just been designated Second Secretary of the American Legation and Consul at Port-au-Prince, Haiti, and will serve in dual capacity.

The Chapins were stationed in Prague when the former United States Minister and Mrs. Wilbur Carr were there. Upon leaving the Czech capital, Mr. Chapin was transferred to London, and thence to Ireland. Before being assigned to Prague, he was assistant to the Undersecretary of State, and he and Mrs. Chapin made their home here at 3318 O Street.

Greek Envoy To Be Entertained

Dr. and Mrs. P. S. Constantinople will entertain at a party on Saturday afternoon at their home in Spring Valley in honor of the former Greek Ambassador to Russia and Mme. Christo Diamantopolous who are visiting here.

Mr. Diamantopolous, whose title is really minister-at-large, is not related to the Greek Minister here. He is married to an American woman from Denver and has visited in this country often.

First Secretary of Portuguese Legation, Mme. Garin Entertain

Sprinkling of Residentials Attends Almost Entirely Diplomatic Party

By Carolyn Bell

"Just about everyone from Lisbon seems to be coming to Washington these days," said Mme. Garin yesterday as she introduced a former American consul in Lisbon to an Army officer who had spen' the last several years in Portugal. Entertaining between 5 and 7 o'clock, the First Secretary of the Portuguese Legation and Mme. Garin made what they laughingly referred to as "our debut." Although they have been here about six months the Garins have been quietly getting settled in their spacious apartment at the Warwick.

Almost entirely a diplomatic party, there was a sprinkling of residentials here and there. Bright red roses centered the buffet table where a delectable array of hors d'oeuvres came in for lots of attention. In a small salon off the drawing room a punch bowl was arranged and around it were gathered a cluster of people.

The hostess, looking no end chic, greeted her guests wearing a simple black velvet frock with a three-tiered peplum edged in white lace. Meanwhile, Dr. Vasco Vieira Garin—the host no less—was here, there and everywhere seeing graciously to his guests' wants.

Mrs. Finletter Attends Party

Having a heated discussion over flying were Mrs. Thomas K. Finletter, whose husband is in the State Department, and Peter Heydon, of the Australian Legation. Wearing a hat that shrieked of Paris—yes, Paris!—was Mme. de Bianchi, wife of the Portuguese Minister. It was a wisp of blue satin and trimmed with a large cabbage rose. She was accompanied by the Minister's petite daughter, Maria de Bianchi.

"There seem' to be lots of temporary widows and widowers around these days," said pretty Mme. Coste, whose husband, the Charge d'Affaires of the Rumanian Legation, is in New York—but only for a day or so. She wore a pale blue feather hat to top off her all-black costume. Mme. Kutlu, wife of the Second Secretary of the Turkish Embassy, also arrived sans husband. Her black hat was demurely veiled, and she wore a sparkling necklace to relieve her dark outfit.

The Minister Counselor of the British Embassy and Mme. Konder sipped a drink and chatted with a group of friends. She was glamorously swathed in lots of veil. The Naval Attache of the Peruvian Embassy and Senora de Labarthe were there, as were the First Secretary of the Brazilian Embassy and Mme. Alencastro Guimaraes and the Naval Attache of the Brazilian Embassy and Mme. Amorin do Valle.

Lieut. Mirepoix Accompanies Wife

Smartly outfitted in a tailleur, the Marquise de Mirepoix was escorted by her handsome husband, who is assistant naval attache of the French Embassy. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Watson were accompanied by Lady Patricia Latham, who wore a cunning hat tied under her chin with pink veiling. Marques de Zahara was among the invited guests as were the Second Secretary of the Brazilian Embassy, Hugo Gouthier; the First Secrtary of the Finnish Legation and Mme. Bryn, the Counselor of the Finnish Legation and Mme. Solanka, and the Secretary of the Greek Legation and Mme. Philon Philon.

Wearing an emerald green dinner dress and a fox jacket, Mrs. Morris Cafritz, who entertained later at dinner, was among those attending the party yesterday and others included Lieut. Col. and Mrs. J. A. Boyer, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. George, Mr. and Mrs. Barton Yost, Mr. and Mrs. J. Delattre-Seguy, Ensign Phillip Wiley, who is now on duty with the intelligence division of the Navy Department; Mr. and Mrs. Warden Wilson, Stanley Woodward, the Second Secretary of the Portuguese Legation and Mme. Affra, Bon de Sousa as well as Bon de Sousa, jr., and the Second Secretary of the Portuguese Legation, E. Machado, and dozens of others.

Party Tonight Will Honor Miss Kenner

Another party for Miss Clare Warfield Kenner, who will marry William G. Hill, jr., November 7, is planned for tonight, when Miss Margaret Hartman Kremen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Kremen, will be hostess at a miscellaneous shower at her home, 2440 Sixteenth Street. Miss Kenner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Kenner, of Edgemoor.

About 25 guests are expected, among them being Mrs. Hill, mother of the future bridegroom; Mrs. Kenner, mother of the bride-to-be; Miss Margaret Hill, Miss Kathleen Duncan, Miss Mary Tudor Morsell, Miss Sue Morsell, Mrs. James M. Carr, Miss Martha Howard, Mrs. Earl E. Everhart, Miss Rita Walsh, Miss Dorothy Selby, Miss Dorothy Bell, Miss Mary Ann Kenner, Miss Gail Koss and Mrs. John E. Everhart.

Millers End Wedding Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Andrew Miller are making their home in Wilmington, Del., since their wedding trip to New York City. Before her marriage October 11 at All Saints Episcopal Church in Chevy Chase, Mrs. Miller was Miss Evelyn Jean Ramer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Ramer, of Bethesda. Mr. Miller, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. J. Miller, of Washington.

The Rev. Clayton A. Chrisman, retired, who is a great uncle of the bride, gave her in marriage. She was attended by Mrs. Amos Bagley as matron of honor, and Miss Rose Jones, Miss Charlotte Warthen, Miss Elizabeth Raymond and Miss Elizabeth Crown as bridesmaids.

Best man for Mr. Miller was Donald J. Fugitt, of Washington, and ushers were Van Ness Lawless, of Washington; William Lee Ramer, of Bethesda; Allen C. Fisher, jr., and Thomas E. McGoury, of Cumberland, Md.

Mrs. Frona Colburn Returns to Capital

Mrs. Frona Wait Colburn, writer and lecturer on prehistoric Indian civilization in the Americas, has returned to the Dodge Hotel for the winter after spending the summer at Orkney Springs, Va. Mrs. Colburn is the donor of the Colburn collection of 900 Indian baskets to the museum of the Department of the Interior.

Last season at Martha's Vineyard, she wrote a short story titled, "Love's Second Reincarnation," an advanced experiment in psychology. This year she gave a series of Sunday evening talks at Orkney Springs on her experiences as a writer on Indian civilizations, to which she has devoted a lifetime of study.

Mrs. C. N. Goodwin Will Entertain At Tea on Friday

Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin will entertain at a tea Friday afternoon in her apartment at the Shoreham. Combining social activities with a cause is an old story for Mrs. Goodwin and the primary purpose of the tea will be to discuss plans for the Fight for Freedom Committee's patriotic revue, "Fun to be Free," which will be held at the Uline Arena November 4.

Among the Washington women who will attend the tea and lend their support to the cause will be Mrs. William Douglas, Mrs. Sumner Welles, Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Miss Vera Bloom, Mrs. James W. Earlier in the week Mrs. Goodwin was hostess at a similar tea which was also held in her Shoreham apartment.

Weiss—Gerstenfeld Wedding Planned

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Weiss, of McKeesport, Pa., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Isabelle Weiss, to Sidney Gerstenfeld, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gerstenfeld.

The wedding will take place in January.

Book Series Opens Thursday

Mrs. Sumner Welles, wife of the Undersecretary of State, has been added to the list of patronnesses for a series of eight talks on "Books of the Year" beginning Thursday morning at the Shoreham Hotel. Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt heads the list, as previously announced, and also included are Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, Lady Halifax, Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, Mrs. William B. Douglas, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., and others.

Mrs. Guyer Fetes With 'Pink Party'

At an all-pink party yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Robert G. Guyer entertained at tea and cocktails at her home, 4217 Van Ness Street. The dining room was a symphony in pink, from the great cluster of roses in a silver bowl that centered the dining table to the tall pink tapers and the mints in the bon-bon dishes.

The hostess herself, who received in the drawing room, was gowned in peacock moire, fashioned floor length, with a flowing skirt, short sleeves and a V neckline, which she accented with a diamond clip. Assisting at the tea table during the afternoon was Mrs. William E. Cole, wife of Maj. Gen. Cole, and Mrs. Clifton Carter, wife of Col. Carter.

Among the guests who dropped in during the dusk to dark hours were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Delos Emmons, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Oliver Echols, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Frank R. Keefer, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Distler, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Leonard T. Gerow, C. C. Townes, of Sebring, Fla.; Col. and Mrs. Thomas North, Col. and Mrs. William Sackville, Col. and Mrs. W. E. Chambers, Col. David Rumbaugh, Mrs. John Burr, and many more.

Mrs. Guyer will leave on Friday for New York, where she will attend the Army-Notre Dame game on Saturday. She will stay at the Hotel Barkley and will return to town the first of the week.

The Basil Manlys Entertain Henry F. Grady

The Federal Power Commissioner and Mrs. Basil Manly entertained at a dinner last night in their home, in Spring Valley, in honor of Henry F. Grady, former Assistant Secretary of State, who recently returned from a special mission to the Far East.

Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Richberg, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond P. Brant and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Frost.

Home Purchased By the Wessels

Capt. Karl Wessel, Swedish Military Attache, and Mme. Wessel have purchased the home at 3070 Foxhall Road and plan to move there about December 1.

Shortly after Mme. Wessel returned to Washington from a summer in her homeland, she and Capt. Wessel moved to the Lundeen home, 6221 Twenty-ninth Street, where they are now living.

Cafritzes Hold Dinner Party

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz entertained at a small dinner party last night at their home on Foxhall Road, taking their guests on later to the opening of the circus for the benefit of Bundles for Britain.

Guests included Mrs. Davies Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, Col. Burdette Fitch and Edward Van Devanter.

Comins Returns From Mexico

Eben F. Comins returned to Washington on Thursday from Mexico, where he has been spending several weeks in studying the Otomi Indians.

He was invited by the Government to show his drawings at the International Museum in Mexico City. The rest of the summer, Mr. Comins spent in Arizona at the Government reservation studying and drawing Papago Indians. These will be shown to friends by special invitation.

Sturdy health is vital to National Defense—yet millions of our people are under par. One cause is HIDDEN HUNGER—a form of malnutrition due to the lack of vitamins, minerals and other essential food elements in the diet.

As a defense against HIDDEN HUNGER, leading nutritionists advise diets that supply adequate amounts of all the essential food elements.

As a part of these diets, they recommend MILK because pure, fresh milk helps furnish so many of the elements needed to combat HIDDEN HUNGER. (See table below.)

Sealtest Homogenized Vitamin "D" Milk is an ideal milk for the job. It's a fine milk made even finer.

It's better for babies because it forms a softer curd that tends to digest more readily.

It's better for children because every quart contains 400 added units of precious Vitamin "D".

It's better for adults because it has all the nutritional value of regular milk plus a creamy, tempting flavor.

Make milk-drinking a daily habit in your home—a pint for adults—a quart for children—and get the benefit of Sealtest Homogenized Vitamin "D" Milk. Telephone MIchigan 1011 for regular delivery—or ask your grocer.

Pepper Favors Declaration Of War and A. E. F. if Needed

the line and predicted final action early next week.

A break developed in the usually solid Southern support for the President's foreign policy moves as Senator Bilbo (Democrat), Mississippi, opposed any revision beyond the House bill.

"I am 100 per cent for the House bill," Bilbo said. "I am just as strong against repeal of Sections 2 and 3. I will vote to leave these sections in the law as they are."

Two other Southern Senators were reported "doubtful"—Senator Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, and Senator Russell (Democrat), Georgia.

The spirited exchange between Senator Pepper and Senator Clark, of Idaho, came after the Idahoan asked if Pepper would send another A. E. F. if that was necessary to defeat Hitler.

"Remembering the exact form of the Senator's question," replied Pepper, "I would answer 'yes' to that."

Pepper stressed the words "if necessary," and said he was prepared to show Hitler can be defeated by supplying essential materials to nations fighting the Axis, without going to war.

"Would the Senator from Idaho prefer to be the victim of Hitler rather than send an expeditionary force?" asked Pepper.

Danaher Enters Discussion

"Well, of course, no," Clark replied, "but you are assuming we will become the victim of Hitler. What proof have you of that?"

"And you are assuming that we would send an expeditionary force," said Pepper.

Pepper's answer to Clark's query of whether he would vote for a declaration of war "if necessary" to defeat Hitler was also "yes" but he contended throughout that the Administration's program of all-out aid to the Allies was designed to defeat Germany by means short of war.

Senator Danaher (Republican), of Connecticut, entered the discussion to say there were already calls in Europe for a B. E. F. to aid Russia and Senator Taft said an A. E. F. was "inevitable" in event of war.

Earlier in his speech, Pepper cited the voting records of several Senators now opposing Neutrality Act revision, contending many of these opposed defense measures before Europe's war broke.

La Follette, Nye to Speak

Senator Taft led off yesterday's second day opposition attack on the bill, and today Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, and Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, will both take the floor against it.

Taft accused the President of "admitting publicly" in his Navy Day speech "that he has tricked the American people."

"While talking of peace—even while Senate leaders talk of amending the Neutrality Act as a measure of defense—President Roosevelt announces he has already done what he can to plunge the Nation into a shooting war."

Following the opposition line of attack charted Monday by Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, Taft announced at the outset that he would "present only one proposition—that the passage of this resolution is equivalent to war."

Passage of the bill, the Ohio Republican asserted, would give the President Congressional authority to conduct "an undeclared war against Germany, Italy and Japan on all the oceans of the world and in all the ports into which sea-going ships may sail."

Roosevelt Speech Approved by Most Of 50 Million in U.S.

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said yesterday that Mr. Roosevelt's Navy Day speech Monday night was heard by at least 50 million Americans and "undoubtedly a larger audience outside the United States."

White House telegraph and switchboard facilities nearly "collapsed" under the pressure of messages following the speech, Early said, adding that the communications were running about eight to one in support of the President's stand.

Commenting on a Nazi statement that Mr. Roosevelt leads a faction "trying to drag the American people into war and plow under America's sons and fathers of American children on the battlefields of Europe," the White House aide said:

"It seems to me I have heard that before. It can't be original with the Germans."

A charge that the Administration's foreign policy would result in "plowing under every fourth American boy" was made last winter by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana.

Chemists Attend Dance at Willard

Approximately 500 members of the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists attended a dinner-dance at the Willard Hotel last night as part of their fifty-seventh annual meeting.

Earlier, the members heard 241 scientific papers read to them by delegates from all parts of the country. Dr. L. B. Broughton, of the University of Maryland, president of the association, presided over the meeting. The three-day session will end today.

USO to Lease Gunton Bldg. As Recreational Center Today

Manning and servicing of the center will be with funds raised here last July in the United Service Organizations campaign. A quarter million dollars was collected, $145,000 of which went to U. S. O. headquarters for national distribution.

Of the remaining $105,000, 12 private agencies offering welfare and recreational services to soldiers and sailors each received allotments and $30,000 was budgeted for the District Defense Council's recreation services. It is from the latter fund that the new center will be manned, also the one for Negro enlisted men now in operation at Banneker Recreation Center.

Asked if the percentage of the USO contributions raised here which was sent to national headquarters (nearly 60 per cent) was not unduly large, Wolter pointed out that, to the contrary, Washington had retained a larger proportionate amount than most cities.

He disclosed that for a time it appeared Washington might not get a central recreation place at all because of doubt in some Federal quarters that the Nation's Capital was a defense center. Then, when it was decided to rent space instead of consuming the additional time that would be required to erect a new building, technical difficulties over signing of a lease arose in the Federal Works Agency.

Nationally, considerable criticism has been leveled at the Government for procrastination in building service clubs. Last month, Thomas E. Dewey, New York district attorney and who was chairman of the U. S. O. campaign which raised 13 million dollars, complained that the Government's part in the program was a failure to date.

Last week the War Department announced that contracts for construction of 107 of the club buildings have been awarded by the Office of Quartermaster General.

Wolter said the delay in signing the lease for the Gunton Building might be attributed to the fact that, as far as he knows, Washington is the first city where a USO club is being rented, instead of built, and various problems peculiar to this unprecedented situation came up.

To rent, rather than build, was more expedient, said Wolter, since the $100,000 allocated to the District would not have been enough to cover the buying of a centrally located site and construction of the building.

Robert E. Bondy, former District welfare director, is chairman of the recreation services committee. Members of the executive board are Otto Lund, Ray H. Everett, Ross Haworth, Milo Christensen, Ray Brown, Archie Edwards and Minor Hudson.

5-State Strike Is Threatened

at 10 a. m. today against the Union Electric Co., which would hamper power service to vital defense plants. Mediation Board Chairman William H. Davis telegraphed a request to the union to postpone the walkout.

In Baltimore, about 450 employes of the Eastern Rolling Mills walked out, shutting down the plant and halting work on $1,883,000 of orders for cartridge cases. Cause of this strike was a departmental wage rate controversy.

In another Baltimore controversy, longshoremen employed at the Bull Line and Merchants & Miners Line piers voted yesterday upon whether to strike on Friday over extension of a wage contract.

In Seattle, A. F. of L. craftsmen formed a huge flying wedge to crash through a picket line of an independent welders' union and reopen the strike-closed Lake Washington shipyards, where 1200 men were employed on 32 million dollars of mine-layer contracts. Other yards in the area, hampered by the welders' demand for independent recognition in the A. F. of L., remained open.

The welders, however, continued to keep closed Long Beach and Los Angeles yards and threatened to extend their dispute to other industries.

would get all territories from Brazil north to the Panama Canal, and that Japan would be allotted Peru, Chile and Paraguay.

In response to a request for release of the map, the President gestured toward his desk and said the document was in a basket there but that he did not feel its publication would be wise.

There were certain margin notations on the map, he explained, which might reveal to the Nazis the method by which the chart had been obtained.

Might Hurt Information Sources

That would be exceedingly unfair to certain people, he continued, and might dry up a valuable source of information. The President laughed and declined to comment when asked if the notations were in German.

Mr. Roosevelt replied in the negative when a reporter asked if the German map had been made available to the Latin-American nations in question.

Stimson Sought As Witness in Spy Suspect's Defense

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson is being sought as a defense witness Monday at the trial in Brooklyn Federal Court of 15 men charged with espionage conspiracy.

A subpena was issued to Herbert L. Giorgio, counsel for Hermann Lang, whom the Government charges with having sold details of the famous Norden bombsight to Germany.

Giorgio said he would ask the United States marshal in Washington to serve the subpena. He said he considered Stimson's statement last week that he had no information that the Germans had the bombsight "highly important to my client's case."

The subpena was issued while the husky, Edmund Heine, 50, former Ford executive in Germany, testified that while he had submitted reports on American aviation to the German People's Car Co. of Berlin, "I did not come here with the intention of doing spy work."

His voice broke, and his wife, who sat with their three sons, sobbed audibly.

Truman Raps OPM Action on Currier

that the Federal Works Administration has the responsibility to decide regardless of what any other agency says. This case makes it plain that the OPM appears to have adopted a labor policy which grants preference to the C. I. O. or A. F. of L. union which has the most strength in a specific industry."

Although Senator Truman made it plain that his statement was the "opinion of the chairman of the committee," there was definite indication that the committee's report will recommend strongly that the bid be awarded to the Currier firm and that the Senate will be informed fully of the facts from the floor.

FWA Responsibility Denied

The proposal of Col. Westbrook that the difficulties of the situation be resolved by throwing out all the bids and calling for new offers brought detailed examination of the FWA official.

"If the OPM makes recommendations to an agency engaged in defense activities," he explained, "I feel that those recommendations should be carried out. The Federal Works Agency is not competent to determine what effect labor disputes might have on the defense program as a whole. The OPM is set up to determine just such things."

Hugh A. Fulton, counsel for the investigating committee, pointed out that the Justice Department had ruled there was no legal authority to withhold the contract from Currier. "Have you authority in FWA to commit an illegal act?" he asked.

"I don't think there is anything illegal about rejectng all bids, is there?" Col. Westbrook countered.

Currier Defends Rights

"Suppose Mr. Currier is the low bidder again?" suggested Senator Truman.

"I don't see why he should bid again, and if he did it would be rejected because I am not sure he would be low bidder again," said Col. Westbrook, without going into details as to how the new offer would be set up so as to overcome the differences of $431,000 between Currier's bid and that of the next lowest competitor.

AN EXPLANATION AND APOLOGY
• In the buying and selling of merchandise to the public, we occasionally find that certain items meet with extraordinary public acceptance.
• Such was the case in our special selling of North Star Blanket-Throws . . . advertised for yesterday's selling at half price.
• We were overwhelmed with the response . . . and altho we had on hand sixteen-hundred and sixty-one pieces of this merchandise . . . they were all sold within a short time after store-opening.
• As we stated in our advertisement, this merchandise was closed out to us by the North Star Blanket Company. They saw fit to give us the entire close-out stock, at an unusual price concession . . . and we in turn presented the merchandise to the public at half price . . . recognizing that this lot comprised the entire existing supply.
• We frankly did not anticipate the tremendous response that greeted the announcement . . . and we deeply regret that many of our patrons who came to buy, were unable to secure this merchandise.
• And yet we feel it our duty and responsibility to bring to the public unusual merchandise offerings of this kind whenever possible. And especially when we are able to present quantities that seem entirely adequate for normal buying.
• To those who were unable to be served . . . to those who were inconvenienced or disappointed . . . we offer our most sincere apology.

Employers Payroll Tax Called A 'Crime'

Lusk Cites Huge Fund Piled Up By 2.7% Levy

The present 2.7 per cent rate of employers' pay roll tax under the District Unemployment Compensation law was characterized as a "crime" before the House District judiciary subcommittee yesterday.

Nearly 24 million dollars have been accumulated in the District Unemployment Fund since the law's enactment in 1935, Rufus S. Lusk, president of the Washington Taxpayers Association, told the subcommittee at the hearing presided over by Representative Dan R. McGehee (Democrat), of Mississippi.

The figure represents the accumulation of 15 or 20 million dollars more than is necessary, he said.

Reduction Urged

"Despite the huge reserve—enough for ten years—employers continue to be taxed $3 for each one actually needed to pay current benefits," he declared. "There are more than 12,000 employers in Washington, mostly little fellows. Reduce this unjust tax and give them a break."

Lusk's plea for a reduction from the present 2.7 per cent rate to a proposed one-half of 1 per cent received the approval of Representative McGehee, who said he did not believe it "fair" for Washington employers to create a surplus "when neither they nor their employes will ever in the world get it back."

John A. Marshall, director of the District Unemployment Compensation Board, also recommended the rate reduction, stating it is "unhealthy" for any government to freeze large amounts of taxes in a reserve account.

Would Serve As Model

He expressed the hope that a decrease in the tax in the District might serve as a model for other States which have accumulated huge reserve funds under the law.

He emphasized the need of placing some of the funds now frozen by the act back into circulation. The bill reducing the rate to one-half of 1 per cent is sponsored by Representative McGehee. It is estimated it would save local employers approximately one million dollars annually.

Others testifying before the subcommittee yesterday, all in favor of the bill, included J. Nelson Anderson, representing the Federation of Business Men's Associations; Charles J. Rush, executive secretary of the Washington Real Estate Board, and Mrs. Mary Wright Johnson, a rooming-house operator.

The next hearing on the measure by the subcommittee will be held Friday at 10:30 a. m.

Postlude

Appreciative D.C. Audience Greets Hayes

By Ray C. B. Brown

Howard University School of Music presents Roland Hayes in a song recital Tuesday night in Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel. Accompanist: Reginald Boardman. Program of songs by Dowland, Purcell, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Brahms, Debussy, Coleridge-Taylor, Roger Quilter and Joseph Cotter, and spirituals arranged by Percival Parham, E. Boatner and Roland Hayes.

Opening the ninth season of concerts sponsored by Howard University School of Music, Roland Hayes was greeted last evening in Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel by a most cordial and demonstrative audience. A recital by this justly esteemed tenor is always an occasion for pleasurable listening because his artistic standards are as undeviatingly high as his devotion to music is sincere. His success has proved that no singer need resort to sensational means to win public favor. The years have dealt gently with his voice because he has never mistreated it for the sake of a momentary effect.

BROWN

His excellent program began with the lovely "Come Again" by the Elizabethan lutenist, John Dowland, and proceeded chronologically to Henry Purcell's "I Saw That You Were Grown So High." These songs were marked by the clarity of diction and the felicity of phrasing which are traits of Mr. Hayes' interpretation. An unfamiliar aria by Mozart, "Or che il dover," and Beethoven's "Adelaide" completed the first group.

In his second group Schubert's "Die Post," Brahms' "Wie Melodien zieht es mir" and the same composer's "Botschaft" were neighbors with Debussy's "Beau soir," a lyric which shows the preserving quality of music. It is probbale that this setting of a poem by Paul Bourget will outlast the books of that psychological novelist.

The latter half of the program, from which the reviewer was called by another recital, included an aria from Samuel Coleridge-Taylor's "Songs of Hiawatha," Roger Quilter's "Julia's Hair," Joseph Cotter's "I'm Wondering," and four spirituals: Le' Me Shine, "O What a Beautiful City," "Good News" and "Dry Bones."

Alexander Sklarevski gives a piano recital Tuesday night in the Washington Hotel. Program of compositions by Emanuel Bach, Saint-Saens, Beethoven, Chopin, Debussy, Falla, Shostakovich and Prokofiev.

Whenever Alexander Sklarevski comes over from Baltimore for a public appearance, he finds a large and welcoming audience, and last evening was no exception to the rule. For his annual recital, the Washington Hotel Hall of Nations was well filled with admirers, among whom one noted a number of resident pianists. The sound reasons for the assemblage were his technical mastery, his musicianship in interpretation and his choice of a varied and well-balanced program.

Division of time between two recitals made me miss the first part of his program, which consisted of Emanuel Bach's rondo andantino in B minor, Saint-Saens' caprices on themes from Gluck's "Alceste," Beethoven's 32 variations in C minor and Chopin's B minor sonata. Previous observation of his style, however, enables me to say that these works were very capably handled.

There was much to commend and to enjoy in a group of modern works which showed the catholicity of his taste and the skill of his readings. Debussy's "Reflets dans l'eau" was followed by Falla's "Andaluza," the subtle tone coloring of the one contrasting with the brilliance of the other. The contemporary Russian department was represented by the C sharp minor prelude of Dmitri Shostakovich and Prokofiev's intricate and scintillant toccata.

Citizens Urge 'Home Rule' For Capital

"Home rule" government in Washington, administered by a mayor and 15 councilmen, was recommended last night in a suffrage resolution adopted by the Hampshire Heights Citizens Association at the Barnard School.

The resolution recommends that the officers be elected by the people, following a nominating convention made up of representatives of citizens associations.

The association expressed its approval of Don Lamborne's suggestion that a copy of the suffrage plan be sent to all citizens associations, and that a referendum on the issue be prepared.

Another resolution protested an increase in water rates.

Trinidad

The Trinidad Citizens Association last night, in Wheatley School, adopted a resolution favoring coordination of all traffic matters under the superintendent of police.

Other resolutions opposed more than a 1-cent increase in the gasoline tax, asked for paving of the curbs on Benning Road Northeast; asked that regulations be enforced to keep planes from flying too low in the Northeast section, and requested that doors on buses and street cars be kept open a few extra seconds during stops for better ventilation.

Last year's officers were reelected. They are George J. Cleary, president; Harry E. Shilling, vice president; Mrs. J. M. Selby, second vice president, and Martin G. Stecker, secretary-treasurer.

Southeast Washington

Orren J. Davy was elected president of the Southeast Washington Citizens Association last night.

Other officers are C. C. Clem, first vice president; Vernis Absher, second vice president; Woodrow W. Miller, secretary; Mrs. Morgan Otterback, treasurer, and Joseph Constantino, sergeant at arms.

The association ordered a letter sent to the commissioners urging repair of sidewalks on Fourteenth Street Southeast between D and E Streets.

Washington Highlands

The Washington Highlands Citizens Association met last night at the home of Ernest Price, 3948 Second Street Southwest, and selected the deputy air raid warden and three assistant deputy wardens for that area.

George L. Kepler was named deputy warden; Kenneth Aylor, H. W. Geyling and Ernest Price, assistant deputy wardens.

Eastland Gardens

The Eastland Gardens Civic Association honored Detective Sergt. Reuben E. Nichols for his promotion from the Fourth Precinct. Nichols was presented with a radio and Mrs. Nichols with a basket of flowers.

D. C. Man Settles Suit For $22,500 Damages

Philadelphia, Oct. 28 (AP).—John Duncan's $50,000 damage suit against the Southern Steamship Co. was settled for $22,500 today just as he was being brought into a Federal courtroom in a wheelchair to testify.

The 48-year-old Washington, D. C., man, a dock hand, is suffering from what his physicians say is permanent paralysis as a result of a fall down a hatch aboard the company's barge Newport at Stamford, Conn.

Lady Halifax Enjoys Circus To Benefit Bundles for Britain

Lady Halifax, wife of the British Ambassador to the United States, headed a list of notables and about 3000 plain Americans at the opening of Miller's All-Star Circus for the benefit of Bundles for Britain at Riverside Stadium last night.

Lady Halifax, dressed in a black evening gown and short mink coat, sat in a box with Admiral Sir Charles and Lady Little, Sir Arthur and Lady Salter, Mrs. Natalie Wales Latham, national president for Bundles for Britain, and other distinguished guests. She laughed at the antics of the clowns, applauded bareback riding equestriennes and hid her eyes with her hand as "The Great" Arturo did flips on his tight wire high above the arena.

Lady Halifax said it was the first circus she had seen in the United States.

"You know," she said, "I have always loved circuses. I always went as a girl whenever I could, both in England and abroad. I think it is indeed most gracious to present this one for the Bundles for Britain, and I'm so sorry that my husband could not be here to enjoy it, too. He loves circuses as much as I do."

The circus, whose honorary sponsor is Mrs. Winston Churchill, will continue through Friday night. Tonight a divisional beauty and health contest for babies will be held, with prizes awarded to the winners at 1 p. m. Friday. Tonight at 9, a champion diaper-changing contest will be held for fathers. "Miss Defense" will be selected at 11 p. m. Friday night, when the winner and eight runners-up will be announced.

Tardiness Excused in Senior's 20,000-Mile Dash to G. U. Class

RABINS

For the past three years the 27-year-old senior has been earning his tuition at the foreign service school, signing up as a sailor during the summer months.

Three years ago Rabins, an ordinary landlubber, became an ordinary seaman in his maiden trip on a freighter, among the Central American and West Indian ports. Last year he made two trips into the Mediterranean and Black Seas.

Last summer, Alex shipped on the American-South African Line's freighter S. S. Sagadhoc, left New York June 16 on a journey that touched ports in Trinidad, Union of South Africa, Portuguese East Africa, Tanganyika and Kenya Colony.

All in all the voyage was 20,000 miles, and Alex didn't see a single submarine or Stukas, although in other sections ships were being attacked and sunk.

Alex said he saw soldiers by the thousands in such spots as Capetown and Durban, but the only shooting he saw was on a hunting trip with a party of sailors 150 miles inland in the brush of Portuguese East Africa.

Here, Alex admits a modest part in bagging a sable antelope and waterbuck. Here, too, he says, was to be found a hotter place in winter than Washington in the summer.

Racial Feeling Thwarts Nazis, Harsch Says

Germany has failed in its effort to unify Europe because the German people are afflicted with the conviction that they belong to a superior race, Joseph C. Harsch, former Berlin correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor, said last night.

Harsch spoke before the Washington chapter of the Czech-American National Alliance at Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard Streets Northwest.

"The Germans found they could not reconcile constructive treatment of conquered peoples with the essence of Nazism," Harsch declared.

Dr. Karel Cervenka, secretary of the Czecho-Slovakian Legation, also spoke.

The meeting commemorated the twenty-third anniversary of the founding of the Czecho-Slovak Republic.

Former D. C. Man In R. A. F. Is Killed

James G. Coxetter, jr., 24, former Washingtonian, and a member of the American Eagle Squadron, was killed Monday in a plane accident in Britain, the Associated Press learned yesterday.

Coxetter formerly lived at the Town Club, 1800 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, and was employed as a clerk at the Library of Congress. He resigned there more than a year ago.

Harry H. Buckman, 405 Dorset Avenue, Chevy Chase, Md., an uncle of Coxetter, said he was notified yesterday of the flier's death in a cablegram from the British air ministry.

Catoe Requests New Hearing in Abramowitz Case

Jarvis Catoe renewed his fight to escape the electric chair for the rape-murder of Mrs. Rose Abramowitz with the filing of a motion for a new trial in the District Court.

Attorneys Walter M. Shea, J. Robert Esher and George J. Boden urged that:

The verdict was against the evidence.

Catoe's confession and his admission to an alienist that he was at the scene of the crime were improperly placed before the jury.

The evidence was insufficient.

Americans Urged To Keep Faith

A plea for Americans to keep their faith in fundamentals was voiced last night by Dr. Paul H. Roth, president of Northwestern Seminary, Minneapolis, Minn.

He addressed the third daily sessions of the week-long preaching mission being held at Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle, as a feature of Reformation Week—marking the 426th birthday of the Protestant Reformation movement.

Dr. Roth will speak tonight, tomorrow and Friday at 8 p. m., and conduct a Bible study group at 6:40 on those days. The formal anniversary date of the Reformation is Friday.

Revamping Of D.C. Traffic Bureau Urged

A resolution calling for "complete reorganization" of the Department of Vehicles and Traffic was adopted yesterday by two committees of the D. C. Advisory Board of the American Automobile Association.

At a joint luncheon meeting in the Washington Hotel, the committee—traffic enforcement and highways and bridges—recommended the A. A. A. support its action as a means of "facilitating the movement of traffic" and improving "motor vehicle administration" in Washington.

Members of both committees voted unanimously to have A. A. A. traffic and engineering experts draw up a reorganization chart "showing the necessary additions and changes which would be required."

Burton W. Marsh, director of the auto club's engineering and safety departments, was designated to head the drafting of a reorganization plan.

The joint meeting also directed Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the District A. A. A. Club, to prepare a letter to Acting Police Superintendent Edward J. Kelly urging an increase in traffic officer assignments.

Walter B. Guy, chairman of the traffic enforcement committee, presided at the joint meeting. Members of the two committees attending the conference were P. Y. K. Howat, chairman of the highways and bridges committee; John Ihlder, chief of the Alley Dwelling Authority; Mrs. C. D. Lowe, Stanley H. Horner, Oscar Coolican, Col. Elliott J. Dent, Stephen James and John Nolen, jr., executive director of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

D. C. Bills Face McCarran on Return

Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, chairman of the Senate District Committee, is expected to return to his office today to face a crowded calendar of District legislation.

He has been conducting public grazing hearings in the West for the last three weeks.

Following Senator McCarran's return swift District Committee action is expected on the subcommittee-approved appointment of Gregory Hankin to the District Public Utilities Commission. The PUC regularly having a membership of three, has been unable to function because it has only one board member in office—Commissioner Charles W. Kutz.

Among many House-passed District bills requiring the Senate District Committee's attention are the measure merging the Municipal and Police Courts into a single tribunal; the fire-escape bill, and the 2-cent increase in the District gasoline tax on which a subcommittee is now holding hearings. More than a dozen other minor bills are awaiting the committee's attention.

Md. Divorcee, Cleared In 'Embrace' Slaying

Towson, Md., Oct. 28 (AP).—A circuit court jury last night acquitted Mrs. Virginia Porter, 34-year-old divorcee, in the fatal shooting, last July, of Vernon Hahn, 29.

Mrs. Porter, represented by Mrs. Helen Sherry, testified that she was holding a pistol and her purse in the same hand and the gun discharged accidentally when Hahn embraced her saying good night.

2-Cent Gas Tax Rise Urged to Speed Roads

Improved System Could Be Completed In 8 Years, Whitehurst Tells Senators

Director of Highways H. C. Whitehurst told a special Senate District subcommittee yesterday that Washington's vast highway improvement plan can be completed in eight years if the House-passed 2-cent increase in the District gasoline tax becomes law.

Today at 9:30 a. m. he again will take the witness stand at the public hearings in Room 301 of the Senate Office Building to discuss phases of the off-street parking bill.

Senator Harold H. Burton (Republican), of Ohio, chairman of the special subcommittee, declared at the outset of yesterday's hearings that his group is primarily interested in learning the reasons justifying the proposed gasoline tax increase. It has no desire to dictate a means of ending the District's traffic problem, he said.

No "Magic Wand"

Urging a "long range" view in dealing with the traffic situation, Whitehurst said, "the traffic problem is a continuing one. No magic wand can be waved to end it. If we stopped keeping our data, we'd know no more next year about the problem than we did five years ago."

The entire dilemma might never have existed if the warnings of engineers years ago had been heeded, he said.

Declaring that "you can't remove congestion unless you provide facilities for traffic," he referred to the five chief points of his highway improvement plan as basic to a solution of the problem. They are:

1. Construction of radial trunk highways from downtown Washington to outlying sections.
2. Widening of principal highways in the center of the city.
3. Provision for terminal facilities.
4. Improvement of outlying trunk highways.
5. Provision of means of access to commercial areas in all parts of the city.

May Need U. S. Aid

While this 44-million-dollar program can be completed in eight years with a 2-cent gasoline tax increase, it would take more than 12 years to complete under a 1-cent increase, he said.

Stating that "our ultimate plan will provide facilities to meet the needs of the new War Department Building across the river if the approaches to the bridge are made adequate," he warned that the cost of projects may increase, due to priorities. Aid may be required of the Federal Government, he added.

Engineer Commissioner Charles W. Kutz, who preceded Whitehurst as a witness yesterday, said that the Commissioners favor the 2-cent gasoline tax increase and the off-street parking bill, which also is under the subcommittee's consideration.

Commissioner Guy Mason is expected to testify today in addition to Whitehurst, Renah F. Camalier, District Committee counsel, said last night.

Virginians Warned 3 Days Are Left For Auto Checkup

State Trooper R. H. Lester, director of the semiannual auto inspection in Northern Virginia, yesterday warned motorists that only 3 days remain to have their cars inspected.

He said there are still hundreds of cars in the area failing to display the required sticker on the windshield.

Theater Guild Promises Unrivaled 'Rivals' Cast

Bobby Clark Is Added to All-Star Galaxy; New Pix Theater Changes Picture Policy; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

THAT ALL-STAR CAST for the Theater Guild's revival of Sheridan's "The Rivals" seems to be a constantly expanding constellation.

The latest "name" to be added to the galaxy is that of Bobby Clark, just articled by Lawrence Langner and Theresa Helburn for the role of Bob Acres. With Mary Boland as Mrs. Malaprop, Walter Hampden as Sir Anthony Absolute, Haila Stoddard as Lydia Languish, Helen Ford as Lucy and Donald Burr as Capt. Jack Absolute, it begins to look as if the Guild might have dropped in its two bits just in time to hit the jackpot. They certainly weren't playing the nickel machine!

MARY BOLAND

Anyone mentally feeling around for a quick identification of Donald Burr should be glad of the reminder that he was the admirable Feste, with Helen Hayes and Maurice Evans in "Twelfth Night," at the National last season. "The Rivals" is coming to the same stage for the week of Monday, November 17.

By special arrangement with the management, the local chapter of the British-American Ambulance Corps will sponsor an opening-night, benefit premiere of the English screen production of "The Stars Look Down," at the Little Theater on Wednesday, November 5. The Ambulance Corps, founded in 1940 by William V. C. Ruxton, reports that since its inception the organization has shipped more than one million dollars worth of equipment and food to England, Egypt, Africa, New Zealand, Canada and China. A bit of a record for a single year.

Only Necessary to Ask

Earle Theater patrons who have pestered the management for pictures of the Roxyettes during the past three years will be able to secure a group photograph of the entire line during the "birthday week," beginning Friday. This will be in celebration of the record, three-year, continuous engagement of the Roxyettes on Thirteenth Street, the longest stay of any comparable group in the annals of the Washington theater. Securing one of these pictures will not be too difficult. All you'll have to do is ask any theater attendant for one and it's yours, for free and for keeps.

The Pix Theater, nee Masonic Auditorium, Thirteenth Street and New York Avenue, is breaking out its new policy this weekend. Instead of devoting its energies to week-long engagements of first-run pictures, the new house, beginning Saturday, will present the cream of the crop of cinema hits on a split-week basis. Saturday through Tuesday, the attraction will be Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's film version of Philip Barry's "The Philadelphia Story," starring Katharine Hepburn, Cary Grant and Jimmie Stewart; Wednesday through Friday, Henry Fonda, Charlie Grapewin and Jane Darwell in the Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of John Steinbeck's "The Grapes of Wrath," the story everyone thought couldn't be filmed. In the meantime, "Quiet Wedding," with Margaret Lockwood and Derek Farr, is further ingratiating itself in public esteem in its prosperous second week.

Dots and Dashes

"The Maltese Falcon," costarring Humphrey Bogart and Mary Astor in Dashiell Hammett's latest serving of red meat, is being screened this morning for the guys and gals of the press . . . But the big Warner item for the day is that tonight "after the last stage show," the drama desks will be guests of the Roxyettes downstairs in the Balkan Room, with four of the original group as hostesses for each of the critics . . . With Saroyan's "Jim Dandy" opening out at Catholic University, "after the last show," unfortunately, means about 2 a. m., for this department . . . Might drop by and look under the tables, at that . . . Tonight also is the night when Jimmy Lunceford and His Swing Orchestra will tootle for the Mohawk Swing Club, in Turner's Arena, with tickets at 85 cents a copy, if purchased before 6 p. m. . . . Better oil up the ankles.

LEONARD LYONS

Broadway Potpourri

New York, Oct. 28.

Sinclair Lewis will recoup some of the losses he sustained in his recent ill-fated drama venture by a cross-country lecture tour next month . . . Tom Dewey, who lost the Governorship when LaGuardia indorsed Gov. Lehman, will make a speech for Fiorello from the same platform with the mayor . . . The other night, while a squad of police guarded the Alvin Theater—where the Windsors came to see "Lady In The Dark"—three lone policemen were across the street, at the Guild, where Harry Carey is starring in "Ah, Wilderness!" They watched the thousands of fans across the street, and someone asked: "What are you doing on this side of the street?" "We've been detailed here," they explained. "Hoot Gibson's coming to this show tonight."

RUTH GORDON

Ruth Gordon, who will attain movie stardom when the new Garbo movie is released, returned from Hollywood in time to register as a voter here. She rushed to register as soon as she heard that O'Dwyer is a formidable candidate and has a chance of defeating Fiorello. For Miss Gordon is determined to see La Guardia win . . . Last year, when West 12th Street was torn up and the street repaved, Ruth—who lives in the middle of the block—had to walk to and from the corner whenever she used a cab or car. She wrote a letter of complaint to the mayor's office. A few days later some new workmen arrived in front of her house. They constructed a little bridge there—large enough for her to cross, into a waiting cab.

Larry Adler, the harmonica player, visited the home of Edward L. Bernays, the public relations counselor. "Did you see the spread about me in Life Magazine last week?" Adler asked him. "Wasn't that a perfect publicity break for me?" . . . "No. It wasn't perfect," Bernays insisted. "And here's a lesson in publicity: That article reported that you make $1000 a week. Those persons to whom $1000 a week is a lot of money will be reluctant to hire you—because they think you're too expensive. And those persons to whom $1000 is not a lot of money won't hire you because they'll think you're too cheap."

Every time Moss Hart has been interviewed he always declared that he was educated at Morris High School, in the Bronx. As a result, for the past ten years, every editor of the Morris High School newspaper has tried to interview Hart—without avail. Recently, however, the playwright finally agreed, and two Morris High School editors arrived. "Please, Mr. Hart," they asked him, "as a true Morris High alumnus, make this a good interview. Give us something good." "I will. I'll give you a scoop," Hart confessed. "I never went to Morris High. I never went to high school at all."

Last week Assistant United States Attorney Raymond Ickes—son of Harold Ickes—went to Long Island for a hunting trip with his friends. They drove along until Ickes' car suddenly came to a halt. The gas tank was empty . . . Young Ickes knew of only one way to obtain gas, at that hour and under such circumstances. He went to the car belonging to his friend and started to siphon some gasoline. At the first intake he swallowed a mouthful of ethyl. He tried again—and swallowed a second mouthful. He finally managed a successful operation . . . Four days later his father announced that there was no further need of rationing gas.

Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard University, made an off-the-record speech at the National Press Club in Washington. His subject was "The Mobilization of Scientific Talent Here" . . . After his address, Dr. Conant agreed to answer all the questions which had been submitted to him, in writing. He did answer all questions—except one. He merely glanced at the writing and pocketed it. The question was: "Will McKinney play for the Harvard team on Saturday against Navy?"

Let Brasses Blare!

Hollywood, Oct. 28.

Darryl Zanuck and John Ford will receive the undying gratitude of a movie mad public for giving them one of the greatest human documents that ever graced the silver screen in "How Green Was My Valley." Film portrays all the majesty and meanness of man that make up life itself. In a day when faiths are cracking and human life appears so cheap, it's vitally important to have a picture come along that recalls the glory, dignity and heroic struggle in the soul of man that shall not fail us in this crisis.

CARY GRANT

Our stars are often unjustly criticised for being self-centered, but there's no class of people more anxious to lend a helping hand to up-and-coming youngsters. Now it's Cary Grant who's doing some fancy sweating and trying to get an acting break for his stand-in, Mal Merrihugh. Mal's standing in for Cary in "Arsenic and Old Lace." But no sooner does Capra call "cut" than Cary says, "come on," herds Mal into a corner, starts coaching him for the screen test Warners has promised for a stock contract. Cary found his stand-in six years ago, when an injured hand forced Mal out of a brilliant baseball career with the Boston Braves. And all this time Cary's been quietly working with him toward the big moment which comes next week.

When the unbeatable Cecil B. DeMille was casting "Reap the Wild Wind," he gave Akim Tamiroff, one of his favorite actors, a cushy role. Then Tamiroff upped and got sick, had to be replaced by Professional Wrestler Bill (Pewee) Davis. But now that the picture's long finished shooting and Tamiroff is well, C. B. (I-have-my-way) DeMille is bringing in Akim to dub in the dialogue for Davis.

That's an elaborate setting they're fixing up for Marlene Dietrich's song in "The Lady Is Willing." She'll dance as well as warble and will have a chorus, gypsy string ensemble and 18 dancers as background.

I hear they're calling Nancy Walker, of Broadway's "Best Foot Forward," a female Lou Costello and spotting her for our next movie comic. Nancy's papa is Barto, half of Barto and Mann, the comedy acrobats in "Hellzapoppin'". One wag says the kid's so homely that when well dressed she looks like a "bundle from Britain with ears." In spite of which (or because if it) she is but sensational.

As if aeroplanes didn't cause enough trouble to the picture industry, one flying over Universal held up exterior shooting till the sky-writer had smoked out a scroll plugging a Twentieth Century-Fox film.

Because she's a freshman, Shirley Temple has to wear long black cotton stockings and a bright gren hat at the Westlake School these days.

Ida Lupino shook Bobbie Stack down for a flock of tickets to her pet charity benefit. seems she called his house and said "This is Ida Lupino." "How cozy!" cracked Bob, "this is Clark Gable, what can I do for you?" That was when he bought the tickets.

George Murphy, who took off with his family for his Oregon ranch, has been made a special deputy sheriff of Kendall County. "Darn the luck," says George, wistfully polishing his badge, "there ain't been a horse thief or cattle rustler in the State since I took over. Those things never happen to anyone but Gene Autry!"

Milton Berle, reminiscing with Tony Moreno about the "silent" days, recalled that he'd worked with Tony at the Vitagraph studio in Brooklyn 25 years ago. "I don't remember working with you," said Tony. "Huh, I played your 7-year-old son," snorted Milt,—"a fine father you turned out to be!"

Three years ago Sue Carol started agency business with Alan Ladd as only client. Alans got his big break now, but when Sue had to go East because of her mother's death, Alan took over her business and is carrying on in her absence.

'Junior Miss' and 'Ice Follies' Among Incoming Attractions

"JUNIOR MISS." Sally Benson's gay New Yorker stories of the younger generation have been dramatized by Jerome Chodorov and Joseph Fields in a comedy which will open a pre-New York engagement Monday evening at the National Theater. Last season the playwrights performed similar service for the same magazine's "My Sister Eileen." Max Gordon is the producer, whose company includes Philip Ober, Barbara Robbins, Alexander Kirkland, Francesca Bruning, Patricia Peardon, Lenore Lonergan, Matt Briggs and Paula Lawrence. Moss Hart has broken his rule of staging only his own plays to direct. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Palace

"A YANK IN THE R. A. F." Tyrone Power plays the title role in this new film of an American who fights for Britain chiefly because it keeps him in the vicinity of a beautiful young singer. Eventually the bomber pilot finds other reasons for heroism. Betty Grable is the girl and John Sutton and Reginald Gardiner head the supporting cast. Opens tomorrow morning.

Earle

Capitol

"UNHOLY PARTNERS." Edward G. Robinson, Edward Arnold and Laraine Day have the leads in this drama of a New York publisher and a gangster overlord. Marsha Hunt, William T. Orr, Don Beddoe, Walter Kingsford and Clyde Fillmore are featured. On the stage, the Gene Ford revue will present the Gaudsmith Brothers, Harry Stevens, Billy Wells, the Four Fays and the Rhythm Rockets. Opens tomorrow morning.

RKO-Keith's

"UNFINISHED BUSINESS." This comedy of a small-town girl's marriage to a wealthy New Yorker continues into a second week with Irene Dunne, Robert Montgomery and Preston Foster in the principal roles. "Sailors With Wings," the latest "March of Time" release, also continues.

Metropolitan

"HOLD BACK THE DAWN." The Charles Boyer-Olivia DeHavilland-Paulette Goddard romance of a European's efforts to enter the United States from Mexico returns for a second downtown week. Walter Abel, Victor Francen and Billy Lee top the support. Opens Friday morning.

Columbia

Little

"LOVE AFFAIR." The Charles Boyer-Irene Dunn success of two seasons ago is revived for one week only, with Boyer playing the continental fortune hunter who falls in love with the girl from Kansas. Maria Ouspenskaya has a pivotal role as Boyer's grandmother. Opens this morning.

Pix

"THE PHILADELPHIA STORY." The Katharine Hepburn-Cary Grant-James Stewart-Ruth Hussey film adapted from Philip Barry's play inaugurates a new policy at this latest addition to downtown Washington's film houses following the run of the current "Quiet Wedding." The revival will open Saturday to run through Tuesday evening.

Trans-Lux

"THUMBS UP, TEXAS." The "March of Time's picturization of the Lone Star State's defense activities headlines the short-subject bill at the newsreel house for the incoming week. "Lions on the Loose," a Pete Smith short, and Walt Disney's "Canine Caddy" also are on the bill. Opens Friday morning.

Civic Theater

Gayety

Open-Air

"LILLIAN RUSSELL." The Alice Faye musical shares the screen of the drive-in auto theater on the Richmond Highway with a comedy appropriate to Navy Week, "Sailor's Lady," opening a 3-night run tomorrow evening.

Riverside Stadium

"THE ICE FOLLIES OF 1942." Shipstad and Johnson's widely-popular musical revue on ice opens a run Tuesday evening at the Riverside Stadium, continuing through Sunday November 16. Bess Ehrhart, Evelyn Chandler, Shipstad and Johnson, Frick and Frack, Mae Ross and Ruby and Bobby Maxson head the company of 85 skaters. There are 25 acts in this all-new edition. Tickets downtown at Hahn's, Fourteenth and G Streets.

Miller's Circus

MILLER'S THREE-RING CIRCUS, largest of the indoor circuses, continues through Friday evening at the Riverside Stadium as a Bundles for Britain benefit. Poodles Hanneford and his family are among the performers. Matinees daily at 3:30, evening performances at 8:30. Special midnight performance tomorrow night. Tickets at Bundles for Britain, 1801 Connecticut Avenue, and at the Stadium.

Constitution Hall

GRACIE FIELDS, "The Sweetheart of the Empire," makes her first appearance in the capital at a special benefit for the British Relief Fund Saturday evening in Constitution Hall. "The Lancashire Lass" will present a program of her character songs. Harriet Hoctor and Fred Keating will be among the other stars on the bill.

Uline Arena

"FUN TO BE FREE." This pageant of patriotism, by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, produced last month in Madison Square Garden by Fight for Freedom, Inc., will be presented Tuesday evening in the Uline Arena, Third and M Streets, Northeast. Burgess Meredith will be master-of-ceremonies. Stars who will appear include Martha Scott, Gladys Swarthout, Betty Field, Kitty Carlisle, Jessie Matthews, Larry Adler and Sergeant York. Tickets downtown at Jordan's, Thirteenth and G Streets.

Blackfriars' Guild

"LADIES IN RETIREMENT." The original stage play by Edward Percy and Reginald Denham is the season's first production by the Blackfriars' Guild at St. Paul's Auditorium, 1421 V Street. The thriller opened a three-night run last evening with Natalie Core in the leading role. Edgar L. Kloten directed.

Hobbies to Spare

Ruth Hussey probably has more hobbies than any other Hollywood actress. She collects antiques, draws plans for houses, is a skilled photographer, raises flowers and designs clothes. She also is knitting sweaters for a war relief group.

CATTLE DEALER HELD—Fred Wheeler, 50, a wealthy Farmington, Me., cattle dealer, was arrested yesterday in Boston on an indictment charging him with the slaying of Florence H. Buzzell, of New Sharon, Me. The 20-year-old girl was found slain June 7 at Chesterville

Ewing Jailed in Attack Case; Faces Action by Grand Jury

Orman William Ewing, 53, former Utah Democratic National Committeeman, was sent to the District Jail last night to await grand jury action on a charge of criminally attacking a 19-year-old OPM stenographer.

O. W. EWING

Bail was denied the gray-haired rooming house owner by Judge Walter J. Casey after a 90-minute preliminary hearing at Police Court. Ewing pleaded innocent to the accusation.

Only two witnesses were heard by Judge Casey yesterday before he decided a prima facie case had been made. They were the pretty, blond victim and Dr. Myer Stolar, a Gallinger Hospital interne, who examined the girl.

Highly nervous and on the verge of tears, the complainant told the court she had been living at 1101 Sixteenth Street Northwest, with another woman, a long-time family friend, since October 12.

She came here from Utah to accept a position with OPM, and began work October 15. The friend, she said, managed the rooming house which was owned by Ewing.

The victim said she returned from a date to the other woman's apartment, where she had a room, about 1:30 a. m. Sunday.

"The other woman and Ewing were in the apartment and she was very drunk," the complainant testified. "Mr. Ewing had been drinking and was drinking when I entered. He asked me to have a drink, which I refused, and then he asked me if I would have a cigarette.

"I refused that also and both of them were talking. I couldn't understand the other woman—I don't think she knew what she was saying. She did ask me 'why don't you stay and be one of us?'"

The victim continued, saying that both the other woman and Ewing left the Pine Room (a name given the living room of the apartment) and she went to her bedroom. She said she locked the door, left a bed lamp burning and went to sleep on a studio couch.

Door Broken Open

"Half an hour later, I was awakened by a door slamming. Then my door was broken open, the chain snapped. Mr. Ewing came in wearing only his underwear.

"I said to him 'What on earth is the matter? What are you doing here?'" the witness declared, her voice at the breaking point.

"He came over to the bed and put his hands over my mouth and nose and got into bed with me.

"Shut up or I'll kill you," she quoted the defendant.

"I tried to fight him off. I pleaded with him to let me go and told him I was young and innocent.

"I was so scared I couldn't scream. He had his hands over my mouth.

"He raped me."

"I stayed in my room waiting for him to leave the apartment so I could get out of there. But he never left. I tried to pack my suitcases so I could get away and then he came back in. I guess it was two or three hours later.

"He asked me if I was going to church and when I said I was, he offered to lend me his automobile. I refused his offer and then he said to me: 'That's our secret, isn't it?'"

The witness said she went to church and when she returned left a note to the other woman, telling her she was leaving. She found another apartment that day.

McCormick asked why she did not report the attack to the police "or to anybody" before midnight Sunday.

"I didn't know what to do," she replied. "I was petrified and didn't know who to tell."

She explained that she later confided in a friend who took her to an attorney. The latter took her to the Third Precinct Police Station, she said.

Dr. Stolar told the court that his examination of the girl disclosed several scratches on her right arm, an abrasion of her right thigh and other injuries.

"All Liquored Up"

When she was taken back to the Third Precinct, the witness said she saw Ewing and heard the man say to a policeman:

"I came in there all liquored up. I don't know what happened."

Assistant District Attorney John L. Smith, who presented the prosecution's case, recommended that Ewing be held without bail, as the death penalty was involved.

Ewing, who gave his address as 3226 Cleveland Avenue Northwest, was arrested there Monday morning. His record shows previous prosecutions for driving while drunk and driving without a permit.

Army to Take Only 396 Here In December

So that most draft registrants may spend the Christmas holidays at home, local Selective Service headquarters, in its December call made public yesterday, asked only 396 men to report for possible military service during that month. This is the smallest call since last February and includes 246 whites and 150 Negroes.

This reason for the number called was among those given by local Selective Service headquarters. Another was possibility of a change in the method of physical examination which would make inadvisable too large a list in that month.

Total call for December by local boards is as follows: Board 1, 16; 2, 10; 3, 7; 4, 14; 5, 14; 6, 14; 7, 17; 8, 18; 9, 24; 10, 19; 11, 23; 12, 17; 13, 14; 14, 17; 15, 17; 16, 11; 17, 16; 18, 18; 19, 20; 20, 17; 21, 18; 22, 12; 23, 15; 24, 14, and 25, 18. Total, 396.

The white call for December 1 by boards is: Board 1, 12; 2, 9; 3, 6; 4, 13; 5, 14; 6, 12; 7, 14; 14, 11; 9, 10; 11, 7; 13, 4. Total, 112. The call for December 2 is: Board 9, 10; 10, 10; 13, 7; 14, 12; 15, 6; 16, 6; 17, 14; 18, 9; 19, 2; 20, 16; 21, 13; 22, 8; 23, 8; 24, 11, and 25, 2. Total, 134.

The Negro call for December 1 by boards is: Board 10, 9; 16, 5; 17, 2; 18, 6; 19, 18; 20, 1; 21, 5; 22, 4; 23, 7; 24, 3, and 25, 16. Total, 76. For December 2 the call is: Board 1, 3; 2, 1; 3, 1; 4, 3; 6, 2; 7, 3; 8, 7; 9, 4; 11, 16; 12, 13; 13, 7; 14, 5, and 15, 11. Total 74.

Advance Chest Pledges Shown 3% Increase

With pledges showing a net increase of 3 per cent over last year, volunteers in the Community Chest advance gifts unit reported additional response from the city's wealthier givers yesterday, bringing the total up to 41 per cent of the pledges they are striving to obtain.

Yesterday's reports of 237 "big gifts" brought the total number of pledges to 438, out of 1800 prospective donors which the advance gifts contingent is attempting to reach before the opening of the campaign on November 13. The gifts will be routed through the units which conduct the regular business; Government and residential solicitation when the intensive city-wide drive begins.

Hard Work Ahead

"Obviously there is still much ground to be covered, and a lot of hard work ahead for advance gift volunteers," commented Richard H. Wilmer, chairman of the unit, "but the trend is very encouraging both as to size of contributions and as to the tendency of givers to increase their gifts over last year."

Meanwhile, a group of Department of Agriculture employes who have accepted appointments as volunteer division chairmen for the coming Community Chest campaign, yesterday made a personal tour of two Chest agencies.

To Make Appeal

They visited Friendship House, 619 D Street Southeast, and St. Vincent's Home and School, Fourth and Edgewood Streets Northeast. As a result of their visit, the Agriculture employes hope to be able to make a convincing presentation of the necessity for generous response from their fellow employes when the Chest campaign opens November 13.

Making the trip yesterday were Henry G. Herrell, Lee Gaston, L. J. Peet, Clifford Johnson, H. C. Mesch, J. S. Fickling, F. W. Darnell and Dr. Walter Roth.

Chicago Executive Quits America First

Chicago, Oct. 28 (AP).—Edward L. Ryerson, Chicago steel executive, resigned as a member of the National America First Committee in a letter dated September 17 to Gen. Robert E. Wood, committee chairman, it was disclosed today.

Ryerson made public the letter.

America First headquarters said there had been several other resignations recently but that they were for "personal rather than policy" reasons.

U. S. to Present Terms in Cafeteria Dispute

Recommendations pointing toward settlement of a wage dispute involving 1200 employes of cafeterias in Government buildings will be presented to both sides tonight by Commissioner L. F. Rye, of the United States Department of Labor Conciliation Service.

Failure of both sides to agree before Saturday morning will result in a strike of members of the C. I. O. United Cafeteria Employes' Local No. 471, Jack Mink, business agent, said last night. More than 800 cafeteria employes authorized Mink to call a strike at a meeting last Friday.

The union has asked that present wages ranging from 44½ cents an hour to 57 cents an hour be increased 5 to 8 cents. The Welfare and Recreation Association of Public Buildings and Grounds, Inc., a nonprofit organization which runs cafeterias in all Government buildings except Navy, Agriculture and the Government Printing Office, is represented as opposing the increase on the grounds that it would lead to higher food prices.

Mink said the increase is necessary in view of the rapidly increasing cost of living. He said the cafeteria employes have received no increase in pay since October, 1939, when the present contract, which expires Friday night, was signed.

Virginian Gets Year For Draft Dodging

Harrisonburg, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—Willard Lee Gray, of Shenandoah County, was sentenced to a year's imprisonment in the U. S. District Court of Western Virginia yesterday for refusing to register under the Selective Service Act on October 16.

Gray told the court a "girl friend" advised him not to register and that nothing would be done about it.

District Grand Jury Indicts Two on Charge Of Posing as Traffic Policemen in Southeast

Two men, alleged to have shaken down motorists in the Southeast section by posing as traffic officers, were accused of extortion in an indictment returned by the District grand jury yesterday. They also were charged with impersonating policemen.

One of the victims was Henry A. Yeager, 4235 Nichols Avenue Southeast. Yeager said he and his cousin, Frank Yeager, were stopped by two men at Fifth Street and Nichols Avenue Southeast about 6:45 p. m. October 16. Yeager said one of the men accused him of speeding, although he had been driving at a moderate rate.

One of the men, Yeager said, ordered him to drive to the Eleventh Precinct, but finally took $2 to settle the matter.

The police said Yeager later identified Willard B. Upright, 36, as the man who stopped him. Indicted with Upright was his alleged companion, Alex D. Edwards, 28.

The indictment was one of 55 returned in the District Court before Justice T. Alan Goldsborough. The charges against others indicted were:

Second-degree murder—Rufus McDuffy, 43, Negro, for the death of Stephen Keller, 49, Negro, clubbed on September 13 in the 1400 block of Neal Place Northwest.

Manslaughter—Elizabeth A. Robinson, 27, Negro, for the death of William Bowen, 63, Negro, stabbed in the 400 block of Clark Court Southwest on September 3; Marshall D. Peyton, 25, Negro, for the death of Beatrice W. Peyton, 31, Negro, shot near First and I Streets Northeast on September 16; Alice Gladden, 31, Negro, for the death of James L. Johnson, 58, Negro, stabbed with an ice pick in the first block of Myrtle Street Northeast on September 6.

Carnal knowledge—Walter Black, 30, Negro.

Nonsupport of minor children—Edison Goins, 27, Negro.

Unauthorized use of automobile—Leroy J. Adams, 20, Negro; Daniel T. Holton, 25, Negro; Henry H. Hoff, 27; George H. Jackson, 30, Negro; Booker T. Wider, 27, Negro; Ulysses Brame, jr., 18; James L. Burgess, 21, Negro; Otis J. Baker, 21, Negro (also accused of assault with intent to rob and violation of the National Motor Vehicle Theft Act).

Grand larceny—Melvin C. Gaines, 28, Negro; John Ryon, 36; Floyd Barnes, 19, Negro.

Housebreaking and larceny — Floyd Barnes, 19, Negro; George E. Brooks, 18, Negro; Archie Dudley, 46, Negro; Montee Bryant, 18, Negro; Alexander T. Bundy, 25, Negro.

Forgery and passing a forgery—George W. Thomas, 20.

Robbery—Bulley Epps, 23, Negro; George M. Zeigler, 44, Negro; Sylvester Hinton, 32, Negro; Calvin J. Chase, 18, Negro; Joseph H. Hayes, 21, Negro; Edward Parrish, 39; Howard O. Burnell, 35; Robert E. Hollis, 22, Negro.

Stealing from the mails—Zed F. Ramsaur, jr., 20, Negro; Henry R. Robinson, 29, Negro.

Forging Government check—Florence Hearn, 55, Negro; Lucila C. Shaffer; Frederick A. Williams, 44; James E. School, 37, Negro; Robert A. Davis, 19.

Using the mail to defraud—Joseph H. Sullivan, 48.

Assaulting a policeman—Samuel McAway 40, Negro.

Violating the marihuana tax act—Robert Frazier, 40, Negro; Robert Miller, Negro; Louis Holmes, 26, Negro (also accused of resisting a Federal officer).

Sale and possession of narcotics—Albert J. Porter, 21, Negro.

Assault with dangerous weapon—Collie O. Terrell, 28; Alberta Fields, 24, Negro; Harry Rithman, 58; Herbert Bailey, 29, Negro; John H. Hall 20; Alease Parker, Negro; William W. Phillips, 36.

The grand jurors dismissed charges against 18 persons.

McPeek Is Named Director Of Social Welfare Bureau

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Church Editor

The Rev. Francis W. McPeek, of the personnel training section in the Federal Works Agency, has been chosen new director of the social welfare department of the Washington Federation of Churches, it was disclosed yesterday by Dr. Worth M. Tippy, federation executive secretary.

Mr. McPeek will succeed the Rev. John L. Mixon, who resigned last July 1 to become head of the social welfare department of the Los Angeles Churches Federation.

Assisting Mr. McPeek will be Miss Frances Humphrey, who has been associated with the department since its inception in 1937. She received her master's degree in sociology and research last June at George Washington University.

A Community Chest agency, the department is the central welfare office for the city's Protestant churches.

Mr. McPeek came to Washington in January, 1940, as chaplain of the National Training School for Boys, under the Federal Prison Bureau, and last June was transferred to the Federal Works Agency.

From 1938 to 1940 he was chaplain of the Federal Dentention headquarters in New York City, and from 1936 to 1938 served as resident Protestant chaplain of the New Jersey State Reformatory at Rahway. He had 22 months of clinical training at the Elgin (Ill.) State Hospital, 18 months of which were spent as associate of Prof. Anton P. Boisen, of the Chicago Theological Seminary.

FASHION LUNCHEON PROGRAM AT SHOREHAM. Jon Sobotka, nationally known fashion authority, will plan the Shoreham Saturday fashion luncheons beginning this week. Stylist Sobotka will collaborate with the country's leading designers whose creations are shown in Washington stores. Next Saturday's event will feature sports clothes for weekends in the country from the shop of Leila Gordon Noyes (Mrs. Newbold Noyes). On the following week there'll be a showing of luxury furs. On Friday, November 14 the "Celanese Show" will replace the first floor show in the Blue Room and also presented at the fashion luncheon on the following day . . . While we're talking about clothes, you should know that singer Barbara Lee, now appearing in the Blue Room, has a "lucky gypsy dress" that she always wears on first nights.

It's "Cole Porter Week" at the Versailles. Russ Hawn's Band is playing the tunes from "Let's Face It," new Cole Porter musical opening in New York tonight, also the hits from "You'll Never Get Rich," which played last week at the Earle Theater. Pete Macias' band at the Lounge Riviera is also playing the "Let's Face It" tunes

LOTUS DOES IT AGAIN. We mean produces another bang-up revue. The new Halloween week show has the speed and edge of a buzz-saw from the minute the Catherine Behney Girls caper out in orange satin witches' hats until they exit waving the Stars and Stripes. Duke Art, jr., is a Bob Hopeish young fellow who tosses gobs of wet clay at a board, models them into comic heads in a few seconds. Barry and King, who danced in "The Great Waltz," do Ravel's "Bolero" in a swirl of excitment. Most surprising moment of the show comes when the Behney beauties toss their crinolines over their heads and turn into an octet of fat colored mammies.

LEO THE LION. Leo, who scrutinizes your future at Mayfair as though it were a plate of hors d'ouevre, is really named Juan De Soto. He chose his professional name because he was born under the dominating sign of Leo.

CELEBS AT PAUL YOUNG'S. Visiting theatrical stars naturally gravitate to Paul Young's. Jackie Miles, current laugh-riot starter at the Earle, is there every night. The Wesson Brothers stopped in on their way to join Artie Shaw's Band. The other night we saw half of the Neptune Room's Buds and Buddies parked in a corner, dancer Yvonne York dining with lawyer Jack Duke, dancer Madelyne White sipping champagne cocktails with Mike Edlow. Madelyne is due soon to join a new Manhattan musical. P. S.: When emcee Gene Bdylos leaves Paul Young's in the evening, he's a wanderer, too, creates the weirdest comedy scenes in all-night lunchrooms and hot shoppes.

Alice Winstead, who appeared in Al Pearce's show for some time as a result of winning a C. B. S. prize, will sing at the Neptune Room's Halloween party. She's a real show-stopper.

ABOUT OSCAR OF THE HI HAT. Oscar Altman, who'll cope so suavely with the impossible task of finding enough tables at Hi Hat's Halloween party, has been with the Ambassador Hotel since 1930, has been Hit Hat's manager since 1936.

OF RHYTHM BOYS. Lew Chester of Carmen Cavallaro's band in the Cosmos Room, is the busiest musician in town. He plays bass, does publicity for the orchestra, takes pictures of all the celebrities who congregate in Cosmos . . . That's a registered violin that Bedford Brown plays so masterfully with Layton Bailey's orchestra in the Metronome Room. He guards it with hawklike attention . . . Al Norton, who's just joined the Brown Derby, is one of Washington's favorite emcee-maestros. He appeared here last at the Casino Royal . . . Jimmy Nichols, of Dick Koons' Mayflower Lounge orchestra, is one of our town's most versatile rhythm boys. He plays sax, piano, clarinet, bass, celeste and guitar, and sings!

FRESH LOBBIES. The lobby of the Roger Smith Hotel, which is also the entrance to the Cafe Caprice, has just been done over in streamlined walnut . . . Madrillon's lobby is also being done over.

What it'll be like we don't know but hat checker Dezzy is plumb distracted by the new daylight lighting beating down on his unprotected dome.

Don Armandos, who concocts the luscious crepes suzette at the Copacabana, was formerly associated with New York's fabulous Fairways Yacht Club, the spot that made $90,000 in three months after it opened, dropped it almost as quickly when the depression started.

TOP-NOTCH PERFORMANCES. Lucile Johnson's unbelievably lovely warbling of a gypsy medley at Troika . . . Ida Clarke's organing of "Tonight We Love" in the Lounge Riviera. She uses the Freddie Martin arrangement . . . Evelyn Knight's soft rendition of "I Understand" in the King Cole Room. It'll give you little shivers . . . Ray Richardson's own conception of "Tea For Two" in the Rainbow Room. He uses an artfully retarded tempo . . . The dashing "hoop dance" presented by Shannon and Mein in the current Sharon Lynn Revue at the Casino Royal.

COMPOSERS' SPECIAL INSPIRATIONS. The Heintze Brothers of Restaurant "823" have called it to our attention that some of the most beautiful numbers are entirely alien to the usual manner of their composers. You'll see how true this is when you recall Victor Herbert's "Indian Summer" and Foster's "Beautiful Dreamer." They're dreams come true.

LA MOOD SUISESSE. "The Suisesse is the queen of drinks," said Maitre d'Hotel Arthur Marchisio of the Raleigh, gently depositing something that looked like a glorified milk shake by our elbow. Maestro Bert Bernath was singing "Green Eyes" in French. "Tell him," said Arthur insidiously, "that his accent reminds you of Montmartre and the wonderful evening you spent in Le Mort Rat." Smiling with the grace of a Borgia, he retired . . . Bert Bernath reacted perfectly with, "My French accent was gained in my childhood in Paris. It's of the Faubourg St. Germain. Not that I exactly lived in the Faubourg St. Germain. Say, I think I'll have a Suisesse, too."

The 'Gale's a cyclone! We mean that dance rhythms at the Nightingale always blows at 100 miles an hour. Jack Maggio and his big group of music-makers are a combination of tornado and a magnet. Attendance records are being blown over every week.

RIVER BEND IS HOME to thousands of amusement seekers. This roomy and homey spot spells good times to no end of incoming Government folks. George Stein's orchestra never fails to play all requests, the chicken dinners are lavish in both quality and quantity, the blazing log fire says "Welcome!" as you enter.

Rally Held Here By Baptists

Representatives from 40 Baptist churches in the District and Maryland met last night at First Baptist Church, Sixteenth and O Streets Northwest, for a preconvention rally of the denomination.

Principal speaker was Dr. D. R. Sharpe, executive secretary of the Cleveland (Ohio) Baptist Association, who discussed "Baptist Strategy in Our Great Cities."

Pictor Out of Rich Pimlico Special Tomorrow

Navy Coach Plans Shake-up in Backfield

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

POVICH

It's war, men. An ice hockey front has been opened in Washington and the shooting has already started. The Washington Ulines have moved in and Loeffler's Eagles are on the defensive. Their war aims are similar; the capture of the customers.

For two years the Eagles have held the town, unopposed. With their Eastern Amateur League club they gave Washington its only hockey and for the Eagles it was profitable to the point of stirring the envy of Mike Uline. Now the big ice man is out to steal the show with his pros in the American Hockey League. The battle has been joined.

Uline hasn't copped a sneak, he has simply outmaneuvered the Eagles in the business of the schedule. His pros move into action tomorrow night in their first league game—against Indianapolis—and during the two weeks before the Eagles glide into action Uline hopes to win the customers. In those two weeks the Ulines are out to make it a whirlwind build-up.

In the middle at this time is the hockey-writing press, fawned upon alike by the Uline management and Loeffler in their efforts to get the most favorable notices. Uline, at an expense that has already hurt, has presented the newsmen with a meaty topic in his newly hired manager, Ching Johnson, battle-scarred veteran of hockey's big league. For weeks the Uline press relations men have paraded Johnson before the hockey writers and news cameras. Johnson, his nose broken a half dozen times and his body hem-stitched from his wounds, isn't very photogenic, but he's writable.

Loeffler Counters With Junket

In the battle for the favor of the press, Loeffler has already countered in the grand manner. This week, by airplane, no less, he is toting the town's hockey writers to Canada where they can preview his Eagles in action and, perhaps, blanket the debut of the Ulines with their by-line stuff from the Eagles' camp. It's a junket that will cost Loeffler at least a grand. But the guy had to do something, even if it came high.

From the Uline camp there have been sly cracks about the Eagles. "The Eagles are a pretty good amateur team," is the Uline's favorite line, with the implication, of course, that the Ulines are the town's professional club. Uline is sort of driving that idea home; at least he's making a noble attempt.

The Ulines, in a move that was completely smart, put the Eagles under something of a definite cloud when they invaded the Eagles' own league and adopted the Baltimore club as their farm team. The fact that the Eagles will be operating in a circuit that includes a mere farm team of the Ulines is some sort of an argument clincher on the respective merits of the two leagues.

But Loeffler isn't going into the battle empty-handed. His Eagles during the past two seasons have built up a Washington following that may stick. The Washington customers have gone quite giddy over the Eagles at various periods and Loeffler is counting on that two-year start in the affections of the customers to beat the challenge of the Ulines.

Uline Collects Flashy Company

Uline is staking the works on what he says will be Washington's demand for better hockey than the Eastern Amateur League brand. For a team that isn't quite big league, Uline has collected a flashy company including six former members of the Canadiens. "We'll let the customers choose," says Uline grandly. "If they want better hockey, and I think they will, everything will be fine."

Nobody quite seems to know the exact nut which the Ulines are carrying into the season. Asked what total gate receipts would enable him to break even on the season, Uline ventured that the figure would be $80,000. "Better make that $90,000, you're spending a lot of money, Mr. Uline," one of his aides told him. "Yes, better make that $90,000," quoth Uline, "this thing is running into money."

Uline admits to being a green pea at the hockey business, confessing that he is an ice man, by trade. He was slightly flabbergasted, for instance, to learn that his athletes' skates are costing him 30 bucks a pair and that each of his 16 men require two pair of skates. He can't put a uniform on them for less than $80, including all kinds of pads, and the average player will draw $150 a week for the 4½ months of the playing season. But he seems to like the sound of these big figures which are involving his bankroll.

Squad Drills On Offense And Blocking

Larson Says Boys 'Learned Something' In Harvard Battle; Unbeaten Penn Next

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Oct. 28.—Although last Saturday's scoreless tie with Harvard caused Navy's football stock to take a decided dip, Swede Larson, middle coach, wasn't discouraged today as he trained his charges for the showdown with unbeaten Pennsylvania Saturday.

"We were right down there in those trenches, grim and determined," he asserted.

"Our team learned a lot of football Saturday and we certainly ought to rebound to increased efficiency. We'll have to."

He said Pennsylvania has a fine rolling attack, adding that its blocking is good.

He indicated he may make some changes in Navy's backfield as he put his squad through a hard scrimmage against the "B" squad and plebe team which employed Quaker plays.

"It (possible changes) might have a healthy effect," he declared.

Tomorrow the Sailors will participate in their last scrimmage, tapering off Thursday. Larson is working to sharpen his team's offense and its blocking.

Vito Vitucci, first string guard, hurt his leg Saturday but is expected to be back in uniform tomorrow.

Neither Pennsylvania nor Navy has been defeated but the Middies will enter the game as the underdogs.

The Pennsylvanians whipped Harvard, 19-0; Yale 28-13; Princeton 23-0 and Maryland 55-6. Like Navy, Pennsylvania has a powerhouse team with plenty of reserves.

A sell-out crowd of approximately 73,000 fans, including two battalions of Midshipmen, will witness the fray.

Quakers Build Around Davis

Philadelphia.—Captain Gene Davis doesn't often make the headlines, but he's the real sparkplug behind the undefeated and untied Pennsylvania eleven that battles unbeaten Navy here Saturday.

In the Quakers' impressive triumphs over Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Maryland, the spotlight singled out Fullback Bert Stiff as he crashed through the line or tricky Halfbacks Joe Kane and Paxson Gifford as they slashed off tackle or around end.

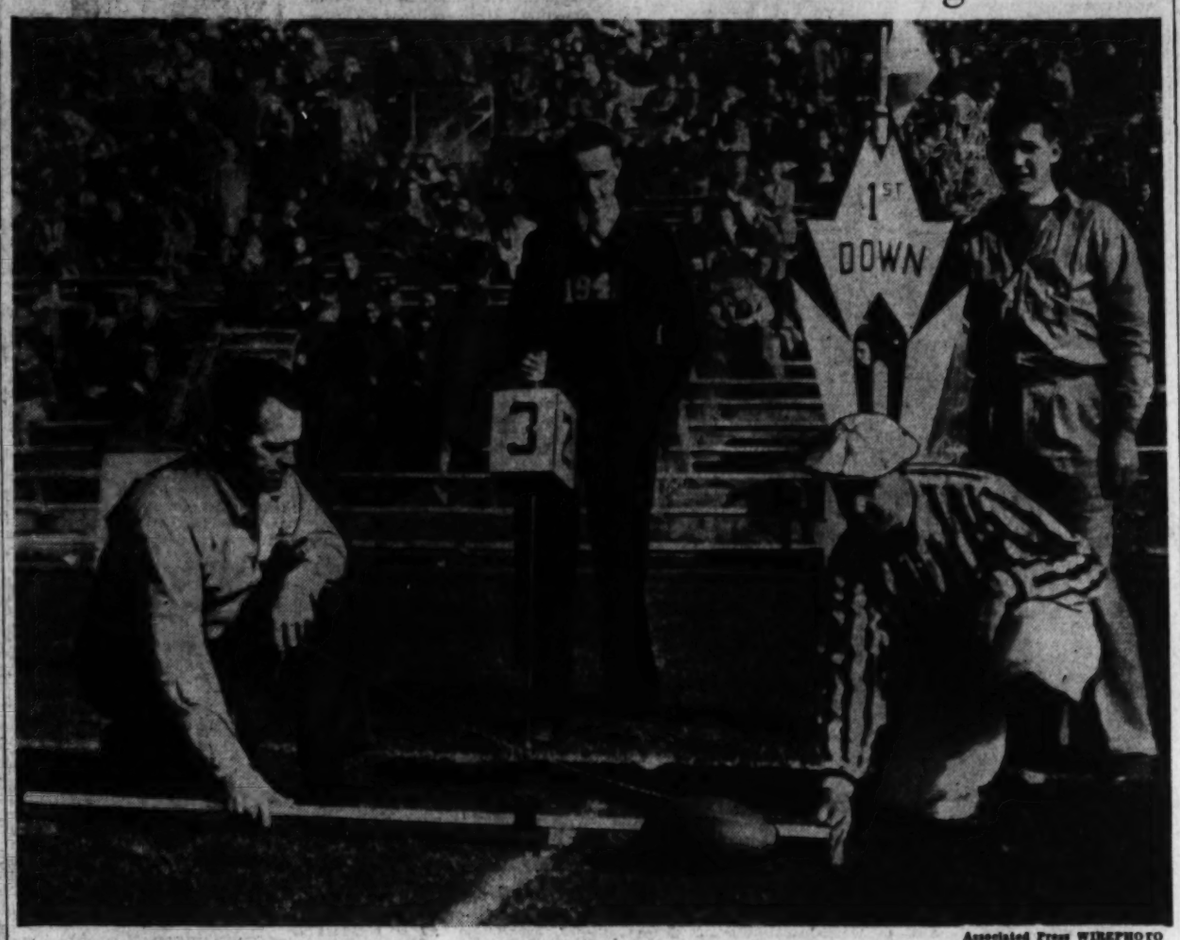
But it was Davis, 195-pound quarterback, who called their signals and spotted the holes in their opponents' defense; it was Davis who engineered the long sustained Penn marches that have spelled victory.

Conceded to be one of the best signal callers Penn has had in years, the 23-year-old captain's ability to mix plays and pick out weak spots in the defense is proven by Penn's record. Many teams are great between the 20-yard lines, but it takes good quarterbacking to pick the right plays when you get in scoring position.

Davis is a modest sort of chap and carried the ball just enough to throw the defense off. A senior from Suburban Narberth, he stands 5 feet 11 inches, wears No. 13 on his jersey, blocks nobly for his teammates, catches a pass now and then, kicked an occasional field goal and many extra points after touchdown.

Against Navy he'll run into stern opposition. If he can find a weak spot in the Middies forward line, he will have accomplished something William and Mary, West Virginia, Lafayette, Cornell and Harvard found impossible.

Latest in Football Innovations Is This Measuring Device



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Football pioneering continues and at Michigan State they've abandoned the oldest of the game's institutions—the chain for measuring yardage gained or lost. Here H. J. Balmer, Portland, Mich. (left), demonstrates the new gadget with the aid of Linesman L. B. Geneback. A stick, 10 yards long, the new yardstick is said to be less cumbersome and more accurate than the old chain. The stick, it is claimed, will measure accurately to the fraction of an inch

Market Wise And Haltal Left in Field

Brann Withdraws His Star, Saying Horse Needs a Rest; Race Marks Track Opening

Special Dispatch to The Post

Pimlico Track, Md., Oct. 28.—Although the Pimlico Special, after four excellent runnings, has been reduced to a meaningless race between two horses, the opening of the Maryland Jockey Club's meeting will not lack zip. Chief attention on tomorrow's card will be the $5000 added Exterminator Handicap, at the marathon distance of 2 miles and 70 yards.

The Special lost the last chance to be a real race when W. L. Brann announced at Laurel yesterday that his Pictor, winner of the $15,000 Washington Handicap last Saturday, would not be sent postward in the race his colors won twice through the pounding hoofs of Challedon.

Brann, who is a director of the Maryland Jockey Club, gave his reason for declining the invitation that Pictor would have to be sent back too soon after his hard Laurel effort at a mile and a quarter. Asked if Pictor would compete in the $25,000 added Westchester Handicap at Empire City on Saturday, Brann said he would have to consult with his trainer, Frank Waller, who is ill with the flu.

Haltal in Deep

A clash of Pictor and Market Wise would have "made" the Special. But with the Brann star in his stall, Market Wise will have only Haltal as opposition and the Dixie Handicap winner is effective only on an off track.

In contrast to the Special, the Exterminator Handicap is likely to draw a field of 12. This battle at a steeplechase distance but on the flat made a big hit last year when Mrs. Marie Evans' Shot Put was the winner. Shot Put goes postward tomorrow after his second triumph. Recognized as the distance champion of the country last year, Shot Put goes into action with the same weight he won with in 1940—122 pounds.

Among the marathon stars scheduled to oppose Shot Put is Paul Pry, owned by J. C. Vival. This veteran was third in the Dalngerfield Handicap at 2 miles in New York last Saturday. He carries 118 pounds. Other probable starters and their weights are: Greentree Stable's Century Note, 116; R. Sterling Clark's Abbe Pierre, 106; B. F. Christmas' Russia, 110; Phillip Bieber's Advocator, 109; A. C. Bostwick's Belay, 103; E. C. Eastwood's Santiago, 114; Hal Price Headley's Equitable, 105; J. G. Douglas, jr.'s Obash, 105; H. C. Hatch's Filisteo, 116, and R. B. Strassburger's Kennet Square, 104.

"Bones" Leads

It is only fitting that the field for the Exterminator Handicap be led to the post by the 26-year-old Exterminator. The ancient gelding, affectionately called "Old Bones" by those who saw him run, is already on the scene, having been vanned to Baltimore yesterday from Mrs. Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Court Manor Farm, at New Market, Va. Exterminator will march to the starting point without a rider.

Meanwhile, Laurel's most successful meeting since 1929 closes today with a well-balanced program, featured by the $2,500 added Fort McHenry Purse at a mile and a sixteenth. He Rolls, Allessandro, Birch Rod, Saguenay II and Army Song will battle it out for the main portion of the money.—HAIGHT.

Rams to Stay In Cleveland, Says Reeves

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Oct. 28.—Endng speculation that the Cleveland Rams National Professional Football League club might be moved elsewhere after this campaign, President Dan Reeves announced late today "the Rams definitely will be in Cleveland again next year."

Reeves told the Cleveland News in a telephone conversation from New York that he had talked the matter over with Fred Levy, Rams, vice president, "and we're very happy to make the announcement that the club will stay where it is."

Although the Rams lost money each of their four previous seasons in the league, the financial statements this season have been considerably improved. Officials say the club has an excellent chance of breaking even this year, despite higher overhead. The Rams have won only two of their seven league starts.

Gophers and Texas Lead in Grid Poll

Big Ten and S. W. Conference Dominate Third Weekly Voting

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 28.—Anyone who wants to stir up an argument as to whether they play better football in the Big Ten or the Southwest Conference can find plenty of material for both sides in this week's rankings of the Nation's leading teams as they're lined up by 127 experts participating in the third Associated Press poll of the season.

Only these two leagues are represented by more than one team in the first ten. And only the Southeastern Conference appears prominently in the next group of ten teams.

At the top of the heap, Minnesota and Texas share first place, each with 1161 points, scored on a 10-9-8, etc., basis. The Gophers, leaders from the start, polled 60 first-place votes to Texas' 53, but didn't get quite as strong support from those selectors who didn't rank them first. Michigan, beaten 7-0 by the Gophers Saturday, slipped from third place to seventh, with 396 points, and Northwestern, which takes on Minnesota next Saturday, is ranked ninth with 231.

The Southwest's second representative, also undefeated, is Texas A. and M., which polled 663 points without getting a first place vote, to earn fifth place. That was the same ranking the Aggies were given at this stage of the 1940 season. Southern Methodist came in twentieth in the voting with 16 points. Carrying the banner for the Southeast are Vanderbilt, tenth with 190 points; Alabama, fifteenth, and Mississippi and Mississippi State, tied for seventeenth. Following Minnesota and Texas is Fordham, with 784; Duke, 702; Texas A. and M., 663; Notre Dame, 636; Michigan, 396; Pennsylvania, one first and 315; Northwestern and Vanderbilt. The second ten are Navy, Stanford, Temple, Army, Alabama, Mississippi, Mississippi State, Missouri and S. M. U.

Almost automatically that lines up a great program for Saturday, when in addition to the Minnesota-Northwestern tussle of Titans, Texas takes on S. M. U., Notre Dame meets Army, which is a dangerous rival for the Irish even when the Cadets aren't good enough to collect 55 points; Penn faces Navy, which polled 163 points, and Vanderbilt meets Tulane, one of the leaders in the earlier polls which salvaged 10 points this week. Other games include Fordham-Purdue, Duke-Georgia Tech, Texas Aggies-Arkansas and Michigan-Illinois.

Greenleaf Lone Man Unbeaten In Cue Tourney

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Oct. 28.—Ralph Greenleaf remained the only undefeated contestant in the world's pocket billiards championship tournament today when George Kelly, Philadelphia champion, upset Jimmy Caras, Wilmington, Del., 125 to 45, in seven innings.

Greenleaf, the Chicago veteran who has won the title 17 times, has five straight victories to pace the 12-handed field in the $10,000 round-robin cue classic.

Caras, a former champion, won four straight games before his initial loss, which came as Kelly ran 56 unfinished to complete his surprising triumph. It was Kelly's third win against four defeats.

Kelly	0	15	19	1	14	20	56—125
Caras	0	0	17	4	8	16	— 45

A new record for brevity in the 1941 tournament was established when Andrew Ponzi, New York, a former champion, ran 79 and out to defeat Arthur (Babe. Cranfield, youthful southpaw from Syracuse, N. Y., 125 to 88, in four innings. Previous low innings was established by Ralph Greenleaf, Chicago, who had gone out in seven innings.

Ponzi, who has been beaten twice, registered his third victory. Cranfield, youngest expert in the field, had won two and lost five.

Scratch, 1. Total, 88.
Ponzi	0	21	25	79—	125

Pastor Stops Al Delaney In 6th Round

By the Associated Press

Toronto, Oct. 28.—Pounding away methodically and without any opposition, Bob Pastor, New York challenger for Joe Louis' heavyweight boxing title, scored a technical knockout over Al Delaney, of Windsor, Ont., Canadian champion, in the sixth round of a scheduled ten-round fight tonight.

Pastor weighed 182¾; Delaney, 197¾.

Delaney went down for the fifth time at 1:26 of the sixth round and Referee Sammy Luftspring didn't bother to count.

In every round until the finish Pastor belted Delaney all over the ring and received less than 12 punches in return.

In the first round, after feeling Delaney out, Pastor caught him on the ropes and punched solidly for one minute after Delaney got up from an eight-count. In the fifth Delaney went down for a four and two nine counts and was out cold on the floor when the bell rang to end the round.

The Canadian champion threw only two good punches, right overhand smashes to the head in the third and sixth rounds.

Orioles Lead in League

The Orioles monopolized most of the honors in the Elks Bowling League last night at the Recreation Alleys, sweeping three games from the Blue Birds. Sherbert, of the Orioles, rolled the high individual game of 118. R. Smithson, of Canarius, rolled a high set of 311.

Todd, Masterson Out Front In Redskin Point-Making

Pair, Along With Farkas, Gain On Cliff Battles' All-Time Mark

Dick Todd and Bob Masterson are leading the Redskins in the scoring department for the season, and Todd and Andy Farkas already have passed Riley Smith as the second leading scorer in the team's history.

Farkas, with one touchdown this year, has raised his four-year total to 111 points, while Todd, who has scored a trio of 6-pointers for 18 points this season, is a single point back with 110 for one fewer campaign.

Cliff Battles, with the Boston and Washington club through the seasons of 1932-1937, is the all-time leader with 187 points and it may take Todd and Farkas several years to reach this total.

Wingman Bob Busy

Masterson, the only Redskin to score in all three departments, has nabbed one touchdown pass and booted two field goals and six point after touchdown placements for 18 points this season and an all-time mark of 89.

Both Todd and Masterson are well back of the league's leading point makers, and the Redskin two-team system is principally responsible for this. Too, the Redskins are averaging seven fewer points a game this year with 15, as last season the Eastern champions averaged 22 in the 11 games exclusive of the playoff.

The Redskins were put through a 2½-hour workout yesterday morning at the stadium as Coach Ray Flaherty is working toward the toughest half of the schedule, with the Steelers, Sunday opponents, as the only team over which the Redskins will be favored.

Coach Impressed

Flaherty was impressed with reports from Chicago, Pittsburgh and New York that the Steelers played their best game of the season Sunday, even in a 34-7 defeat by the Bears. The Redskins barely made the grade in Pittsburgh, winning 24-20 after wasting a 17-point advantage.

Bob Hoffman's future for the season will not be definitely known until the end of the week, but he will be lost for all but two or three games at best. He has been in Emergency Hospital for a week with an aggravated cold condition.

Bill Young will be missing from his tackle post this week and possibly next but will be ready for the Bears in Chicago.

Illinois 'Ringer' Case Report Due From Board Today

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 28.—The Illinois Racing Board concluded today its hearings on the Rapid Bone "ringer" case and announced a report would be made tomorrow of its investigation of the case.

The thoroughbred Hasty Notion raced to victory at Hawthorne September 24 under the name of Rapid Bone.

Several key witnesses were absent today as they were at the first hearing last week. The board chairman, Maj. Ednyfed H. Williams, said the board would make a recommendation as to future action in cases of this kind.

Gloves Tourney To Open Dec. 5

The Golden Gloves Boxing Tournament will move into Uline Arena for the first time this year, it was announced yesterday by Director James A. Sullivan, starting on December 5. More than 150 young sluggers are expected to enter, seeking the trip to New York which goes to the various weight winners.

Joe Louis and Wife On Vacation; U. S. Call Is Due Soon

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Oct. 28.—Joe Louis, world heavyweight boxing champion, arrived from Chicago today for a vacation.

He was accompanied by his wife, Marva, and Freddie Guinyard, secretary and bodyguard.

Louis expects to report to his draft board in Chicago about November 20. He's in class 1-A but reaches his twenty-eighth birthday in May.

Time of Duquesne Villanova Game Saturday Changed

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Oct. 28.—Unbeaten Duquesne will meet Villanova College here Saturday night instead of in an afternoon game which would have conflicted with the Pitt-Ohio State battle, Duquesne officials disclosed today.

The change in schedule, shifting the Duquesne-Villanova game at Forbes Field from 2 p. m. to 8:30 p. m., was made with the consent of Villanova officials, Duquesne Publicity Director Jack Davis said.

"The new arrangements will permit fans undecided which game to attend to take in both," Davis commented, adding that the advance sale for the Duquesne-Villanova game had been heavy. Pitt and Ohio State meet at Pitt Stadium, not far from Forbes Field, and Pitt authorities expect a crowd of 55,000.

College Gridders Should Get Pay—Reagan

Should Share in Money Schools Make, Says Former Quaker Hero

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Oct. 28.—Francis X. Reagan bid farewell to the gridiron today, "for the duration" at least—with a declaration that college football players should be paid in cash, not rah-rahs.

Leaving for Quantico, Va., to begin training for a second lieutenant's commission in the United States Marine Corps, the former star Penn halfback said "there is no reason why all colleges should not pay their players."

"There is no reason to hide any of this," he added. "The boys take a lot of chances and should get more that the old Rah! Rah! Football puts a lot of money in the treasuries of colleges. The boys who go out there earning it should get something."

Reagan said he found professional football "plenty tough" in playing five games this season with the New York Giants. But he urged "any boy who has the chance to go ahead and get into it."

Lions Ask Waivers On Two Players

Detroit, Oct. 28 (AP).—The Detroit Lions announced today that National Football League waivers have been asked on Quarterback Fred Vanzo and End Charley Hanneman, and that several dealers were in the making for the two veterans.

Disposal of Vanzo, 230-pound former Northwestern University blocking back now in his fourth season of professional football, and Hanneman, playing his fifth season after a career at Michigan Normal College, was declared to be part of a rebuilding process directed by Owner Fred L. Mandel, jr. The Lions have won one and tied one against four defeats this season.

Riley Smith Named Smoke Bowl Promoter

Richmond, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—Riley Smith, Washington and Lee football coach, will serve as promoter for Richmond's second annual Smoke Smoke Bowl football contest, being in complete charge of the game itself, Chief M. O. Parrish and Capt. W. L. Morecock, cochairman of the Bowl committee for the Richmond Fire Department, announced today.

'Whirly' Reaches Santa Anita For Shot at Money Title

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Oct. 28.—One peep at that famous long, bushy tail and the crowd broke into a cheer.

It belonged to Whirlaway, and the warm welcome extended the Calumet king would have gladdened the heart of all Kentucky. Yes, Whirlaway, heading an invading contingent of 46 thoroughbreds of the Calumet Stable, arrived today to be greeted by an unprecedented throng of hundreds.

With Whirly was Some Chance, the stable's champion 2-year-old, and many other fine race horses, but the Blenheim colt was the main attraction.

The triple crown winner of 1941 seeks to wrest record money-winning laurels from California's beloved Seabiscuit, and bids fair to do it in the coming winter campaign at Santa Anita.

Whirly lags the Seabiscuit record of $437,730 by $88,000. He's eligible for stakes totaling $205,000 before the Santa Anita season is over. The golden goal, of course, is the golden gallop on March 7—the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

California always will love old Seabiscuit, who reached his peak in a gallant comeback at the age of 7, but Whirly, capricious winner of the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont, holds the fancy of the turf world today.

Warren Wright's colt is eligible for six stakes this winter—one worth $50,000 in added money—three $10,000 races, one $25,000 and the $100,000 handicap. Some Chance, incidentally, is eligible for $295,000 added stake money, including the $50,000 Derby.

Down a lane of admirers, admitted to the stable area for the first time in Santa Anita's history, Whirlaway pranced to his elaborate quarters. Silver King, his white saddle ponypal, preceded him down the runway.

The champ got excited only once, when Stablemate Dandy Fox started to act up behind him. Both were quieted quickly.

Track officials said the crowd approximated 5000.

Back in 1935, two other great champions of their time, Twenty Grand and Equipoise, occupied the same stable to which Whirlaway was led. Both failed to place in the $100,000 race.

It was just too much for them. And it will be no walkaway for Whirlaway.

Washington Girl Enters Semifinals Of Bates Net Play

By the Associated Press

New London, Conn., Oct. 28.—Vice President Wallace's daughter, Jean, a junior at the Connecticut college, bowed to Dorothy Royce, Pasadena, Calif., freshman in a quarter-finals match of Bates Trophy tournament play here today. Miss Royce won, 9—7, 4—6, 6—0.

Julia Rich, Woolrich, Pa., a junior, defeated Margaret Heminway, junior, Watertown, Conn., 6—0, 6—3, and Stratton Nicholson, a sophomore, Washington, D. C., defeated Doris McEvoy, freshman, Westfield, N. J., 6—0, 6—3.

First D. C. Ice Hockey Pros Face Indianapolis in Opener

Amerk Six Made Up of Veterans

Ching Johnson Heads Team Starting Season at Uline; Mailley Listed

The first shot in the battle for local ice hockey patronage will be fired tomorrow night at Uline Arena when Washington's first professional ice team meets Indianapolis in its American League debut.

Coached by Ching Johnson, the old National Professional League star, the Washington Amerks will present a team of veterans recruited exclusively from the Canadian hinterlands. Only familiar face among them will be that of Frank Mailley, who played here last season with the Washington Eagles, the city's representatives in the Eastern Amateur League.

Little is known of the caliber of the team that Johnson has whipped together for Mike Uline, except that it handily defeated a league member, Providence, in a recent exhibition in Canada. The Amerks' 5-to-2 victory over Providence may be significant, inasmuch as Providence earlier had defeated the Cleveland Bisons, defending league champions, in another exhibition.

The probable starting line-up for Johnson's six will be George Mantha and Louis Trudel, forwards; Polly Druin, center; Alex Singbush and Paul Shields, defense, and Paul Bibeault, goalie.

Among the reserves will be Stu Smith, Mailley and George Koivuniemi and Burt Janke, wingmen; Leo Lamourex, defense, and Center Connie Tudin. Koivuniemi, Finnish by birth, was the big offensive star of the Amerks' exhibition victory over the Providence Reds, scoring a pair of goals.

The Amerks, though untested, are not inexperienced, since as a group they average more than 25 years of age. Like many other Canadians, many of them have been playing hockey since they learned how to skate.

Mantha, who is touted as the coming star of the team, is one of the oldest, being 32, and will be starting his ninth year in the pro ranks.

Wilson on Way To Join Eagle Hockey Team

Montreal, Canada, October 28.—Jimmy Wilson, a lightning-fast wingman who played some fine ice hockey with the New York Rovers last season, today was speeding here to join the Washington Eagles in their fall training.

Coach Redvers Mackenzie also announced that Roland Bleau, a local boy and a wingman with considerable promise, will receive a trial with the Eastern League champions, but has not, as yet, been signed.

Both Wilson and Bleau will see plenty of action tomorrow night when the Eagles open their exhibition season against the Cornwall Flyers in Cornwall, Ontario. They also will be tested in Friday night's match with the Kingston All-Stars in Kingston, Ontario, and in Sunday afternoon's meeting with the Shawinigan Falls, Quebec, sextet on the latters' ice.

Wilson is a 5-foot, 9-inch, 160-pound speed specialist and an opportune scorer. Bleau is a short, stumpy French-Canadian and a graduate of Canadian Junior ranks.

Wilson is the tenth player signed by the Eagles, and is considered a sure-fire sensation by Mackenzie. Several other players, including two exceptional prospects from Toronto, are expected to report here hourly.

Six-Rounders Scheduled for Arena Boxing

As both Jimmy DeChard, the local heavyweight, and Jay D. Turner, the hard-smashing Texan, increased the tempo of their training yesterday, Matchmaker Gabe Manendez went about his business of completing his supporting card for next Monday night's show at Turner's Arena.

The show officially opens the indoor fall fistic season at the Fourteenth and W emporium.

Turner and DeChard will headline the bout in an eight-rounder, and in a six-rounder Jabbo Kenner, the 6-foot 3 former Chevy Chase caddy, will tackle Earl Lowman, a squatty former Golden Gloves winner from New York.

One of the best bouts on the card is due to evolve from the six-rounder between Oscar (Thunderbolt) Wright, Charlie Harris' promising lightweight, and Billy Bullock, of Washington. This is an all-local scrap in which the winner may find himself in a headline role in the next few weeks.

The third six is between Johnny Yellovich, Bill Daley's fighter from Paterson, N. J., and Jackie Senna, Mexican jumping bean, who once was a stablemate of Henry Armstrong.

Wildcat Star Ready for Gophers After Operation

Chicago, Oct. 28 (AP).—Otto Graham, sensational Northwestern sophomore halfback, underwent an operation for a nose fracture today, but will be ready for Saturday's important battle at Minneapolis between the Wildcats and undefeated Minnesota.

Graham suffered the injury last Saturday, when he pitched two touchdown passes which gave Northwestern a 14-to-7 victory over Ohio State. He did not work out this afternoon, but university officials said he would see action against the Gophers with the aid of a nose guard.

Lightweight Jackets Play Tigers Friday

Richmond, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—Three games are billed this weekend in the State 150-pound college football league, with the Randolph-Macon team in action for the first time against loop opposition.

The Yellow Jackets will play the Hampden-Sydney lightweights Friday at Hampden-Sydney. Other games will find Virginia meeting Roanoke at Salem and William and Mary entertaining Washington and Lee on Saturday.

At present W. and L. and Hampden-Sydney are setting the pace in the league with one victory and one tie against no losses, each.

Tatu Closes Fast To Take Feature At Churchill Downs

By the Associated Press

Churchill Downs, Louisville, Ky., Oct. 28.—Closing with a rush after a slow beginning, Roscoe Goose's Tatu got up to win a photo decision in the Waldeck Farm Purse, a dash for 2-year-olds which featured today's mediocre card.

A neck behind the winner in second place was M. Stephens' Snow Apple. Third money went to Wise Decree, from the stable of William Kenney. A field of 12 contested.

Tatu, backed to late favoritism, paid $7.20 for $2. The son of Byrd was timed the three-quarters in 1:14 4-5 over a slow, drying-out track. Jockey Wilbur Borton had the winning mount.

Close Battle Due as Cats Play Gophers

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, Oct. 28.—Minnesota and Northwestern's rivalry, to be resumed this weekend in one of the Nation's top games, always packs the stands, but does not always turn out to be a spectators' pigskin delight.

Going strictly on the record, the two ranking elevens always play the kind of rock-'em, sock-'em football that thrills the rival coaching staffs and the insiders but often leaves the grandstand quarterbacks still looking for the spectacular.

It is the kind of football in which two big lines, stressing man to man skirmishes, dominate the play. It also is the kind of football in which the winner seldom develops a margin of more than a few points.

Cats Are Jinx Team

Statistics show the Wildcats are one of three outfits able to solve the problem that has vexed many of the Nation's teams—namely, to have been able to stop the Golden Gophers by a margin of one touchdown or less.

In 1936, the proteges of Lynn Waldorf won 6-0 at Evanston in a muddy battle that was decided in large part by a penalty on the Gophers to the 1-yard line. Two years later in the same ball yard, Northwestern won, 6-3, to perpetuate the jinx that has made it tough for Minnesota to win at Dyche Stadium.

The 1939 season, worst under Bierman at Minnesota, saw the Cats win, 14 to 7, as Bill Decorrevont, then a publicity-harassed sophomore, sprinted half the length of the field for the winning touchdown.

Coaches' Football

Aside from Decorrevant's sprint, the meetings between the two Western Conference grid powers have been characterized by coaches' football—those short punches at the line by fullbacks, those goal-line stands and the inevitable result of one team or the other taking advantage of the breaks of the game.

It has always been a matter of course from the viewpoint of Minnesota fans that the Golden Gophers expect their toughest game of the season from the Wildcats and always get it. This year's seems no exception.

There is a possibility of ball-carrying fireworks in the lineup of the two rivals next Saturday, however. The Cats have Decorrevont and Otto Graham in the touchdown department, while the Gophers can counter with such luminaries as Bruce Smith, Bill Daley and Bud Higgins.

The discovery that Graham suffered a broken nose in the Ohio State game failed to disturb anyone in the Wildcats' camp when trainers said he would be able to play Saturday.

Another casualty was Coach Waldorf, who has laryngitis and had to call his gridders close about him to whisper instructions.

Fishing . . .

With Jack Bell

There are prizes and trophies for the biggest fish, the best fish stories, and now for the smallest fish. What next?

JACK BELL

Early in the season, Sally Powers, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Henry Sherrier, of Elizabeth, N. J., registered two codfish weighing 5½ ounces, and 5 ounces respectively, in the 1941 George Ruppert Contest. Now during the past week Arthur L. Batten entered a Black Sea bass which weighed—75 grains! or, as he pointed out, 0.1714 of an ounce avoirdupois.

This "giant" was taken on a 1-0 hook with 6-thread line, using shedder-crab for bait.

Along with this report comes one from Capt. Vic Lance, of the "Terobil," who reports that Bob Avery, of Washington, D. C., fishing with him out of Ocean City, Md., caught a 2-pound 7-ounce tuna 16 inches long, with a girth of 11 inches. And in the same mail Winston K. Ogden, of Summit, N. J., registered a tuna weighing one pound 12 ounces, caught off Barnegat Inlet. The "sea" world is evidently getting smaller along with the rest of it.

Incidentally, it is fast approaching closing time for entries for the Neptune Trophy. Send in your stories, remember there must be two—one a strange "unbelievable truth"—witnessed by another, the other story must be a face flushing falsehood—a lying exaggeration.

SWAINS PRODUCING

Swainws locks on the Potomac above Great Falls during the last week, probably was the best small-mouth bass producing section on the river. Anglers fishing the upper reaches are not catching the scrappy fellows like they did early in the season. With the drop in the water level—and it has been considerable—the bass evidently are now migrating down river into deeper waters. Another big one of 5¼ pounds was reported caught at Swains.

Bob Craig, at Swains, has 15 good fishing boats to accommodate anglers fishing there, and there is plenty of good fishing water. Bob tells us the live bait fisherman is really having good sport. The average bass caught last week was 14 inches.

Striped bass are reported plentiful in the Tilgman's Island sector, over on the eastern shore. Fishermen are having good sport and landing some very fine stripers.

Due to the unseasonable warm weather the bay fish, particularly the striped bass, are several weeks behind schedule, and as a result anglers should find at least three weeks more good fishing.

It is with the chill of frosty weather, when the water gets cold and drives the schools of alewives towards warmer waters, that the big stripers begin to follow the small fish upon which they feed. Then they will be located in some definite area. Now they may be found most anywhere; the fish are constantly on the move.

EXPLODING FISH

Here is a good story which comes out of the New River sector near Radford, Va.

D. C. Smith, an engineer employed in the Radford Ordinance Works, was fishing in New River, which flows past the Powder Plant. Smith caught some small catfish and took 'em home for his dinner. His wife put the fish in the skillet and was frying them when they exploded, wrecking the skillet, the stove, Smith's shirt and pants and his appetite for catfish.

The fish were impregnated with nitro cotton.

Plans for a large scale shark-fishing industry on North Carolina's outer banks are being laid. The war is responsible.

Spots—the same fish that ran so heavy in the Chesapeake Bay waters this season, are running in extraordinary volume off the coast of North Carolina. At Beaufort so far this season the catch has run over a million pounds. Largest single haul was made near Atlantic by Maj. Tom Gaskill and his crew of five. They brought in 145,000 pounds, a record for this coast.

Fish Commission Frowns on Army Base Establishment

By the Associated Press

Boise, Idaho, Oct. 28.—The Idaho Fish and Game Commission opposes establishment of an Army training base at Henrys Lake, Idaho, on the ground it would interfere with hunting and fishing.

In a resolution, the commission said:

"Henrys Lake is one of Idaho's chief spawn taking stations, hatchery sites and recreational areas.

"The commission does earnestly request the Army to make every effort to find another suitable location or . . . exclude from their acquirement the lake and immediate surrounding lands."

Tech and Central Renew Feud Which Started in '02 Saturday

In the matter of games won during their 38-year-old rivalry Central and Tech are all even going into Saturday's renewal at Central Stadium . . . but not in games won this year, nor in respective strength . . . Central's Vikings will be an over-powering favorite . . . Each club has won 16 battles, since the initial one in 1902 . . . Six have been ties, including last year's . . . The Maroon has rung up the most one-sided victories—by 45-0 in 1934 and by 48-0 in 1928 . . . Oddest result was in 1906 when Central took an 11-4 edge.

Overlooking the age of the Tech-Central rivalry, which will make any result not so surprising, the week's best scholastic game still should be Friday between Western at Eastern . . . It's do or die for the latter, with Anacostia's stock zooming in the eastern division of inter-high play . . . With Western it's mostly die, what with Central already miles out front in the western division . . . Nevertheless it will be a bitter game, considering the wholesome hate each school has for the other . . . Woodward School has listed a clash with Chamberlin Vocational on Friday at the Monument Grounds . . . Roosevelt, threatened by St. John's this week, sends a player Coach Artie Boyd predicts will be "the best back in the series next year" into action . . . That would be Irwin Lust, a first-season man . . . A big part of Roosevelt's cheering section will be made up of Kolkers—Sid, Joe and Bernie—all out to watch brother Irving perform . . . Radio stations of Richmond, where The Washington Post's All-Metro team will face an All-Richmond squad in the Tobacco Bowl on November 29, have already promised to give bowl activities complete coverage . . . WRNL and WRVA will each back a team as will the Richmond newspapers—The Times-Dispatch and News-Leader . . . A hearty backer of the D. C. invasion is Chauncey Durden, sports editor . . .

Anacostia's Eddie Hoffman, Paul Blaine, Frank Burback and Bob Nolte will get a lot of rest this week while their mates play Coolidge, according to Coach Rolland Lund. . . . Tech's Coach Artie Wondrack has a new method of being nonchalant as his gridmen cavort. . . . He eats peanuts. . . . Landon and St. Albans face real threats to their victory streaks Friday against Boys Latin at Baltimore and St. Andrews here, respectively. . . . The only possible "repeater" on the All-Metro grid team is Gonzaga's Elmer Raba. . . . He's the only 1940 holdover. . . . The only second-team selection who could move up is Central's Wilbur Rock.

BILL BURNETT.

Picco's Grid Career at G. W. May End After Knee X-Ray

Stellar End To Undergo Exam Soon

Doctor to Decide Football Future; Has Played Only Briefly So Far

By Jack Munhall

A couple of freak accidents may have terminated the brilliant football career of Johnny Picco, George Washington senior end and the team's outstanding player of 1940, it was learned last night.

Picco's trouble is a bad knee, first injured last month in a passing drill for his team's opener with Mount St. Mary's and then badly aggravated last week when he stepped down off a training table.

The tall Butte, Mont., native has played less than 15 minutes of George Washington's five games to date, and an X-ray in the next few days will determine whether he'll play any more this season, Coach Bill Reinhart declared last night.

"I'm not counting on Picco for Friday night's game with Clemson," said Reinhart. "Johnny's got one of those trick knees you can never tell about. He may play again for us and he may not."

Doctor The Boss

Reinhart said that he will abide by the doctor's decision on Picco, which will be made after the swelling leaves Picco's limb to permit the X-ray and the physician's examination.

"Johnny wants to play, but if the doctor says it will be dangerous for him to do so, then he'll play no more for us."

Bothered by his knee ever since he twisted it running after a pass, Picco twice has been all set to get back into the line-up, but each time something happened. He got in the Manhattan game the following week after missing action against Mount St. Mary's. Soon after he trotted out on the field he fell on a fumble, somebody fell on him and the knee popped out of place again.

Then last week this ace player, who was an unanimous all-District choice in 1940, believed himself firm again. He was ready to make the trip to Norfolk to play William and Mary, but on Thursday, the day the team was to leave, he stepped down from a training table after a heat treatment and the trick knee went on the blink again. He wasn't even able to make the Norfolk trip.

That's how the matter stands now and Coach Reinhart already has taken steps to bolster his ever-waning strength at ends. Pat Del Vecchio and Harry Ledford both were injured in the William and Mary game and neither is a sure bet to play in the Clemson game. So yesterday Reinhart made some more shifts. He moved Stan Ziobro from end back to guard where the fellow is a much more valuable player and changed a couple of blocking backs, Bill Bess and Al Romasco, to wingmen.

"They're both green, of course," said Reinhart," and Clemson will be a tough game for them to break in, but I think they'll do. They'll have to do, we haven't got anybody else."

Backs Shifted

Romasco, who stands only 5:09 and weighs about 170, is too short for an end, according to the popular standard, but Bess has the physical prerequisites. A former all-State center from Illinois, Bess is a powerful 6-footer. But unlike Romasco, who played end in high school, Bess is new at the berth.

Reinhart also is continuing to experiment with his punchless backfield which has been scoreless since G. W. beat Mount St. Mary's, 25-0. Yesterday he had Jim Graham back at left half and Scott Gudmundson, who used to be the team's starting left half, was at wingback. With them was Fullback Walter Fedora and Blocking Back Paul Nugent.

This quartet will start the Clemson game, according to Reinhart, unless something evil befalls them. Nugent has an injured elbow which may be put out of whack by the slightest jar, and Burnell Martinson, the other candidate for blocking back, is also ailing.

All in all George Washington's outlook is not promising for Friday night's game with Clemson, which will be in no sympathetic mood after having its undefeated season spoiled last week by South Carolina.

Bragg's Lexington Farm Bought by Edwin Moores

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 28 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Moore, owners of Circle M Ranch at Sheridan, Wyo., have purchased Thomas Bragg's 126-acre Slickaway Farm near here, it was learned today.

The Moores' plans for Slickaway were not announced, but it is understood they would enter thoroughbred breeding operations. Included in the Circle M Stable is Big Pebble, ailing stakes winner, and a number of brood mares.

Clemson Alumni To Fete Team

The football team of Clemson College, which tangles with George Washington here Friday night, will be royally entertained by the Clemson Alumni Association before and after the game. Among the entertainment planned are a luncheon at the National Press Club at 12:30 p. m. Friday and a sightseeing trip Saturday afternoon.

Army's Blaik Denies Use Of Miracles With Grid Team

Horse Sense and Instilling Confidence In Players Cited for Rise to Power

By Sid Feder
Associated Press Sports Writer

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Prof. Red Blaik, the magician of the Mole-skins, wants it distinctly understood that no one pulled any rabbits out of a hat to bring Army back as a football power.

Despite what the majors and colonels in the far-flung Army outposts try to tell you about the miracles Red has worked since taking over on the Plains, there was nothing too concocting the winning cocktail but a jigger of horse sense and a dash of making the players realize it was just as easy to win as to lose.

As the entire cadet corps, from the football captain down to the rawest stiff-necked plebe, made ready today for the annual big battle with high-geared Notre Dame Saturday, Red sat back and poohpoohed the idea that the startling shift from two years of Army losses to a so far undefeated campaign necessitated any miraculous magic on the part of himself or his staff.

"Why," he why-ed, "we've treated these fellows just like we would any ordinary men. We've approached them from the common-them why we were having them sense angle. We've tried to tell do certain things so they'd know why they were working hard on certain football fundamentals.

"When I first arrived, the boys just didn't know what the hard work was for. But after they'd won a couple, they got the idea in a hurry. That's all there was to it. They're college men and they realized that if they were going to work hard they might as well do it to win as to lose. As for saying I've done the coaching job of the year here—well, I'm no Houdini."

In spite of the fact Red tries to knock down any great stunt he might have pulled, there's no denying the fact this Army team has more morale and zing than any cadet club in years. They're so high, in fact, they're looking ahead to Notre Dame as just another ball club to be taken—and this despite Red's warning to them that on physical comparison, speed and performance the Irish should walk over them.

This, mind you, despite the fact Red has virtually the same squad which won only one game last year, and that a one-point edge over Williams.

"Do you want to know the real miracle here," he went on. "It's the fact that a squad which has lost consistently for two years can still have such great morale. Ordinarily, after a team has been down for two years like these boys have, a new coach would take three or four years to rebuild. But these fellows just picked themselves off the floor and now they're fighting like soldiers."

Red may think this continued morale is to the credit of the players alone. But Army men laugh that one off and put the finger right on—(you guessed it)—Prof. Red Blaik.

Harvard Squad Asks for More Work; Gets It

By the Associated Press

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 28.—After coasting through an easy workout in preparation for Princeton today Harvard's football regulars asked for more work and Coach Dick Harlow sent them through a vigorous 15-minute scrimmage against a combination third and fourth string line-up. Princeton is next on the Crimson list.

Spiegel to Start

New York.—Adam Spiegel, Columbia wingback out since before the season's opener with a broken collar, participated in his first hard practice and Coach Lou Little said he would see service Saturday against Cornell.

B. C. Backs Drill

Newton, Mass.—Coach Denny Myers alternated two Boston College backfields on offense as he put his first and second teams through a long scrimmage.

Syracuse Rushes Work

Syracuse, N. Y.—Freshmen teams using Wisconsin plays worked against three Syracuse University varsity aggregations as Coach Ossie Solem stepped up preparations for the trip to Madison, Wis., this weekend.

Jaspers' Fesko Back

New York—John Fesko, regular quarterback, who was injured in Manhattan's upset of Villanova, drilled as the Jaspers ironed out defense problems against Detroit University plays.

Yale Polishes Passes

New Haven, Conn.—Yale, whose next opponent is the Brown University team that has not yielded a touchdown through the line all year, spent the day rehearsing its aerial attack. The Yale backs and ends worked overtime on their passing assignments.

Rams Tighten Defense

New York—Coach Jim Crowley said he still was displeased with Fordham's pass defense and sent the varsity through an hour and a half drill as the Rams got ready for Purdue's visit.

Holy Cross Works

Worcester, Mass.—Although neither Johnny Grigas nor Frank Saba dressed for the drill, the Holy Cross football team was driven through a long drill on offense. Grigas and Saba, both starting backs, were sidelined by injuries but expect to be ready for the Colgate game.

N. Y. U. Backs Shifted

New York—New York University's backfield talent was shifted in anticipation that Len Bates, regular fullback, will be unable to play against Penn State Friday. Bates suffered a nerve injury in his right arm during the Holy Cross encounter.

Tigers Run Wild

Princeton, N. J.—Princeton's varsity football machine, irked by its inability to score against Vanderbilt, crashed through for seven touchdowns in a game-like scrimmage with the Frosh.

Owls Scrimmage

Philadelphia—Temple Coach Ray Morrison, remembering last year's 33 to 20 contest with Boston College, sent the unbeaten Owls through a long offensive drill as preparation for meeting the Eagles Saturday.

Colgate Squad Split

Hamilton, N. Y.—The Colgate squad was divided into two sections with Coach Andy Kerr drilling one group on offensive formations and his aides telling the other how to stop John Grigas, Holy Cross fullback and leading ground gainer.

Terps' Chances With Rutgers Are Boosted

With Fullback Jack Wright and Lefthalf Tommy Mont back in condition, Maryland's football team believes it has an even chance of defeating Rutgers Saturday at New Brunswick, and history argues strongly in the Terps' favor.

Maryland and Rutgers have played five games since they started relations in 1920. Maryland has won three and Rutgers two, and in none of them did the winner score by more than 13 points.

Most decisive victory of the season was recorded in 1939 as Rutgers triumphed, 25-12. In 1920 Rutgers won, 3-0. The following year the Terps came out on top, 3-0, and in 1925 the Old Liners won, 14-6, in the only game of the series played at Franklin Field, Philadelphia. Rutgers won in 1939 to even the series, but Maryland registered a surprise 14-7 victory last year to reclaim the lead.

This season neither team has much to recommend it. Maryland has defeated Hampden-Sydney, 18-0, tied Western Maryland, 6-6, upset Florida, 13-12, and lost to Duke, 50-0, and Penn, 55-6. Rutgers, it is true, was undefeated, untied and unscored on until Syracuse thumped 'em, 49-7, last week. But before that time, the Scarlet was also untested. They had defeated Alfred, 34-0, Springfield, 26-0, and Lehigh, 16-0.

Terps May Surprise

Paradoxical as it may seem in view of the comparative records, Maryland, if at full strength, should be the favorite over Rutgers. If for no other reason the Terps seem to rate the edge because of their victory over Florida, a team that last week extended L. S. U., 10 to 7, after L. S. U. had walloped the same club that nosed out Tulane.

Though it is hard to praise a team that has been beaten by the scores Maryland has, the suspicion lingers that the Old Liners have a much better outfit than generally realized. In playing Duke and Penn, Maryland was not only meeting squads that greatly outnumbered its own, but also two of the mightiest teams in all the country.

Even in defeat Maryland has shown promise of a future high-powered attack. Against Duke it clicked often on passes and threatened seriously at least once before the Blue Devils buckled down and held for downs. In the Penn game Maryland amassed 227 yards, a very creditable figure to be reached in any game, and in five games it has rolled up a total of 1204 yards, most of it through the air.

Wright, the stocky sophomore fullback who threw the touchdown pass that beat Florida, and Mont, also a sophomore and a dangerous passer, both missed the Penn game. Their return will greatly bolster the Terps' attack.—MUNHALL.

A.A.U. Opens Athletics to Service Men

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 28.—The Amateur Athletic Union will open the door to service men for competition in A. A. U. events by waiving registration, residence rules and entry fees for national championships if the legislation committee's proposal is adopted at the annual meeting in Philadelphia, November 15-17.

The proposal is one of the 46 proposed changes to the constitution, by-laws and general and athletic rules of the A. A. U. announced today by Albert F. Whelile of Baltimore, chairman of the legislation committee. For closed service events the A. A. U. proposes not to declare amateurs ineligible for competing against ineligible athletes.

Other proposals to be voted on include changing of the outdoor track and field championships from meters to yards with the track and field committee having the option to use either; adding the two-mile relay and 70-yard low hurdles to the indoor track program and eliminating the half-mile and distance medley relays and steeplechase; and the substituting of the 100-yard breaststroke for the 220-yard breaststroke in the women's indoor swimming championships.

Staunton Juniors Smash Fishburne

Staunton, Va., Oct. 28.—The Staunton Military Academy junior varsity blasted a courageous Fishburne JV team today at Staunton, 32-0. A spectacular running and aerial attack produced touchdowns in the last three quarters.

Coercion Leads All the Way to Win Feature Race at Laurel

8000 Watch Fleet Filly Win Easily

Dark Imp Poor 2d; Mattie J. Third as Winner Pays $3.40; Foul Claims Refused

By Walter Haight

Post Staff Correspondent.

Laurel, Md., Oct. 28.—Bounding to the front as the starting gates swung open, Charlie Stern's Coercion made every post a winning one in the Worthington Purse, outstanding event on the Tuesday program here in Howard County. In winning her second race here since being claimed by Stern in New York for $3500, this fleet daughter of Cohort and Mad Hattie came to the wire running easily. The Wheatley Stable's Dark Imp ran a creditable race but was no match for the winner, being beaten two and a half lengths. It was by a like margin that Dark Imp held Mattie J in third position.

Coercion's sprinting ability was no secret. The crowd of 8000 installed the filly an odds-on favorite and she paid a $3.40 mutuel. Her time of 1:13-1-5 was fair over a track designated as "good." A bright sun and a strong wind worked miracles with the racing strip which was slow during the early stages of the program.

Coercion, Mary Schulz, Dark Imp and True Call ran abreast in the first 20 yards with the ultimate winner having a shade the best of it. Coule then urged Coercion into a length and a half lead and she held sway thereafter. Dark Imp, with Jockey Johnny Deering riding, tried to get to the leader but failed. Mary Schulz quit and Mattie J's mild late bid was good enough to take third money from a faltering True Call.

Foul Claims Denied

Two races were marked by claims of fouls but both were tossed out by the stewards. In the day's steeplechase, John Bosley III, owner and rider of Flemar, made an objection against Apprentice W. Leonard who rode Bell Man, the 10-year-old winner. Bell Man and Flemar came together approaching the final jump and the former then pulled away to win by two and a half lengths. Bosley said Bell Man bothered his mount. After all was said and done, the son of J. Fred paid a $15.90 mutuel. Buck Langhorne, the favorite, dropped back and pulled up lame. Horses and riders escaped in the two falls recorded.

In the fourth race, Magic Stream, owned by Gustave Ring, of Washington, was the winner by a neck in front of a nose margin which Pomiva held over Weatherite. Apprentice Coule, who rode Pomiva, claimed his mount was crowded by the winner. The judges did not see it that way. However, almost every one saw Pomiva swing in front of Flaming High, forcing Jockey Eddie DeCamillis to pull up. Nothing was said about that. Magic Stream paid $7.80.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ANONYMOUS, $13.40, $6.40, $5.70; SMART, $5.90, $4.70; CLIFTON'S DAWN (entry), $4.60.

ANONYMOUS, forwardly placed from the start, came through on the rail entering the stretch and drew out in the closing drive. SMART was slow to begin, worked his way to contention between horses and closed with a bold rush as if the best. CLIFTON'S DAWN was a keen factor throughout and held on willingly. TOVARICH went up to race with NEWFOUNDLAND and weakened.

SECOND RACE—About 2 miles. Purse, $1000; claiming. Steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start bad. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:00. Off at 2:02. Winner, J. F. Adams, jr.'s br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BELL MAN, $15.90, $5.70, $2.90; FLEMAR, $4.30, $2.30; BUCK LANGHORNE, $2.30.

BELL MAN was steadied for a mile in the first flight, took command when asked, drew out, withstood the challenge of FLEMAR and pulled away on the flat run. Bosley's foul claim against the winner was not slowed. FLEMAR was not hurried in the early stages, moved up approaching the final fence to get abreast of the leader and weakened gradually thereafter. BUCK LANGHORNE displaced ROUND BEND to take command, dropped out of it and pulled up very lame. GARRYAMONA lacked speed and was a distant trailer.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 2:36. Off at 2:36½. Winner, Mrs. H. Hecht's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FIREBROOM, $17.80, $6.90, $5.70; BEST REWARD, $4.40, $4.00; GLASTAUDER, $11.40.

FIREBROOM raced STORMCOCK into submission to take command, drew out, withstood the bid of BEST REWARD in the stretch and drew out under a drive. BEST REWARD was a keen forward factor from the start, responded when placed to a drive, but was tiring at the close. GLASTAUDER was sluggish for the half, came to the inside to improve his position and closed boldly. RISE ABOVE IT, last away, came wide to make a move and weakened after moving up menacingly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:35. Off at 4:35½. Winner, J. D. Mamrosch's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—IRON BAR, $28.90, $10.80, $6.50; OCTOBER ALE, $18.70, $14.30; CHALLANTE, $17.80.

IRON BAR was allowed to race on her own courage for the half, improved her position boldly between horses and was up in the final stride under strong handling. OCTOBER ALE came out for racing room and closed with a rush on the outside. CHALLANTE took command early and barely failed to stay. WHITE FRONT found in the final test after improving his position between horses.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:05. Off at 5:05½. Winner, J. R. Straus' b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BETTER HALF, $8.00, $3.80, $3.80; GINOBI, $3.50, $3.00; YANKEE LAD, $5.00.

BETTER HALF, allowed to race on her own courage for the half, responded willingly when placed to a drive, came between horses and wore down GINOBI in the closing yards. GINOBI was taken under steadying restraint when WAR EMBLEM went to the front, took command entering the stretch and fought it out with good energy. YANKEE LAD was well placed throughout and held on willingly. SOME GROUCHER closed gamely.

Daily Double, ANONYMOUS and WAR POINT, Paid $107.80

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs (chute). Purse, $1200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:04½. Off at 3:06. Winner, G. Ring's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAGIC STREAM, $7.80, $4.50, $3.30; POMIVA, $4.10, $3.30; WEATHERITE, $8.00.

MAGIC STREAM, slow to find his stride, came to the outside to improve his position and closed with good energy to be up in the final strides. Coule's foul claim against the winner was not allowed. POMIVA was in the first flight from the start, came over in front of FLAMING HIGH in the stretch and finished in close quarters between horses. Coule was unable to do her justice. WEATHERITE disposed of HIGH HEDGE to take command, drew out and weakened right at the close. BECOMLY was pinched back approaching the stretch. FLAMING HIGH was making a bold move when impeded.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs (chute). Purse, $1500; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 3:37. Off at 3:37. Winner, C. Stern's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—COERCION (entry), $3.40, $2.20, $2.10; DARK IMP, $3.30, $2.30; MATTIE J., $2.30.

COERCION, first away, opened a good lead and was not threatened while winning easily. DARK IMP was a keen forward factor from the beginning and held on gamely, but was no match for the winner. MATTIE J. was off slowly, went to contention boldly and weakened right at the close. TRUECALL raced on the inside in the dull going and weakened after showing early speed.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1200; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:05. Off at 4:06. Winner, Mrs. H. Hecht's b. g. (2), by Pot Au Feu—Sweep Sora. Trained by H. Baker. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:47⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FIREBROOM, $17.80, $6.90, $5.70; BEST REWARD, $4.40, $4.00; GLASTAUDER, $11.40.

FIREBROOM raced STORMCOCK into submission to take command, drew out, withstood the bid of BEST REWARD in the stretch and drew out under a drive. BEST REWARD was a keen forward factor from the start, responded when placed to a drive, but was tiring at the close. GLASTAUDER was sluggish for the half, came to the inside to improve his position and closed boldly. RISE ABOVE IT, last away, came wide to make a move and weakened after moving up menacingly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:35. Off at 4:35½. Winner, J. D. Mamrosch's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—IRON BAR, $28.90, $10.80, $6.50; OCTOBER ALE, $18.70, $14.30; CHALLANTE, $17.80.

IRON BAR was allowed to race on her own courage for the half, improved her position boldly between horses and was up in the final stride under strong handling. OCTOBER ALE came out for racing room and closed with a rush on the outside. CHALLANTE took command early and barely failed to stay. WHITE FRONT found in the final test after improving his position between horses.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BETTER HALF, $8.00, $3.80, $3.80; GINOBI, $3.50, $3.00; YANKEE LAD, $5.00.

BETTER HALF, allowed to race on her own courage for the half, responded willingly when placed to a drive, came between horses and wore down GINOBI in the closing yards. GINOBI was taken under steadying restraint when WAR EMBLEM went to the front, took command entering the stretch and fought it out with good energy. YANKEE LAD was well placed throughout and held on willingly. SOME GROUCHER closed gamely.

U. S. Steel Nets $3.21 a Share In 3d Period

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 28.—The United States Steel Corporation today reported for the September quarter net income of $34,313,345, equal to $3.21 a share on the common stock, compared with $33,103,067, equal to $3.07 a share in the September quarter of 1940, and $24,814,751, or $2.12 a share in the June quarter of this year.

Directors declared a dividend of $1 a common share, the same amount as paid in three preceding periods this year.

The corporation set aside a reserve of $4,500,000 out of earnings in the third quarter for contingencies, making a total of $13,500,000 for the nine months.

For the first nine months of 1941 net profit was $95,668,091, equal to $8.82 a common share, compared with $69,418,070, or $5.80 a common share in the comparable period in 1940.

The corporation's tax bill in the third quarter totaled $60,321,120, of which $22,635,620 was for State and local and social security, and $37,685,500 was for Federal income and excess profits taxes. In the nine months taxes were $135,882,791, of which $53,597,291 was for State and local and social security taxes, and $82,285,500 for Federal income and excess profits taxes.

Today's dividend is payable December 20 to stock of record November 19.

The corporation's employment and pay roll established a record in the September quarter although the figures excluded Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., at Kearny, N. J., taken over by the Navy October 24.

Average number of employes during the three months was 313,250, compared with 261,197 in the like 1940 period.

Pay roll in the September quarter was $156,470,058, compared with $115,749,282 in the September quarter of 1940.

Swift Economic Changes Cited At D. C. Loan League Meeting

Managerial Ability Challenged, Says FHLB Official

By Thomas M. Cahill.

A two-fold challenge was hurled last night at the savings and loan industry by William F. Penniman, deputy governor, Federal Home Loan bank board, addressing the annual meeting of District of Columbia Building and Loan League at Raleigh Hotel.

It was a challenge to meet present conditions as a result of the emergency and one to meet "the emergency after the emergency."

Emphasizing the mighty defense program has produced startling changes, he explained that from a struggle with stagnation of production the Nation is almost immediately overwhelmed with a violent expansion, and after a decade of effort to stimulate production by artificial aids to the consumer, it must now curb consumer spending, before it runs away from its production capacity and carries it into inflation.

"We have shifted swiftly from a buyer's to a seller's market," he reminded, "from national worries about surpluses to worries about shortages, price control, rent control, priorities, the gigantic tax program, diversion of savings into defense bonds and stamps.

"These are but the beginning," he warned the assembly. "These and others to follow present to you the first of the two-fold challenges. The question, therefore, is—will we meet the challenge The answer is that we can and we will. For over 100 years the savings and loan industry has faced many crises, and out of the changes that were developed it has not only survived, but prospered."

He cautioned his hearers against being lulled into an attitude of somnolence, however, saying the situation presented a searching challenge to their managerial ability.

Wilfred H. Blanz, secretary, American Building Association, was elected president of the league. Clarence E. Kefauver was named vice president and succeeded on the executive committee by Elmer J. Carlson. William N. Payne, jr., retiring president, becomes a member of the board of directors. List of officers and directors follows: Mr. Blanz, president; Mr. Kefauver, executive vice president, Columbia Federal Savings & Loan Association, vice president; Millard T. Dixon, treasurer, National Permanent Building Association, treasurer; F. Willson Camp, secretary, District Building & Loan Association, secretary; directors: George M. Emmerich, president, Northern Liberty Building Association; Martin E. Cook, secretary, Enterprise Building Association; R. W. Santelmann, secretary, Metropolis Building Association; Edward K. Jones, secretary, Interstate Building Association; Edward A. McAleer, secretary, Equitable Cooperative Building Association; Elmer J. Carlson, secretary, Prudential Building Association, and former presidents of the league.

Following election, reports of officers were read and approved. F. Willson Camp, secretary, revealed that building and loan associations in the District have exceeded 170 million dollars in combined assets. A reception was tendered the new president prior to the banquet. The distinguished guest list included James Twohy, governor, Federal Home Loan Bank Board; Frank Hancock, jr., and F. W. Gatlett, members, Federal Home Loan Bank Board; Oscar Kreutz, manager, Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation; Maj. Francis E. Clarke, Trasury Department; Stanley Holland, president District of Columbia Bankers Association; O. K. LaRoque, president, Federal Home Loan Bank of Winston-Salem, N. C. Fred A. Smith, president, Washington Board of Trade; Col. Harold Lee, counsel; Verne C. Bonesteel, chief examiner, Federal Home Loan Bank; Charles C. Koones, president, Washington Real Estate Board.

WILFRED H. BLANZ, secretary of the American Building Association, was elected president of the District of Columbia Building & Loan League at the annual meeting yesterday

Fabricated Steel Shipments Increase

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—The steel industry shipped 199,200 tons of fabricated steel products during September, the second highest shipping month this year, the American Institute of Steel Construction reported today. In the best month, June, shipments totaled 200,509 tons.

The September total compared with 142,834 tons in September, 1940, and brought the 1941 shipments to 1,654,904 tons compared with 1,059,824 in the like 1940 period.

Monster Tank Output Set at 100 a Month

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 28.—The American Machinist said today the defense program now calls for the manufacture of 60-ton monster tanks, and that plants were expected to be tooled up for a production rate of 100 a month.

Tank builders are geared to make 600 medium tanks a month, the magazine said, but will expand that rate to 2000 a month by the middle of 1942.

That program and the demands of Russia, England, China and the Netherlands East Indies have resulted in assurances to machine tool builders of around two billion dollars worth of defense orders in the next two years, the journal said.

Russia is seeking 40 million dollars worth of machine tools to rebuild industries east of the Ural Mountains, England wants 100 million dollars worth, and China and the East Indies also want to build up war industries, the magazine said.

In aircraft production, lack of propellers is delaying delivery, the magazine said, with Bell Aircraft Corporation having airacobras which cannot be delivered because of the propeller shortage.

At the same time, the magazine said, the engine shortage has been eliminated. It said enough would be produced to keep ahead of plane production, and that Britain, China, the Netherlands, East Indies and Russia would get plane engines from this country.

B. I. L. Debentures Placed on Market

Public offering was made yesterday of 10 million dollars of Beneficial Industrial Loan Corporation 15-year 2¾ per cent debentures by an underwriting group headed by Eastman, Dillon & Co. The debentures are priced at 100 and accrued interest.

Associated in the underwriting are: Smith, Barney & Co.; Kidder, Peabody & Co.; E. H. Rollins & Sons, Inc.; Alex. Brown & Sons; Hayden, Stone & Co.; Hemphill, Noyes & Co.; Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane; Hornblower & Weeks and others.

New York Cotton

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Cotton futures prices advanced as much as 10 a bale today but at the high level the market encountered realizing and liquidation and final gains were cut to 15 to 45 cents. A dip in Chicago wheat quickened the reaction.

Turnover in grey goods remained small and speculative interest in raw cotton futures was limited to some extent by the troubled foreign situation.

Wholesalers' Volume Soars 44% in Month

The Census Bureau reported yesterday that sales of representative wholesalers were 44 per cent higher this September than in the similar month last year.

The bureau said this gain was the largest between any two similar months in the six years since such statistics have been gathered.

The gain apparently was due to a large extent to advance buying by the public before new Federal excise taxes went into effect on October 1. For instance, one of the largest gains was reported by the liquor departments of drug wholesalers. These wholesale liquor sales were 104 per cent higher this September.

Other gains were electrical goods, 88 per cent; machinery, equipment and supplies, 85 per cent; industrial supplies 74 per cent; industrial chemicals 64 per cent; plumbing and heating supplies 54 per cent.

The wholesalers also reported that the cost value of their inventories declined 5 per cent during September, but were still 17 per cent larger than a year ago.

Fiduciaries Meet Tonight

The first dinner meeting of the Fiduciaries Section, District of Columbia Bankers Association, will be held in the Mayflower, at 7 o'clock p. m. today. The meeting will be presided over by J. Wesley Clampitt, jr., who is chairman of the section. Mr. Clampitt is an assistant trust officer of the Union Trust Co.

Guest speaker will be Frederick L. Pearce, of the District of Columbia bar, who will speak on the Revenue Act of 1941, particularly as it relates to estates and trusts.

The other officers of the section are: Aubrey O. Dooley, vice chairman; Earl G. Jonscher, secretary.

J. J. Leahy Wins Trip

John J. Leahy, sales supervisor of the Washington Gas Light Co., won a trip to Havana awarded by Servel, Inc. The local gas firm led all other utilities in Division Four in total gas refrigeration installations in the year ended October 1. A trophy was awarded to the Washington company and individual salesmen were given numerous prizes.

2 to Attend Parley

Willard G. Barker, president, and F. G. Childers, vice president, of the Morris Plan Bank, will leave tomorrow for the Cloister, Sea Island, Ga., to attend the convention of the Morris Plan Bankers Association. National leaders in banking, finance and political economy will also attend to address and advise with the members of the association.

Lockheed Output Sets New Record

Burbank, Calif., Oct. 28 (AP).—Vice President Charles A. Barker, jr., said today that third-quarter output of Lockheed Aircraft Corporation approximated 41 million dollars, a new all-time peak level. This boosted deliveries for the nine months ended September 30, 1941, to 99 million dollars.

Lockheed's subsidiary, Vega Airplane Co., reported net sales for the first nine months of $4,500,000. Total production and delivery of defense materials for both companies exceeded 103 million dollars.

Unfilled orders of the two companies now aggregate $533,828,000, of which Lockheed has $279,415,000 and Vega, $254,413,000.

Unseasonal Drop Noted in Retail Sales

A sharp slump in sales of automobiles and household furnishings was blamed by the Commerce Department yesterday for an unseasonal decline in retail business from August to September.

The department estimated that retail sales totaled $4,472,000,000 in September, a decline of 2.7 per cent from the August total of $4,595,000,000. The September figure, however, was well ahead of the $3,673,000,000 for September last year.

The department said some retail lines, particularly jewelry and liquor, advanced in September because of advance buying by the public before new Federal taxes became effective October 1, but these increases were not enough to offset the slump in more expensive items such as automobiles.

In the first nine months of this year, the department added, retail sales averaged 19 per cent more than in the similar period last year. National income in this period was 17 per cent more than last year.

Dairy Equipment Makers Get Priority Ratings

The Office of Production Management granted defense preference ratings yesterday to dairy equipment manufacturers in a move to provide necessary equipment for an increase of eight million pounds in next year's milk production.

The Agriculture Department proposes production of 125 billion pounds of milk in 1942.

Douglas C. Mackeachie, director of purchases, said the ratings would go to manufacturers of milk cans and tinned and tinplate dairy equipment. The plan, effective immediately, will expire next March 15. He said that the high ratings could not be used to build up an inventory.

Only enough steel will be allocated to produce the 955,000 milk cans necessary to handle the increased production plus 385,000 for normal replacement. In the case of tinplate equipment, only enough steel will be allocated to allow an increase of 6.8 per cent in dairy pails, milk strainer pails, milk kettles, milk strainers and setter or cream cans. Officials said this allowance would care for a 6.8 per cent increase in milk production.

Each manufacturer will be required to show evidence of his intention to cooperate in the program and get the cans to milk producers before the milk season opens next spring.

SEC Head Opposes Securities Law Revision

Canson Purcell, Securities Commissioner, told the House Interstate Commerce Committee yesterday that amendments to the securities laws proposed by the industry might jeopardize investor protection.

Opening hearings on 80-odd proposals by both industry and the SEC, Purcell said that "the impetus for amending the act comes from the industry—and not from the commission."

Purcell said that the SEC "must strenuously oppose" some of the amendments and asserted that the long-standing disagreement over revising the law arose from the fact that the industry "wants to free itself from anything that appears to it to be burdensome," while the SEC's duty "is to administer a law for the protection of investors."

Bankers Protest Federal Farm Credit Activity

Representatives of the American Bankers Association expressed opposition yesterday to pending legislation to revamp the government's farm credit operations on the ground that it would make permanent a system which should be discontinued.

Wood Netherland, St. Louis banker, told the House Agriculture Committee that the association believed that if inflation of land values was to be avoided, the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation's authority to make loans should be permitted to expire next July 1.

"The bill provides at innumerable points," Netherland said, "that certain actions in the field are subject to the approval of the Farm Credit Administration here in Washington, to most of which I cannot subscribe.

"Aside from the fact that I am instinctively adverse to concentration of power, the practical operating problem of having limited authority in the banks and having to refer matters of local import to Washington is not conducive to good and efficient management.

A. L. M. Wiggins, chairman of the association's committee on Federal legislation, said that the gradual improvement in the farmers' status in the last few years, plus the prospect of further improvement, "raises the question whether this emergency machinery of government in the field of farm mortgage credit is further needed, and whether steps should not be taken now looking toward its gradual orderly liquidation."

He said the legislation proposes not to end the mortgage corporation's lending "but to make it part of the permanent farm credit machinery of the country."

Besides making the Federal Land Bank system permanent, the legislation would stabilize the interest rate on Federal Land Bank and Federal mortgage loans, would substitute a fee system for the present 5 per cent stock subscription, would abolish deficiency judgments and would create a Federal Land Bank advisory committee.

Senate Unit Favors Telegraph Firms' Merger

The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee unanimously recommended yesterday that Congress permit a merger of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies.

The committee approved, with minor changes, a report on the proposed merger previously adopted by a subcommittee after nearly two years of legislative hearings.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, a member of the committee, said that the next step would involve introduction of actual legislation carrying out the proposed recommendations involving nearly 60,000 workers and the two largest domestic telegraph companies.

The Senate group recommended that the Federal Communications Act be amended to permit the merger now blocked by Federal antitrust laws. It suggested that "international" and "domestic" telegraph facilities be separated and that the FCC be required to enforce this separation.

It also suggested that all pension rights and payments of employes of the two companies be protected and that all public communications services and rights be respected.

The report also asked that financial structures of the resulting companies be sumplified and 80 per cent owned by American nationals.

Eastern 'Gas' Supply Off Slightly in Week

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Supplies of gasoline on the Eastern Seaboard and in the Appalachian area dipped slightly in the week ended October 25, the American Petroleum Institute reported today.

On the East Coast stocks of finished and unfinished gasoline totaled 19,547,000 barrels against 19,559,000 in the preceding week and in the Appalachian area the total was 3,149,000 compared with 3,216,000 a week earlier. Restrictions against sale and the rationing system imposed by the Government several months ago in both areas were lifted in the past week.

N. & W. Votes Dividend

Philadelphia, Oct. 28 (AP).—The board of directors of the Norfolk & Western Railway Co. today declared a quarterly dividend of $2.50 a share on the common stock, payable December 19 to stockholders of record November 29.

List Buoyant On Pleasing Profit Reports

By Bernard S. O'Hara

Associated Press Financial Writer

New York, Oct. 28.—An assortment of cheering earnings statements and pleasing dividend declarations imparted quiet strength to individual stocks in today's market, although many issues were neglected.

The list exhibited hesitancy at the start. Light bidding then began to appear and, at the best, selective gains ranged from fractions to a point or so. Plus and minus signs were pretty well divided at the close.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks emerged with an advance of .1 of a point at 41.1 against a decline yesterday of .3. Dealings were moderately lively at intervals but slowed after midday. Transfers totaled 559,730 shares, compared with 478,800 the day before.

Tobacco Still Weak

Selling dried up in the weak tobaccos of Monday but the majority ended under water, American Tobacco "B" and Reynolds "B" posting new lows for the year. Taxes and the antitrust conviction of the "Big Three" companies by a Federal jury in Kentucky clouded this group.

U. S. Steel came out with a gain of ½ and, after the close, directors announced third quarter profits of $3.21 a share in the face of large provisions for taxes. Net in the June quarter was $2.12 and $3.07 in the September quarter last year. Results were about in line with Wall Street expectations.

Aside from optimistic business items, securities markets still reflected worries over mounting taxes and labor rifts affecting the defense program. There was little excitement over the President's "shooting" broadcast last night. War bulletins were uninspiring.

Trend of Leaders

Among stocks Atlantic Refining made a new 1941 top. Westinghouse, down at a New Year's low in the morning, came back for a net gain of ⅛. On the rising side were Atlantic Coast Line, N. Y., Central, Great Northern, Santa Fe, Youngstown Sheet, Goodrich, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Kennecott, Eastman Kodak, Texas Corp., Pepsi-Cola, Standard Oil of Ind. and Savage Arms.

Western Union and Postal Telegraph preferred were up ¾ and 1, respectively, as the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee approved merger of these telegraph systems.

General Motors and Chrysler were unchanged, and losers included Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, J. I. Case, International Harvester, Standard Oil (N. J.), Liggett & Myers common and "B" N Allied Chemical, Union Carbide and American Telephone.

Gochenour Top In Brookland Pin Rolling

Karl Gochenour, Mount Vernon No. 1, had 153-383 to lead the Methodist Church League at Brookland last night and, with T. L. Smith's 152-389, helped his team set records for the season with a 651 game and 1808 set, the latter an all-time high. The quintet also won three games from Emery No. 2. Douglas No. 1, Woodside and Mount Vernon No. 2 won respective sweeps over Douglas No. 2, Berry No. 1 and Hyattsville.

Elwood Dean and Russell Spillman, both of the American Drug Store team in the Clarendon Major League, led the loop with a 144 game and 401 set, respectively, and made it possible for their quintet to take team highs with a 641 game and 1809 set. The team also won all three from the erstwhile leaders, Gosnell Builders, to take over the league leadership.

Pitts' record 173 game for his Nine Seventy-five Optical aided his team in posting a 615 game and 1,765 set that whitewashed Frank Small, jr. Avenue Grill, with Ed Walker's 138-400, scored a sweep over Navy Yard while "Dutch" Imirie's 370 set for Fort Davis enabled his quintet to win three in a row from Washington Gas Light despite Dove's 154-394. Singleton also found the Fort Davis alleys to his liking for his 129-376 helped Tom Boorde win three from opponents and top set of 1798 as well. H & J Construction rolled a record game of 699 but dropped the odd one to Maryland Market with Ed Dorish's 162 the main reason. Ernie Burkhalter had 141-387 to spark the Maryland win.

TAKOMA

A 135 single by Stanton of the Bad Breaks team and Malman's 367 for the Q. M. C. boys topped the Walter Reed League at Takoma Recreation. The Army Medical Center team, however, ran off with highs when they counted 532 for game and had a 1515 total to win high set.

CONVENTION HALL

A 151 by Arthur Crown of the Harry E. Nau team in the Merchants League at Convention Hall helped his boys take three in a row from Multigraph Sales to remain in first place. Ed Harney's 372 high set was what his Livingston Uniform team required to win highs with a 592 game and 1684 set which included a whitewash of Atlas Liquor.

CLARENDON

Miss Hutcher's 129 single for Fox Barbers and Ruth Clark's 342 set for Monroe Pharmacy led the Clarendon Ladies League with the Monroe girls winning all three from C & P Plant. Rector's Flowers, besides taking all three tilts from Emma Lee Beauty Salon, posted high team game of 526 as Arlington Bootery totaled high team set of 1504 and whitewashed Colonel Ice Cream as well.

ICE PALACE

Pop Geisler of Remington-Rand with 146 and Joe Franke of IBM Factory with 363 led the Office Appliance League at the Ice Palace with the former aiding in a two-game win over IBM Factory. A. B. Dick had 581 for high team game while IBM Factory rolled top set of 1613. The A. B. Dick boys dropped two to IBM Service.

Sam Rudo, Vogel's Sport Store, had 150 to lead for high game in the Ice Palace Industrial League, although his team dropped the odd tilt to Brookland. Norris Justice's 359 for Irving's Sport Store won two games from Apollo Billiards, while the Hot Shoppes took three from Miller Barber Shop with team highs of 577 and 1653 as well. Better Tires scored a sweep over Airport Transportation.

BROOKLAND

The Diamond Cab boys at Brookland Recreation were led by Bill Cliff's season record game and set of 163-415 that sparked his quint to three wins over the Greyhounds and aided in posting team highs of 600 and 1744 as well. The set count was also a season record. Sam Hirsch, Uptown, had 160 and "Shadow" Nichols, Ray Steelers, had 150 for near highs.

Saint Juniors Bow to Landon

Landon's 115-pound football team defeated St. Albans team of that weight, 13-7, yesterday at St. Albans. The winners' touchdowns were the result of Dexter Kearny's fine passing. He threw to Stanley Harris, jr., son of the Nats' manager, for the first, and set up the second with a 40-yard pass to Peter Clapper, son of the newspaper columnist, Raymond Clapper. This play moved the ball to the three, where Kearny plunged over.

St. Albans' touchdown was credited to F. B. Harwood.

The 'Ripper' Asks For Manager Post

Portland, Oreg., Oct. 28 (AP).—E. J. Schefter, president of the Portland Coast League baseball club, confided today that James (Ripper) Collins had applied for the club managership.

Collins, one-time major league star, now belongs to the Pittsburgh National League club, but informed Schefter he could obtain his release.

News of Bowling in D. C., Md. and Va.:

PINFALL —By John Chaney

Although it may be a little premature to predict what's going to happen in the way of bowling averages this season, we are nevertheless going to go out on the limb with a forecast that the high average men in several leagues may roll 180 or better and that the man who leads the ranking list will have to carry the highest average in history.

In league bowling there are several stars who have outstanding records to date. Hokie Smith leads the District League with a powerful 193 plus, and his National Capital League record is above 191. Lou Jenkins is sporting tremendous averages in four leagues, and he is well on his way to a new national mark for 400 sets rolled in one season.

Not only in league bowling are the records higher than ever. The picture is even more impressive in tournament competition. Here Jenkins is well on top of the field, as he carries a total of 134 for 42 games. His cause was materially aided by his win in the Campbell Classic last Sunday when he shot 2042 for the 15-game route.

Billy Stalcup, the Rosslyn sparkplug, is well over 130 in the District League and has high averages in two other leagues in Rosslyn. While he has not shot in all of the tournaments held to date, he has done very well in his few appearances, the most notable being his third place in the Campbell when he totalled 1991. Others who may give the record book some revisions are Ed Blakeney, always a tough man in any event, Monk Walker, who is rapidly rising toward the top, Perce Wolfe, of Hyattsville and El Gelb, who as Lou Jenkins doubles partner in recent match games, has done some of the best bowling of his career.

The next tourney of consequence in Washington will be the Ice Palace Open, Sunday, November 16 at the Connecticut Avenue plant, and the top rankers will have another opportunity to show their wares.

In our piece of last week in which we told of the new proposed Junior District League we said that the last bowler representing this section who won the National Tournament, Junior Division, was Bob Temple of Hyattsville. We have been informed by one who apparently knows his record book, that Paul Hersey of Hyattsville won the event in 1937 and on further check we find this to be correct. Sorry!

We have just received what is probably one of the best bulletins ever put out by a bowling league secretary. It is sent in by Rick Keefer, editor of the Headpin, a journal on the standings, averages and happenings in the United States Chamber of Commerce League. Mr. Keefer has done a wonderful job with his publication, a 5-page copy that he publishes weekly. We suggest that secretaries of leagues who desire to better serve in that capacity correspond with Rick Keefer at the United States Chamber of Commerce and ask for a copy of his paper.

This may be getting a little off our beaten path on the duckpin game, but we have received a call from a Mr. Grover J. Holman who is much excited over tenpin bowling. Mr. Holman tells us that he has organized and is running a fine tenpin league at the Anacostia Spillway Alleys and that many of his members could hold their own in the tenpin game in any part of the country. He also adds that there are probably around 10,000 people in the city who would follow the game if they had some place to bowl where the alley beds were officially regulated. It seems there is quite a bit of difference between duckpins and the big pins. Well, we learn something every day.

In a bulletin just released by Dick Hobart, secretary of the Men's District League, we find that 41 bowlers are averaging over 120. Quite a record.

Team Wrestling Again Set at Turner's Arena

Another two-man team match will be offered on tomorrow night's wrestling show at Turner's Arena, with the scientific tandem of Maurice LaChappelle and Act Freeman meeting two husky gents, Eddie Newman and Herbie Freeman.

LaChappelle and Freeman have the best record of any two-man combination in local mat history and already have on file a challenge to meet the Duseks, Ernie and Emil, should they whip Newman and Freeman.

Nanjo Singh, the "Cobra Clutch" king, will tangle with Pat Fraley, the Coast champion, and Big Jim Henry, the erstwhile Green Hornet, will oppose Paul Boesch, of Long Beach, N. Y.

The fourth week of the elimination tournament to dig up a local contender for the heavyweight title will find Yvon Robert, the former world champion, scrapping with Fred Grobmier, and Babe Caddock making his 1941 bow in a match against Jim Austeri.

Bruins Ice Ace Back in Line-up

Hershey, Pa., Oct. 28 (AP).—Bill Cowley, the National Hockey League's top scorer, will make his first exhibition start of the training season tomorrow night when the Boston Bruins play their third and final game with the Hershey American League team.

Cowley, the last arrival in the Bruin's camp, idled while his teammates defeated the Bears, 2-1 and 4-2. Three of the Boston goals were scored by Eddie Wiseman, veteran winger, and the others by Bobby Bauer, Milt Schmidt and Frankie Mario, the youngster who filled in for Cowley as center on Boston's second line.

Michigan Drills On Pass Defense

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 28 (AP).—Expecting Illinois to rely on an aerial attack, Michigan Wolverines spent their first practice of the week today on pass defense.

Rudy Smeja, Chicago sophomore, has taken over Joe Rogers' end post. Rogers was injured in last week's Minnesota game and will be out for the rest of the season.

The Men's District League goes into its eighth matches tonight with the strong Lucky Strike and Arlington quintets commanding the majority of attention due to their fight for the league leadership. Lucky Strike, two games in front, will be host to King Pin and Arlington is to visit Arcadia and is doped to win at least two games from Fred Murphy's boys.

Penn and Georgetown, tied for the third position, meet LaFayette and the Ice Palace, respectively; the former match at Penn and the latter at the Ice Palace. Both teams have made splendid showings so far this year and the chances are they will capture the odd games from opponents.

Rosslyn, with Billy Stalcup in fine fettle, will give Del Ray a sharp fight but the Cavaliers, with Lou Jenkins flushed with his recent victory in the Howard Campbell, are scheduled to take the majority of the games. Newman's team has a psychological advantage in that the boys believe they are unbeatable, and that fact alone is likely to help them pile up some fine totals.

Baker's Bethesda team journeys to Convention Hall and the Hallmen seem capable of winning two out of three judging from recent exhibitions. With Singer, Santini and Weinberg in form, the Hallmen will be hard to stop.

Peacock's Bethesdans will invade Spillway but Pannell, Nash and Joe Harrison are liable to spill them in handy fashion. Brookland goes to Hi-Skor and the match is pretty much of a toss-up as both teams are coming along nicely. Ed Blakeney, Hi-Skor captain, was another Howard Campbell winner.

The Clarendon team will entertain Hyattsville with Joe and Lou Freschi and Gene Hargett likely to triumph over Harry Hilliard's quintet. All matches start at 7:30 p. m.

Spartans Drill On Pass Attack

By the Associated Press

East Lansing, Mich., Oct. 28.—Michigan State, which meets Missouri in a home-coming game here Saturday, polished up its pass attack today with Dick Kiesling, Wy Davis and Mike Scheib doing the tossing. The Spartans, ranked a strong passing team at the outset of the season, have scored only one of nine touchdowns in four games through the air.

Missouri Busy

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 28 (AP).—The Missouri Tigers romped through a long, hard drill today in preparation for their game at Michigan State Saturday. The entire session was devoted to perfecting a defense and strengthening the Tiger ground attack.

Kansas Star Ready

Lawrence, Kans., Oct. 28 (AP).—Don Pollom, fleet halfback who hasn't seen much action for several weeks because of a rib injury, has recovered fully and displayed his old form at today's Kansas football workout.

The Jayhawkers groomed their passing attack in a scrimmage with freshmen.

Sooner Frosh Help

Norman, Okla., Oct. 28 (AP).—Working out in chilly winds, Oklahoma's Sooners saw the freshmen run through plays of the Kansas Jayhawks today.

Wildcats Work

Manhattan, Kans., Oct. 28 (AP).—The Kansas State Wildcats ran through a snappy football workout today. Max Timmons, senior blocking back, slipped through opposing lines repeatedly to spill attacking ball carriers for losses.

Illinois Gains Weight in Line

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 28 (AP).—Coach Bob Zuppke added some weight to his Illinois line today with the promotion of Nate Johnson, 218-pound senior, to left tackle. He replaced Elmer Engel, who is resting an injured shoulder.

The freshmen, with Ray Florek impersonating Bob Westfall, of Michigan, made several long gains against the varsity, but were less successful on pass plays, which the varsity smothered consistently.

Minnesota Society Mixes Football, Goblins

Members of the Minnesota State Society of Washington will blend football and Halloween on Saturday afternoon at Hotel 2400, where they will listen to the broadcast of the annual football game between Minnesota and Northwestern Universities.

Halloween decorations will be the motif of the main ballroom, where the afternoon's festivities will be held. Dancing will follow the finish of the game. The party will commence at 2:30 o'clock. All Minnesota and Northwestern football fans are invited.

Services Held For Dr. Just, Negro Savant

Dr. Ernest Everett Just, noted Negro scientist, who died Monday at the home of his sister, Miss Inez Just, 1846 Third Street Northwest, was buried yesterday at noon from McGuire's Chapel, Dr. Leonard Z. Johnson, his former colleague at Howard University, officiating. Interment was at Lincoln Memorial Cemetery.

Born in Charleston, S. C., in 1886, he was graduated from the State College at Orangeburg, and from Kimball Academy, Meriden, N. H. He entered Dartmouth College, graduating in the class of 1907, and was brought to Howard University as an instructor in English by the late Dean Kelly Miller. In this field he distinguished himself in production of Elizabethan drama.

His doctorate was obtained at Chicago University in 1912, in biology. For distinction gained in connection with studies on the origin of life, he was awarded the Spingarn Medal in 1915. For 20 years he spent his summers in research at the Marine Biological Laboratory, Woods Hole, Mass.

Together with several well-known scientists, in 1924, he published an outstanding treatise on systology. Later he was chosen by the leading biologists of Germany as the best fitted among the world's scholars to write a treatise on fertilization. He was also one of the authors of an elaborate work on colloid chemistry.

During this time he served not only in the departments of chemistry and biology at Howard University, but also as professor and head of the department of physiology in the Howard University school of medicine. He was an editor of the international journal, Protoplasma, and of the official organ of the Marine Biological Society, and was a member of the American Society of Zoologists, the American Naturalists and La Societe des Sciences Naturelles et Mathematiques.

He spent recent years on sabbatical leave in Germany until after the outbreak of the war, returning last year to Howard University.

Suspect Held In Attack on Va. Woman

Special Dispatch to The Post

Leesburg, Va., Oct. 28.—A Negro was jailed today on charges of dragging a 28-year-old married white woman from bed and criminally attacking her.

The Negro, Sam Legion, 22, of Berryville, was arrested early today along the Winchester-Leesburg Highway to be held for the grand jury and charged with rape, Commonwealth's Attorney C. F. Harrison reported today.

According to the victim's husband, the thug entered their house about 10:30 p. m. yesterday by raising a window and unlatching the door. He found the woman, her husband, and small child asleep in bed. Brandishing a knife, he is said to have dragged the woman into another room and criminally assaulted her.

Although he did not use his knife, the intruder is said to have threatened to kill the three if any resistance was attempted.

The husband then escaped to give the alarm. The assailant then is said to have dragged the woman into the yard where she escaped from him.

According to Harrison, it has not been decided whether a special grand jury is to be called or whether Legion will be held for the regular December jury. Harrison described Legion as large and husky. He is not married.

WPA Names 2 House Projects In Montgomery

Names for two defense housing projects in Montgomery County were announced yesterday by the Federal Works Agency.

The 100 dwellings under construction at Cabin John Park, Md., will be known as "Cabin John Gardens." They are homes for defense workers at the David Taylor Naval Testing basin at Carderock, Md. A second development near Cabin John, which will house Negro workers at the testing basin, will be named "Seven Locks." The 20 dwellings are located on Seven Locks Road a half-mile from the old Chesapeake & Ohio Canal.

Indian Spring Dance to Benefit Health Council

Montgomery County residents will dance tonight at Indian Spring Golf Club so needy children can be transported to clinics by the Public Health Lay Council, which is sponsoring the benefit affair.

The council maintains a station wagon for clinical work. The dance proceeds is the only money-raising event of the year given for support of the project.

Entertainment will include J. Oliver Riehl, pianist for Elsie Janis in World War days, and Evangeline Balfour, graphologist. Prizes will be awarded for costumes. Mrs. J. Angus Watson, jr., is general chairman.

Arlington Draft Board Calls Six

Arlington County Selective Service Board No. 1 yesterday announced the following six selectees have been summoned to report for induction on November 7:

Donald Charles Stewart, 2515 North Pershing Drive; Joseph Francis O'Brien, 1408 North Third Street, Harrisburg, Pa.; Shirley McDaniel Ball, 5204 North Fairfax Drive; Thomas D. Guinther, 12 Fourth Street Northeast, Washington; Thomas Andrew Moskey, jr., 4740 Lee Highway, and Donald I. Brashears, Unit 21, United States Naval Reservation, Indianhead, Md.

Man Seized For Slaying Mother of 5

Virginia State and Alexandria police last night took into custody Harry L. Edwards, 26, Alexandria father, in the fatal stabbing of Mrs. Ethel Mahoney, 24, Alexandria mother of five, whose three youngest children witnessed the stabbing.

Mrs. Mahoney

Mrs. Mahoney was found lying in bed with a 6-inch butcher knife in her back, late Monday by her sister, Miss Dorothy Javins, 18, and was taken to Alexandria Hospital, where she died at 12:45 a. m. yesterday.

A felonious assault warrant was issued for Edwards Monday, but was changed to a murder warrant after Mrs. Mahoney died. Edwards boarded at Mrs. Mahoney's house, 2 Slaters Lane, Alexandria.

According to the story told police by Miss Javins, Edwards and Mrs. Mahoney had a quarrel, and Edwards followed Mrs. Mahoney into the bedroom with a butcher knife. The sister said Mrs. Mahoney's 2, 4 and 5-year-old children were playing in the room at the time.

A short time later, Edwards left the bedroom, smiling, the sister told police, and Mrs. Mahoney began to scream. Miss Javins ran outside to get her mother, Mrs. Annie Javins, and the two ran into the bedroom where they found Mrs. Mahoney dying.

Mrs. Mahoney's husband, William, 32, has been confined to Western States Hospital at Staunton, Va., for two years, police said. She was employed in the Fort Belvoir laundry. Her five children, three boys and two girls, range in age from 2 to 8 years.

Shot to Save Self, Virginia Divorcee Says

Special Dispatch to The Post

Berryville, Va., Oct. 28.—Marie Pierce, 26-year-old divorcee and member of a socially prominent Boston family, contended through counsel at the opening of her trial today that she shot in self defense in fatally wounding Louis Townsend Moreland, a farmer-neighbor, at her home last March.

Her attorney, State Senator Aubrey Weaver, said in his opening statement that on the night of last March 18 Moreland came to her home and that she asked him three times to leave.

Moreland, the attorney said, "reviled her, threw a shotgun at her, pulled her hair and chocked her" before she put her hand in her overall jacket pocket and pulled the trigger of a revolver."

The 53-year-old farmer, who lived on an adjoining place with his wife and children, was taken to the Winchester Hospital, and despite several transfusions given by Miss Pierce, died there on May 6. Dr. P. W. Boyd, hospital surgeon, testified at the opening of the trial in Clarke County circuit court that Moreland had been drinking on the night he was admitted to the hospital and that Moreland said the shooting was accidental.

Commonwealth's Attorney Edward McC. Williams told the jury the State would unfold evidence "to prove there existed a deep infatuation" between Moreland and Miss Pierce "which was encouraged by the defendant," and that for two years Moreland had frequently visited her home and had free run of the house.

Operated Large Farm

Miss Pierce, who was divorced several years ago from Ted Jones, a Clarke County horse trainer, has herself operated a large northern Virginia farm since then.

Attired in a navy blue suit, she came to court today with her father, Walworth Pierce, Boston importer, and pleaded innocent to the charge of killing Moreland.

Court was adjourned late this evening after eight witnesses had testified with the court reserving until tomorrow morning a decision over admission of a purported deathbed statement which Commonwealth's Attorney Williams sought to introduce. The matter was argued for 1½ hours.

At Liberty on Band

Indicted last May 6 by a Clarke grand jury, Miss Pierce has been at liberty since then on bond provided by Mrs. William B. Watkins, socialite.

A large number of women were in the courtroom crowd which watched selection of a trial jury this morning.

Dr. Frank Tappan, of Berryville, who assisted Dr. James A. Miller, of Winchester, with the autopsy, said Moreland's death was due primarily to an abdominal wound. He was brought to the hospital by Miss Pierce.

Arthur, Robert and Kenneth Lee, brothers, who lived near the defendant, testified that they frequently had seen Moreland go to and come from the Pierce home and that the defendant had on one occasion come to use their telephone to contact the sheriff "because of trouble with Moreland."

Two other witnesses, George Owen and A. O. Maloney, employes of Moreland and the Lees, told of seeing the divorcee and Moreland together on various occasions. D. J. Parson, an FBI agent, said the fatal bullet came from Miss Pierce's revolver.

Halloween Party Set Tonight in Arlington

The Woman's Club of Arlington will celebrate the tenth anniversary of its founding with a Halloween party tonight at 8 in the card room at Arlington Village.

Guests are requested to come in costumes and masks, but costume is not required.

Colored moving pictures of wildlife will be shown at 9 o'clock.

D. C. Clerics Pay Tribute To Dr. Miller

Washington's leading Protestant clergymen yesterday tendered a testimonial luncheon to Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller, who is retiring as pastor of National City Christian Church. Thomas Circle, to become editor of the Christian Evangelist, official organ of the Disciples of Christ denomination.

Leading the tributes at the function at the Federation of Churches' Building, 1751 N Street Northwest, were Dr. Howard Stone Anderson, pastor of First Congregational Church and president of the Washington Ministerial Union, and Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of Foundry Methodist Church.

Both cited Dr. Miller's accomplishments in reducing the church building debt on the Thomas Circle edifice from $570,000 to $300,000, increasing the membership of the congregation, and promoting interdenominational work through the Federation of Churches.

Dr. William S. Abernathy, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, was in charge of arrangements for the luncheon. Dr. Miller's congregation will tender him a testimonial service on Sunday at 4 p. m.

Contract Bridge

For those who found the defense problems yesterday as simple as a game of "slapjack," we offer today's hand, which is just a little bit difficult even with all four hands exposed. To be sure, you can "guess" the club finesse correctly and plan to give up one club and one heart, but what about that last losing spade—where are you going to put it?

Today's Hand

EAST DEALER

NORTH: ♠ K Q 10 ♡ 7 5 2 ◇ J 10 8 ♣ K J 6 5
WEST: ♠ 8 4 ♡ K 10 8 ◇ 7 4 2 ♣ A 9 8 7 3
EAST: ♠ J 9 3 2 ♡ A Q J 9 4 3 ◇ 6 ♣ Q 3
SOUTH: ♠ A 7 6 5 ♡ 6 ◇ A K Q 9 5 3 ♣ 10 4

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ◇	Pass	1 NT
2 ♡	2 ♠	3 ♡	4 ◇
4 ♡	5 ◇	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: K ♡.

The Solution

Declarer make five-odd by reversing the dummy, using his own trumps for ruffing and those of dummy to draw the opponents' trumps. South trumps the second heart lead and can see that things will be all right if the adverse spades split evenly; but he has an alternate plan. In any case, a club trick has to be taken.

So, to the third trick, South leads a club, and when West plays low, the king is played from dummy. This is not a guess, for if East has the ace of clubs in addition to a long heart suit headed by the ace, queen, jack, he will make an original bid instead of passing.

The king and clubs holds the trick, and a club return from the board is won by East's queen. East leads the ace of hearts, which South trumps with the nine, and the ace of trumps is led. When both adversaries follow suit, the reverse dummy idea seems much safer than trying to drop the spades.

A spade is led to dummy's king and a club ruffed in the closed hand with the king. Another spade is played to North's queen and another club trumped with South's queen. A low diamond, which is kept, allows dummy to play the jack, then the ten of trumps, on which declarer's losing low spade is discarded, and South's ace of spades takes the last trick. By taking four ruffs in his hand and drawing West's last trump with dummy's last trump, declarer catches up the trick he is short, losing only the heart king and club queen for five odd.

Frank K. Perkins, of Boston, bid and played the hand just this way at a New England championship.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER.

Grin and Bear It — By Lichty

"He said the sweetest words that any woman can hear! He said, 'My dear, you're a very nervous woman'!"

with Glynn

Effective immediately you'll be hearing more of John Charles Daly on the air.

The elegant-voiced John Charles, as probably most of you know, has been hanging around WJSV, Columbia network's station for the Nation's Capital, these many years. He's been the network's "presidential announcer," meaning that it was his voice that you've heard immediately preceding the President's whenever Mr. Roosevelt has made an address these last few years. In addition John Charles has served as the commentator on any number of special events shows, they being the radio programs which bring you the reports of exciting events in the daily news. You've heard him also as the narrator on such current CBS programs as "The Spirit of '41," which each Sunday brings you on-the-scene broadcasts from training camps, and on "Report to the Nation," which each week brings you a dramatic description of what's going on in the Federal Government.

In view of such versatility and popularity, it was inevitable that John Charles should be summoned to New York, broadcasting headquarters for the Nation, to be one of the nework mainstays.

And that's what happened. You'll be hearing him from there every night from now on serving as the guiding voice on "The World Today," the nightly news program which brings in reports from world capitals.

Good Housekeeping Magazine has the right idea...

"In these times," says Good Housekeeping Magazine, "there is really no better contribution we women can make than to keep our homes cheerful, secure and fresh." You'll want to read every word of this fascinating article, "How to Live and Love It," in the November issue. It's packed with original ideas on how to make living more enjoyable within your home.

We've appointed ourselves your own ways and means committee for putting the suggestions into practice. So bring on your problems. You may need only a "new deal" on lampshades to shed a rosier glow upon life. Perhaps the sun will shine brighter through gayer curtains. You may want to do something drastic about the living room situation, or even re-do your entire house. No matter. Whatever it is, wherever you live, come in and we'll show you how.
